Making The Show House Show Up

Last night five of us were sitting around a dinner table in New York.

Two were big growers.

Two were florists, one with a store on Fifth Avenue, another on the leading street in Chicago. The talk just naturally turned to how more flowers could be sold.

After the usual claim that the trouble is not with the flower shop owners, but with the growers for building so many houses, the man from Chicago fairly blew up. He pounded the table and said:

"You flower shop fellows make me tired.

How in the name of Heaven can the grower sell his flowers unless you sell them?

In every line of retail business today, you no longer hear people inquiring, 'Do you keep so and so?' They say, 'Do you sell so and so?' The public has caught on. But have we flower shop owners? Every other product today is being merchandised.

Here is "Old Man Barbe" himself. For the oldest man in the Kansas City florist business, he is without doubt one of the youngest, when it comes to ideas on selling flowers.

Why don't we do the same? Why don't we cut out a lot of sentimental slush about flowers and sell them like other things are sold? Why don't we show our goods up better?

Why don't more of us build real show houses, that show people, passing along our street, more of the things we are selling, instead of just the few things we are keeping in our ice boxes?

Why don't more of us take a hint from 'Old Man Barbe' of Kansas City, and build a big glass show case right along the street where folks, walking or riding, simply can't help looking into it?"

After which I thanked our Chicago friend heartily for having talked such a corking good Ad. for us Show House Builders. Seems to me he struck the nail right on the head on how to sell more flowers.

Looks like there must be more real selling and less keeping of flowers.

How does it strike you?

Without our patented cardboard Wreath Forms

Experience has shown us that most of our trade has paid too much for their Wreath Forms because they held back their orders until shipment had to be made by express. This increased the cost of the merchandise from 25 to 35 per cent. Besides, our customers lost business because they did not have the goods on hand—their customers would not wait when delivery could not be made at once. The profit on such specialties comes through having the goods on hand when wanted. It does not pay to approach the Christmas holidays with little goods on hand.

Therefore we suggest to you that you place your orders now for fall requirements in Christmas Wreath Forms.

Send for our line of samples of cardboard Wreath Forms as illustrated in this advertisement. Do it now. Prices and samples will be sent gratis on request. We make the following sizes:

Wreath Forms—4, 6, 8, 10, 12 and 16-inch.

Star Forms—4, 6, 7, 9 and 12-inch.

Heart Forms—5, 6 and 7-inch.

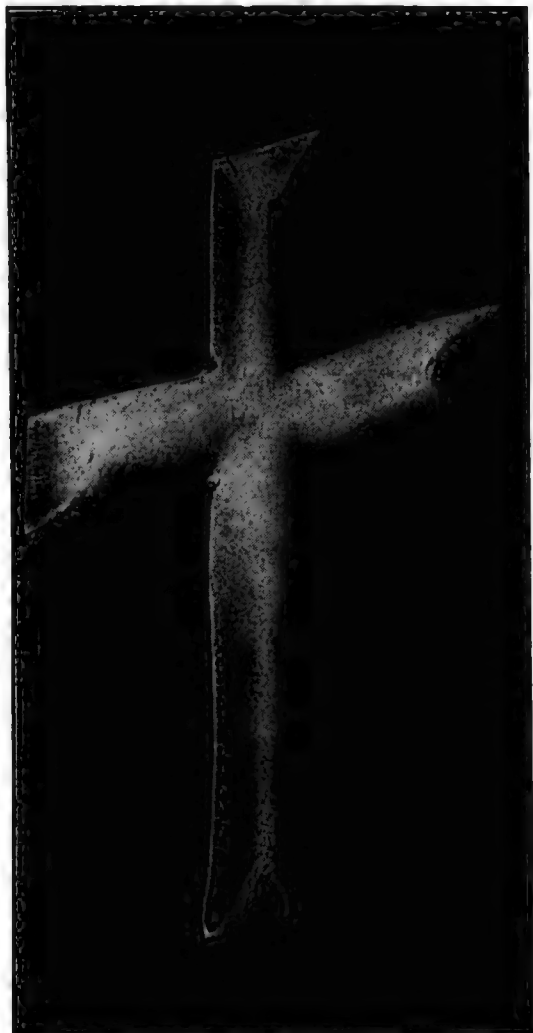

Cross Forms—14x21-inch and 18x30-inch.

DENVER, COLO.

Only Wholesaler between the Mississippi River and Pacific Coast carrying a full line of Florists' Supplies.

ATTENTION!

A great many florists do not realize the advantage of buying from The Denver Wholesale Florists' Co. They, of course, know that this company consists of an association of growers, and may think that the same conditions prevail here as in other large markets, where the growers are far enough away from the shipping centers that the flowers first have to be shipped to the commission merchant, then reshipped to the customers around the country, which means extra handling and more or less delay.

Our growers around Denver are all located near enough to our place, where the goods are shipped from, so the flowers can be cut in the morning (every florist realizing that the morning is the time to cut the flowers for them to be at their best and keep longest), brought in in a few minutes, placed in our cooling boxes, and shipped out in the afternoon of the same day.

These conditions enable us to send our customers flowers that are at least twenty-four hours fresher than would be otherwise possible, giving all the advantages of shipping direct from the grower, and at the same time all the additional advantages that would be derived from buying of a concern that handles a full line of everything, which is next to impossible for any individual grower who does shipping. Besides, being centrally located, we are close enough to the express office to fill hurry-up orders and get them out on short notice.

"Why, John! They're still fresh!"

How some florists have discovered a way to keep cut flowers fresh a long time

FLORISTS who use a certain type of container for cut flowers have frequently been complimented by women customers on the number of days cut flowers bought from them have retained a fresh appearance. Naturally these women have told their friends of their discovery and this word-of-mouth advertising has largely increased these florists' business not only in cut flowers but on their entire line. Every florist can now know the reason why these particular florists have been so fortunate. The secret need be a secret no longer.

The secret of keeping flowers fresh

THIS container which keeps flowers fresh so long is unique in every respect. It is made and sold by only one firm in America. It is called "Fibrotta". The secret of its keeping flowers fresh is its non-conductivity of heat or cold. Unlike any other vase, it holds water at an even temperature. Then, too, when flowers are placed in the ice box over night the "Fibrotta" vase keeps the water from becoming too cold and chilling the stems.

Rustless as well as non-conducting

THE "Fibrotta" vase is made by a special process of indurated fibre. It is seamless. It cannot rust out, sweat, or stain woodwork. Rust which inevitably accumulates in metal vases deposits upon the stems. This causes them to wilt. "Fibrotta" being rustless avoids this trouble and loss. It is impervious to moisture and as easy to clean as a china dish.

Gives flowers an air of distinction

THERE is still another way in which "Fibrotta" vases aid your sales. They give flowers an air of distinction, setting off the natural beauty of each variety. "Fibrotta" vases are furnished in their natural, polished mahogany-like color. There is no varnish to stain or fade. They keep their original color. For special purposes "Fibrotta" vases are also furnished in green or white enamel.

A florist shop which standardizes on "Fibrotta" vases for cut flowers is certain to have a trim, attractive and clean appearance which draws the highest type of customers. Remember that despite their unique qualities for increasing your profit, "Fibrotta" vases cost you no more than others.

Start now the new way

You owe it to yourself to get ready for a big Christmas business. Nothing you can do will help you more than the purchase of "Fibrotta" vases. The surest way to insure your getting a supply at this rush time is to order now for future shipment.

New Gladiolus ELORA

Originated by Luther Burbank, the world's greatest plant breeder. Read what he and others say of it.

"When I originated 'Elora' I considered it the finest Gladiolus in the world at that time.

Luther Burbank."

"The Elora which you shipped in this season were about the finest Gladioli we have ever seen. Our buyers took very readily to this variety, and we believe you will make no mistake in continuing to produce this stock.

A. L. Randall Co."

Elora is certainly queen of all the early Gladioli. Color, creamy white with rich cream spots on three lower petals, these spots overlaid with dainty featherings of American Beauty pink. The back of the petals show a tint of very delicate pink. A great favorite with florists because of extremely attractive coloring and a shade suitable for all purposes.

Blooms measure $4\frac{1}{2}$ to 5 inches in diameter, height about 4 feet. It is among the very first to bloom and extremely prolific in bulblets. Many of the largest size bulbs planted this spring developed 3 or 4 large bulbs and 50 to 60 small bulblets.

Don't fail to get your order in now for a start of this wonderful variety before we are all sold out. Price $1.00 each, $10.00 per dozen.

You Who Look For Something Better!

Commonwealth is better than existing roses. Montgomery's dark pink seedling will please you. We have confidence in Commonwealth and have shown our faith by placing plants of this new rose with the following firms for trial. These men have our full permission to tell the truth. We have not asked them to be charitable as regards any faults that the rose may have. We have placed the rose with these growers that the story of Commonwealth may be the story of honest endeavor to give the rose growers of America something better than we have had before. See Commonwealth with your nearest neighbor; or, better still, come to Cromwell and see it here. These men are growing it:

ANNIE LAURIE

A Flesh Pink Sport of Ophelia with a gold base extending a third of the way up the petals.

This Brilliant Sport of Ophelia, grown by the late Frank X. Stuppy for the past five years, will be disseminated in the early Spring of 1923.

It is a wonderful improvement over its parent, having a much better color of a deeper shade and being more productive.

The flower will average forty-six petals and open full without showing center. The plant is a vigorous grower, with the same foliage as its parent and disease-resistant.

*Exhibition Vases will be on display at the

GERANIUMS

We have a few thousand fine plants of MARVEL left. We consider this the best dark red geranium for bedding. Grows stronger than Nutt and is equally free flowering.

$30.00 per 1000 while they last.

Come and see the seedling mums and the new carnations. You will enjoy a few hours here and probably profit by it, too.

Have you ordered your SUPER SUPREME? We can still accept orders for January delivery. It is just like Enchantress Supreme, from which it sported, except that the color is more pleasing. You will drop the parent in favor of Super Supreme, once you get enough stock of it.

CRAIG QUALITY

"Every day in every way we are growing better and better"—Coue

We take this opportunity to advise our many friends and customers that we have prepared a much larger and finer stock of Craig Specialties for immediate or future delivery. Any grower having room would do well at this time to stock up on Craig Quality Crotons, Dracaenas, Arecas, Cyclamen, Ferns, Pandanus. We can make up attractive collections of assorted stock for the retail store man. Would suggest that you place your orders at once and we will ship at any time you state. All orders will have prompt and careful attention.

CROTONS

The Croton, with its highly colored foliage, is indispensable during fall and winter. We have the largest and most complete collection of Crotons in the world, carrying at the present time for fall sales over 50,000 in 100 varieties, all of the very highest quality and brilliantly colored.

These varieties are endorsed by all the leading retail florists. They will hold the flowers much better than Gloire de Lorraine.
4-inch pots, $12 per dozen, $75 per 100 (heavy).
5-inch pots, $125 per 100 (heavy).
6-inch pots, $24 per dozen (heavy).

BEGONIA KONKURANT

A greatly improved Begonia Cincinnati. This variety is a German introduction, and we have tried it for three years. It makes a much better shaped plant than Cincinnati and is free flowering.

4-inch pots, $75 per 100; 5-inch pots, $125 per 100; 6-inch pots, very heavy, $24 per dozen.

NEPHROLEPIS

We are the largest growers of Nephrolepis Ferns in the country. In fact, we are headquarters for them.

NEPHROLEPIS NORWOOD

The most beautiful form of Nephrolepis to date; graceful, compact and symmetrical, a vigorous, healthy grower. All growers are invited to inspect it at our Norwood Greenhouses. Strong plants.

2 1/2-inch pots, $2 per dozen, $13 per 100, $100 per 1000.
4-inch pots, $6 per dozen, $45 per 100.

Orders filled strictly in rotation.

NEPHROLEPIS VERONA

Makes a good plant in all sizes. Much finer frond than any crested sort outside of N. Smithii. The fronds are carried on a heavy, wiry stem. We consider it one of the best of the newer introductions.

2 1/2-inch pots, $10 per 100, $90 per 1000; 4-inch pots, $40 per 100; 6-inch pots, $13 per dozen, $90 per 100.

NEPHROLEPIS ELEGANTISSIMA COMPACTA

A dwarf, compact form of Nephrolepis Elegantissima, each plant making an ideal shape.

4-inch pots, $5 per dozen, $35 per 100.
6-inch pots, $12 per dozen, $90 per 100.

NEPHROLEPIS TEDDY JUNIOR

Fine young plants from 2 1/2-inch pots, $10 per 100, $90 per 1000.
6-inch pots, heavy, $12 and $15 per dozen.
8-inch pots, $24 per dozen.
11-inch tubs, $4, $5 and $6 each.

NEPHROLEPIS HARRISII OR ROOSEVELT

6-inch pots, $12 per dozen; 8-inch pots, $2 and $2.50 each; 11-inch tubs, $5 and $6 each.

NEPHROLEPIS SCOTTII

2 1/2-inch pots, $10 per 100, $90 per 1000.
4-inch pots, $35 per 100.
6-inch pots, $12 per dozen, $90 per 100.
8-inch pots, $24 and $30 per dozen.

PALMS

ARECA LUTESCENS

Perfect plants with rich, dark green foliage. Our stock is grown cool and hard. It is in splendid condition and will surely give satisfaction. Large sizes are very scarce this year. We have the largest stock in all sizes in the country.

7-inch pots, made up, $5 and $6 each.
8-inch pots, made up, $7.50 and $10 each.
10-inch tubs, made up, $12.50 each, 5 1/2 to 6 feet tall.
11-inch tubs, made up, $15 each.
13-inch tubs, $25 each.

BULB CONFERENCE AT WASHINGTON

Following the promise of the F. H. B., last spring, to consider additions to the list of bulbs permitted entry under regulation 3 of quarantine 37, a conference of bulb men and the board this week resulted in the selection of fourteen kinds to be passed upon by the board.

THE federal horticultural board has been called upon to render a decision upon the addition of fourteen varieties of bulbs to the list of those whose importation is permitted under quarantine 37, as the result of the conference held October 30 between members of the board and representatives of the bulb trade. The fourteen varieties comprise bulbs which it was felt the trade could not do without, the list being the net result of some five hours' consideration of the forty-one varieties of bulbs which the board was asked to include in the permitted list in a petition signed by fifty-two importers, dealers and seedsmen from the east and middle west.

Marlatt's Opening.

The meeting was called as a result of the agreement reached last May that the bulb item under regulation 3 should be given individual consideration. As usual, Dr. C. L. Marlatt, chairman of the board, presided, and in opening the conference made a brief statement regarding the matter which was to come under consideration.

"I do not think it is necessary for me to say that this quarantine has but one purpose," said Dr. Marlatt, "to keep out pests; not that of protecting any domestic growers, to give our growers any advantage over foreign growers, as has been alleged many times. There is no basis for that charge whatever, yet the objection to the quarantine was from the domestic growers; they are the ones who organized a country-wide campaign against it. In other words, the opposition was the growers' opposition. They certainly did not appreciate that we were trying to do something to help them. Of course, any quarantine must give advantage to the domestic producer. By reason of the quarantines abroad, the European growers have no competition; they are greatly benefited by the quarantines. It has proved that these early fears were groundless. We are better pleased that it has been a benefit to the development of horticulture in this country rather than that we have really torn it down or destroyed it.

"There has been a general belief that bulbs are as innocent of risk as it is possible for anything grown in the ground to be. Everything has its risks, and bulbs are not out of that category. A good many important pests come in with bulbs. A stream of such pests is coming in now with the bulbs that we are permitting to be imported. Some of these pests will be heard from in later years. Take bulbs during the ten years of the enforcement of this quarantine: Forty-three different kinds of insects have been taken on bulb importations. Some of those are taken on every bulb importation; there is not "The lesser bulb fly (Eumeris strigatus) is also dangerous. Larvæ of this bulb fly have been found quite abundantly in shipments of narcissus bulbs from Holland during the present shipping season, in some cases exhibiting a twelve per cent infestation. It has also been taken this season in hyacinth bulbs from Holland and in iris roots from France. In Europe it is reported that it is an enemy of the onion and has sometimes destroyed whole crops of this vegetable. In this country it has already been observed infesting onions of the Pacific northwest, and an acre of Holland daffodils was destroyed by it at Alameda, Cal.

I have here a little bottle containing seventy-seven of these taken from a single bulb, a narcissus bulb from Holland.

Insects' Attacks.

"The infestation of these two bulb flies has been heavy this year; there was one shipment from Holland that was so heavily infested that we had to order it fumigated. This is a good deal like shutting the door after the horse has been stolen. This was so badly infested — the Hollanders were so careless in their shipment—that the bulbs either had to be fumigated or refused entry. These were from Holland, and the bulbs brought the insect along with them. These two pests are not only bulb pests, but they attack cultivated crops, such as the onion. The smaller fly also attacks almost any bulb.

"The bulb mite (Rhizoglyphus hyacinthi) is reported to have destroyed an entire crop of lilies in Colorado, imported from Holland. This mite has been found on seven or eight different kinds of bulbs. It attacks plants other than bulbs also. It accompanies practically every commercial foreign shipment of bulbs and has been taken on amaryllis, crocus, galanthus, gladiolus, hyacinth, lily, muscari, narcissus, scilla, tigridia and tulip bulbs.

"The narcissus nematode (Tylenchus dipsaci), or soil worm, is prevalent in Holland and other parts of Europe, and has been brought to this country with shipments of lily bulbs. It has gained a foothold in the northwest and has spread to clover and has seriously en-

BULBS MOST NEEDED

The list of forty-one varieties of bulbs for which fifty-two dealers petitioned unlimited entry was pruned at the Washington conference to the following fourteen as those most needed by the trade in this country:

Allium
Anemone
Begonia Chionodoxa
Dielytra
Fritillaria Galanthus

Gladiolus nanus and cardinalis
Gloxinia
Iris
Muscari
Ranunculus

a bulb importation that is free from all of these. Some of them are important pests, some are new to the country, and some have become established and are already working harm.

"There are two bulb maggots that come in freely. The large bulb fly, or the narcissus bulb fly (Merodon equestris), has been many times intercepted on shipments from Holland and France. A recent shipment from France showed infestations throughout, some of the cases showing a five per cent infestation. This pest has been taken in narcissus, hyacinth, amaryllis, German iris and other bulbs. I have here an exhibit taken October 18 from a few of these bulbs which were examined in New York city and which came from France.

dangered clover crops in that region, even threatening further profitable production of this important forage and soil fertilizer plant.

"There are a good many bulb diseases and new bulb pests coming in, of some of which we do not know the names. A new one has just come in from Mexico that is not known to us. There is no name in the archives of the museum here, and it is unknown to science. This pest was found infesting many bulbs of a shipment of amaryllis bulbs from Mexico; the infested bulbs were rendered worthless. Nothing is known of the habits of the pest.

"The department, at the time the quarantine was promulgated, during the period of a year or more, investigated the subject fully. It asked all of its experts to submit lists of schedules of bulbs that should be admitted and plants that should be excluded. In the matter of bulbs, certain lists were presented for unlimited entry. In other words, anyone could get a permit good forever, or until countermanded, and could bring in all the bulbs on that list that he wanted. The other list contained the rest of the bulbs; they could be brought in for the purpose of reproduction or for the introduction of new varieties. The first list was believed by the experts to contain the bulbs that were least dangerous in the sense of introducing pests. Whether that was wise has remained to be seen. The other list contained bulbs that would not be produced in this country in any quantity for some years. Other bulbs were, from origin or nature, believed to be more dangerous from the standpoint of the introduction of pests, or bulbs which could be produced in this country or were being so produced.

"We are now operating in a different status of affairs, as to reproduction in this country, the bulbs, the dangerous insects, and other facts. What the board would like to have would be any discussion you would care to make. We have a lot of information on the importation of these bulbs for reproduction. We have information on the bulb production in this country and future possibilities. We have had half a dozen demands for importations of bulbs on the prohibited list, but they do not represent the sentiment of the country. We have to take a broad, national viewpoint. We had to consider crops other than bulbs and realize that this quarantine must be adjusted along broad lines. We cannot adjust the quarantine along individual lines to benefit some commercial concerns, but must act in the interests of the whole country and all its agriculture and horticulture. That is, what is the best for the interests of us all."

McFarland Dissents.

Practically the only discordant note of the whole meeting was interjected into the proceedings by J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, Pa., chairman of the committee on horticultural quarantine formed by a number of amateur organizations, who severely criticised the board for its failure to give full and proper consideration to the appeals of the amateurs for bulbs. All cases submitted are predetermined, he asserted, and the amateurs are up against a "Chinese wall," and the board cannot expect to secure their coöperation until these conditions are changed.

"We suggest that it would be the fair thing if all bulbs were admitted save those specifically shown to bring in dangers in the meaning of the act," Mr. McFarland said. "The danger could be guarded against, and we have thought that, even if the danger existed as has been outlined, that was not an adequate reason for depriving American growers of the bulbs. We believe that unless the introduction of the excluded bulbs is definitely known to be likely to result in the introduction of a new disease or pest, they ought to be freely admitted."

Mr. McFarland again brought up the question of additional ports of entry, only to be informed by Dr. Marlatt that funds would be required to establish such points, and that Congress so far had refused to make any appropriation when requested by the board. None of the groups interested in the quarantine, he said, have ever gone before Congress in behalf of such an appropriation, and if the amateurs or the trade want any additional ports of entry established, it is up to them to prevail upon Congress to furnish the funds.

The Petition.

The petition submitted to the board by Frank H. Henry, of Henry & Lee, New York, as chairman of a committee of bulb dealers, retailers and importers, brought squarely before the board the question of extending the list of permitted bulbs. More than fifty signatures of bulb dealers, in New York, Chicago, Milwaukee, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Boston, appeared on the petition, which asked that, in future, unlimited entry be permitted achimenes, allium, amaryllis, anemone, anomatheca, alstromeria, babiana, begonia, caladium, calla, camassia, chionodoxa, colchicum, crinum, crown imperial, dielytra, eranthus, freesia, Fritillaria meleagris, calanthus (snowdrop), Gladiolus nanus and cardinalis (baby gladioli), gloxinia, hemerocallis, hippeastrum, iris (bulbous), Ismene calathina, ixia, leucojum, lyconia, lycoris, milla, montbretia, muscari, nerine, ornithogalum, oxalis, ranunculus, scilla, sparaxis, tigridia and zephyranthes.

Of these, the petition set forth, amaryllis, begonia, caladium, calla, chionodoxa, colchicum, dielytra, freesia, galanthus, gloxinia, iris, lycoris, muscari, nerine, oxalis, scilla and zephyranthes are the most important items from a commercial standpoint.

"All of these additional varieties of bulbs can be 'dry packed' without soil or earth, or roots, and therefore any risk of infestation will be minimized as fully as in the case of hyacinth, tulip, narcissus and other bulbs, at present permitted," it was stated by the petitioner.

"While the commercial value of the additional varieties asked for probably does not represent over twenty per cent, nor the volume (bulk) over five per cent of the present permitted kinds, it is a fact that these additional varieties, not at present allowed, prevent the trade from satisfying their customers who have been regularly supplied with a complete assortment of bulbs for many years past, and the inclusion of which varieties will only permit publishing of anything like a complete or satisfactory bulb catalogue."

Records of Permits.

The records of the board on the bulbs named in the petition were immediately searched, and those present were advised of the number of permits and bulbs covered thereby on each item. It was found that on several of the items no permits had ever been requested, while on others, such as iris and galanthus, a large number of bulbs have been brought into the country. On iris alone 170 permits have been issued, which would provide for the importation of 10,690,615 bulbs, and ninety-four permits have been used, covering 5,290,328 bulbs. This, of course, was the largest of all the items.

Following several hours of discussion, it was suggested that the list before the conference could be amended so as to include only those varieties which the meeting considered most essential. When the pruning process was completed fourteen bulbs remained on the list. This action, however, Dr. Marlatt assured Mr. Henry, would not prejudice his petition, which would be considered solely on its own merits.

The bulbs finally submitted to the board for consideration, together with the number of permits issued, the number of bulbs covered thereby, and the actual importations, were as follows:

Allium: Seven permits have been issued, covering 28,657 bulbs; actual importations have been fifty-five, brought in under three permits.

Anemone: Forty-nine permits have been issued, covering 332,705 bulbs; actual importations have been 216,122, under twenty permits.

Begonia: Eighteen permits have been issued, covering 86,071 bulbs; actual importations have been 76,120, under nine permits.

Chionodoxa: Thirteen permits have been issued, covering 168,136 bulbs; actual importations have been 88,030 bulbs, under three permits.

Dielytra: Forty-five permits have been issued, covering 256,820 bulbs; actual importations (to October 15) have been 38,845 bulbs, under six permits.

Fritillaria meleagris: Two permits have been issued, but no importations made.

Galanthus: Nineteen permits have been issued, covering 518,000 bulbs; actual importations have been 465,000 bulbs, under ten permits.

Gladiolus nanus and cardinalis: No permits have been issued for cardinalis. Sixty-four permits have been issued for nanus, covering 1,326,165 bulbs; actual importations have been 421,871, under thirty permits.

Gloxinia: Four permits have been issued, covering 18,300 bulbs; actual imports have been 100 bulbs, under two permits.

Iris: One hundred seventy permits have been issued, covering 10,690,615 bulbs; actual permits have been 5,290,328 bulbs, under ninety-four permits.

Montbretia: Twenty-four permits have been issued, covering 254,402 bulbs; actual importations have been 101,788, under twelve permits.

Muscari: Twenty-two permits have been issued, covering 214,900 bulbs; actual importations have been 93,986, under five permits.

Ranunculus: Twenty-six permits have been issued, covering 896,606 bulbs; actual importations have been 418,950 bulbs, under fifteen permits.

Scilla: Twenty-three permits have been issued, covering 890,100 bulbs, and imports have totaled 115,451 bulbs, under eight permits.

These bulbs will be taken under consideration by the board, Dr. Marlatt announced, and any information which the importers, dealers or growers can give will be carefully considered. It will be necessary to take the matter up with the growers, since there were no representatives of the producers present and many of the growers will be affected by any changes which may be made in the list.

Present Stocks Here.

In addition to the discussion of the bulbs listed, there was considerable debate over the possibilities of ever getting sufficient stocks in this country. Many of the dealers told the board that while the growers were optimistic at the beginning of each season and were always going to have more bulbs than the country could absorb, when it came time to make deliveries the bulbs actually received could be counted on the fingers of one hand, and where any quantity of American-grown bulbs were received, they usually failed to flower, and as most of them are used for flowering purposes and are grown under glass, that kind of bulb was of no value to the dealer.

Representatives of Belgium and Holland were present and again assured the members of the board of their desire to coöperate in any way possible in cleaning up their bulbs so that they could be permitted free entry. Both countries are careful with their bulbs and would be glad to do whatever the board thought necessary to insure stock free from insects and disease.

Gude's Views.

From the florists' point of view, the permitted list could be well extended, according to William F. Gude, Washington representative of the S. A. F. "I think that so long as we are not able to produce commercially such bulbs as may be suitable for greenhouse forcing," said Mr. Gude, "it might be well to let up on the quarantine, so far as it does not bring in disease. We all want to exclude disease, but in the case of Paper White narcissus, for instance, to exclude that would, in a way, be suicidal. It would destroy the commercial industry—a splendid industry which is now in fine condition.

"At present, it seems, with the dismal failure of the Eureka nurseries and the Bellingham farms to produce productive bulbs, and the cost of transporting them across the country—which is greater than the cost of azaleas in France, plus duty—the growers' side would be one for the future. Japanese and Bermuda lilies should also be left alone. Whether they can be grown here or not remains to be seen."

A prominent part in the discussion was taken by J. H. Burdett, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago. Mr. Burdett told the board that it was difficult for his concern to get any stocks of the bulbs which are prohibited from entry, and he several times criticised the board for the stand it had taken on many subjects. J. C. Vaughan is greatly opposed to the principle of the quarantine, he told the meeting, except as based on scientific grounds. So great is his opposition that, although he has considerable money invested in the production of the gladiolus, if the question of free admittance of that bulb was brought up, Mr. Burdett had been instructed to favor their unrestricted admittance.

It was suggested by Dr. Karl F. Kellerman, a member of the board, that if any additions are made to the permitted list, it may be deemed advisable to make the changes effective from some time in the future, possibly postponing them for as long as ten months or a year, in order that the growers in this country having contracts for bulbs may be protected. There was little or no opposition to this proposal, and it will be taken up by the board in deciding the changes to be made.

Those Present.

Among those present at the conference were Chairman C. L. Marlatt, Vice-chairman W. A. Orton, Karl F. Kellerman, R. C. Althouse, assistant to the chairman, all of the federal horticultural board; J. Bluefield, W. Va.—The name of the Flower Shop has been changed to Thornton's Flower Shop.

Jacksonville, Fla.—Edward Paruall, of 126 Tallyrand avenue, is a grower of roses for the market. He also makes a business of gathering wood ferns.

Brookhaven, Miss.—Mrs. Stella T. Harper has taken over the flower business of Mrs. Annie B. Sherman. Mrs. Harper has been associated with Mrs. Sherman in this business and is thoroughly familiar with all of the details and responsibility of the work.

Savannah, Ga.—Richardson, the Florist, 1224 Wheaton street, is doing a large business in funeral work and wedding decorations. Mr. Richardson's range consists of 125,000 feet of glass, and he also boasts a $10,000 heating plant. He has been in the business for twenty years, starting with a small range of 2,000 square feet of glass.

Bowie, Tex.—Mrs. Price Chandler is entering the trade in this city.

Fort Lauderdale, Fla.—Mrs. Mary C. Wedge has gone into the florists' business on a small scale.

West Palm Beach, Fla.—Armistice day of 1921 the Poinsettia Flower Shop opened here and it has grown to such an extent that the quarters must be enlarged. Phil Foster and F. B. Moses, the proprietors, find great demand for their work. A recent edition of the local paper recognized their value to the community in glowing terms.

Knoxville, Tenn.—Flower Craft, the newest flower shop in this city, has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $50,000, and the store was formally opened for business Monday, October 23. The incorporators are Brockway Crouch, C. W. Henderson, G. H. Galla-her, D. C. Webb and D. L. Groover. The shop is exceedingly attractive, as the interior decorations are elaborate. In addition to a full line of cut flowers and pot plants, the firm will handle a complete line of pottery and birds.

COMING EVENTS

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

Annual Meeting at St. Louis.

The annual meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America will be held in the Coliseum building, St. Louis, Mo., Wednesday, November 8, at 8 p. m. No entry fee will be charged to members for entries in the society's special classes. A committee will be appointed by the president of the association to examine new seedling mums, submitted at the show for the Chrysanthemum Society of America certificate, according to the rules governing the same.

A further account of the show, to take place at the above-mentioned date, will be found in the St. Louis newsletter in this issue.

Examining Committee.

The committees appointed by the Chrysanthemum Society of America to examine new varieties of chrysanthemums have submitted the following:

At Cincinnati, O., October 24, Irene, white, pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 36; form, 18; stem and foliage, 17; fullness, 17; total, 88.

At Chicago, Ill., October 21, Irene, white, pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 30; form, 20; stem and foliage, 18; fullness, 18; total, 86.

FLORISTS TO NASHVILLE.

The convention of the Tennessee State Florists' Association will be held in Nashville November 13 and 14. Headquarters will be the Hermitage hotel, where the meetings will be held in the Assembly room and the floral display made in the loggia. The Tennessee State Florists' Association now has a membership of 251, and has the reputation of being one of the most active state associations of florists in the south. The regular convention calls out an attendance of some 200 of the leading florists not only from the southern, but many of the western, northern and eastern states. Features of the coming convention will be the trades' exhibits and the flower show, there being cut flowers in different forms, potted decorative plants and flower shop accessories of all kinds. A strong program has been prepared, and the coming convention bids fair to be the best ever held in the nine years of existence of the organization. The present officers are as follows: President, Harold Joy, Nashville, Tenn.; secretary-treasurer, G. M. Bentley, Knoxville, Tenn.

G. M. Bentley, Sec'y-Treas.

WOLVERINES TO MEET.

The Michigan State Florists' Association will hold its fourth annual business meeting at Ann Arbor, November 10 and 11. The specific place of meeting will be the Barbour gymnasium.

Friday, November 10, the meeting will be called to order at 2 p. m. by President S. W. Coggan, of Battle Creek; directly following this, the Rev. Arthur W. Stalker will offer the invocation. Dean Bursley will deliver an address of welcome and J. Fred Ammann will deliver a response.

S. W. Coggan will give the president's address; the reports of committees will be heard, a radio stunt will be enjoyed and new business will be discussed. J. F. Ammann will preside when the telegraph delivery business is being discussed. New committees will be appointed and a report will be heard on naming a new mum.

At 6 p. m. there is to be a banquet, when Philip Breitmeyer, of Detroit, will make an address and later christen a mum.

Saturday, November 11, at 9 a. m. M. Bloy, of Detroit, will conduct an F. T. D. meeting. A new meeting place is to be selected for the association, and officers are to be nominated and elected.

The judges of exhibits at this meeting will be G. B. Goetz, of Saginaw; M. Bloy, of Detroit, and A. Vogt, of Flint, Mich.

PROGRESS AT MINNEAPOLIS.

Plans for the Minneapolis, Minn., flower show are rapidly progressing. The show will open at Kenwood armory, Armistice day, November 11. Daisies will play a large part in all the festivities marking the opening of the festival. Little white blossoms will be scattered broadcast over Minneapolis from an airplane to commemorate the soldier dead of the Twin Cities.

Late Sunday, November 12, there will be a special concert of sacred music. Monday will be Rose day, as that is the day when the largest of the rose exhibits will be placed. Tuesday will be designated as Minneapolis day and Wednesday will be devoted to St. Paul. Society night will be Thursday, and will be featured by the christening of new varieties of roses and chrysanthemums.

One thousand Christmas trees have arrived and are in cold storage awaiting flower show week, when they will adorn every lamp post extending from the Gateway up Nicollet avenue and leading to the Parade.

The flower show management, of which Theodore Wirth, superintendent of the Minneapolis park system, is chairman, has offered $5,000 in premiums for various shrubs, plants and cut flowers. In addition, premiums amounting to $1,000 have been donated by individuals and firms for basket arrangements, bulbs and cut flowers.

Four florists of national reputation have been chosen to act as judges. Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich., will go to Minneapolis to serve as a judge. Other judges will be W. J. Smyth, of Chicago; W. L. Rock, of Kansas City, Mo., and J. J. Hess, of Omaha, who is treasurer of the S. A. F.

Premiums are to be offered for photographs of garden flowers and specimen plants.

The Minneapolis Journal will offer a sweepstakes trophy for the best exhibit.

Mrs. E. H. Mazey will offer a silver cup as a sweepstakes trophy for the best exhibit of made-up work in certain lots. This is given as a memorial to the late E. H. Mazey.

The annex of the armory is to be used for miniature home grounds; there will be a sunken garden, planted by the Minneapolis park department.

The A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, will furnish an electric fountain, similar to the one the firm had at the Indianapolis flower show; this fountain is to be placed in the sunken garden.

The canopy in the armory is to be made of southern smilax and the woodwork in the annex is to be covered with balsam and spruce; 1,000 trees have been ordered for this work.

Special lighting features have been arranged for the armory. The lamp posts leading to the armory will be marked with arrows and evergreens.

The Minneapolis park department, which has conducted an interesting chrysanthemum show each year, will not hold its show, but will make an exhibit at the armory.

Special arrangements have been made for getting shipments from the depot to the exhibition halls promptly. Rice Bros. are to handle this, and exhibitors would do well to notify Rice Bros. of shipments which are to be made during the show.

Any inquiries in regard to the premium list, exhibits or other matters connected in any way with the show will be cheerfully answered by the secretary, LeRoy Cady, University Farm, St. Paul, Minn.

ALBANY'S NEW STORE.

The latest addition to the retailers' establishments at Albany, N. Y., is the place of George E. Nagengast, which is shown in the illustration on this page. This establishment, tasteful in its architecture, is located in a prominent and rising residential district, at Washington and Main Avenue, Albany. The house is of Hitchings construction. Mr. Nagengast himself is a man long popular in the trade, and, in the words of another Albanian, "Everything looks like success."

CUTTING THE HEATING COST

BURNING OIL FOR FUEL.

Economy Effectuated.

Practically all of those difficulties coming under the category of the mechanics of the oil burning system have been disposed of by constantly experimenting and perfecting the apparatus; and the losses which have heretofore been occasioned by the unburned coal gases escaping into the air have been materially reduced by the substitution of fuel oil for coal. It is possible for the fireman to determine in just what proportions the air and oil must be mixed when placed under pressure to allow a rapid and complete combustion in the fire-box. If the boilers are needed on short notice, they can be brought to full capacity in less time and with much less effort than where coal is used as fuel.

It is also found that the boilers can stand a much heavier strain without injury. Comparing the heating values of coal and oil, it is found by engineers that eighty per cent of the heating value of fuel oil is used, whereas, only sixty-five per cent of the heat derived from the burning of coal can be held in the boiler long enough to be utilized, a fact due, of course, to the fact that the combustion is more rapid and more complete in the case of fuel oil, and for that reason the heat from the latter is available for a longer period of time during its journey through the boiler chambers and around the water tubes. The heating value of fuel oil is found to run between 18,000 and 19,000 British thermal units per pound, while coal only approximates between 11,500 and 14,000 B. t. u. per pound. This variation can be easily explained by the fact that there is less foreign matter, such as dirt and slag, to displace the combustible material in the oil than in the coal, which results in a more nearly complete combustion in the case of the former, with no ashes or residue to clog the boiler passages. It is found that the same heating results can be obtained from one ton of fuel oil, if we may so express it, as is obtained from one and one-half tons of coal; this ratio only holds true where the number of British thermal units is constant in both the case of the coal and the oil.

Another saving effected is that of the storage space. For fuel oil this space is from twenty to thirty per cent less than that required for coal. The fuel deterioration caused by weathering of coal is from two to ten per cent, depending upon the length of time the coal is left exposed, while in the case of the fuel oil there is no deterioration, because the containers in which it is stored are airtight, with the exception of the vent provided to allow any gases which may form to escape.

Not only is there a saving in the fuel effected before it is burned, but the actual efficiency of the boilers is increased from ten to fifteen per cent, because of the increased evaporation of water per pound of fuel oil burned. The danger of spontaneous combustion, which has caused so much destruction of property and has cost so many lives, is almost entirely eliminated with the use of fuel oil, and the actual labor costs are reduced from sixty to seventy-five per cent.

Fuel Oil Deliveries.

In the foregoing it has been endeavored to set forth some of those advantages to be had in the use of fuel oil for heating greenhouses as contrasted with the use of coal. There are, however, some more important problems which must be taken into consideration before the final decision is made to change from burning coal to burning fuel oil. Among the foremost of these is the matter of contracts. What is a contract? A contract is a meeting of the minds of two or more responsible persons. For a consideration one of the parties to a contract agrees to do or not to do some specific thing. The terms of a contract are set forth specifically, showing that fully before going into the market. It is readily understood that the marketer who is dependent upon the outside transportation in making delivery upon his contracts is not in as advantageous a position to live up to the terms of his contracts, in the case of external disturbances over which he has no control, as the firm which owns its own wells, refineries and transportation facilities. The affiliations of the marketer should be thoroughly investigated and understood by the buyer before any contracts are entered into.

EXPERIENCES WITH FUEL OIL.

An exceedingly keen interest is being taken by florists in some sections of the country in the subject of heating the range with fuel oil instead of coal. This interest is evidenced by the number of inquiries that come to the office of The Review on the subject. The following article is contributed by O. H. Herman, a florist at Council Bluffs, Ia., who is now using this form of fuel for heating purposes:

When oil was first refined, kerosene was the chief product. Large quantities of gasoline were destroyed for want of a market, or rather a use. When kerosene wicks were first used, the wick was stuck into a can. This was a smoky apparatus, but later a burner was made to hold the wick and was so constructed that air could get into the wick and burn with the oil. Then a chimney was put over the flame to hold this mixture together while burning and to keep away the draft. The hotter the atmosphere inside the chimney became, the whiter grew the flame, but if the flame was fanned, it would smoke and refuse to give good results. It is my endeavor to show why a flame produced by fuel oil does not require a blower, but must have air. When a blower is attached, it will carry some of the oil to the lining of the combustion chamber, where it will soak in, and later, when it becomes hot, it expands, causing the brick to crumble in the same way as does water-soaked fire brick.

The air should be mixed with the fuel oil before it enters the combustion chamber. The carburetor mixes air and gasoline together before they enter the cylinders of an engine. If the air and gasoline were to enter the cylinder by separate channels, the power obtained would be discouraging. Air will not mix with fuel oil as long as the latter is in the liquid state. The oil must first be changed to vapor or steam, then mixed with air, and the resultant vapor put into the combustion chamber.

Now, how can a person tell when the mixture is in the correct proportion? Fuel oil, when properly mixed, acts like gasoline in a motor. When the mixture is too lean it will produce intermittent fire, causing the fire doors to quiver, while if the mixture is too heavy, the flames will smoke. Great care must be exercised, in the system I have, to see that all drafts from the outside are closed. Only a small opening is required the minds of the parties to a contract have come to a mutual agreement. But supposing the ability of the party of the first part to the contract for fuel oil delivery is impaired by matters which are beyond his own control, you will immediately say that the party of the second part has recourse to the law. However, he may not have time for such action, and he may run a good chance of losing his crop through freezing. It is, therefore, readily seen that a contract is only as good as the ability of the parties concerned to live up to its terms. In general the dependability of a fuel oil contract will be governed by: The delivering ability of the marketer contracted with; the point of location where delivery is to be made; the most practicable means of said delivery; the extent to which such delivery might be affected by strikes, labor disorders and other contingencies; the distance of point of delivery from most usual point of shipment. Therefore, the buyer should investigate these points care-to the chimney. The damper should be so made that it can be opened wide for starting the fire, as it will smoke until the right mixture is obtained; then the damper can be closed nearly all of the way and all the heat from the fire remains where it belongs, in the combustion chambers and flues.

I think the readers would appreciate some figures on different types of fuel oil installations, as compared with coal. I have found fuel oil much cheaper than coal. The oil is cheaper at the refineries than coal is at the mines, but the freight rates will make a difference. My freight charges come close to 90 cents per barrel on the fuel oil. Some inquirers think oil will go "sky high" if everybody begins to use it for fuel, but let us burn the fuel which is the cheapest, and, as far as the supply goes, we might say that there are many refineries that do not bother themselves about the by-product, fuel oil, but simply pump it into a creek nearby, where it floats away. Let us hear from other florists who are burning fuel oil.

MULTIPLICATION OF GLADIOLI.

In harvesting Elora gladiolus bulbs the W. B. Davis Co., Aurora, Ill., says one was found that had developed such an unusual increase in bulbs and bulblets that the men brought it into the office, and after carefully removing all the little ones they counted up and found that there were four large bulbs and 296 bulblets, or a total of 300 from one 2-inch bulb which was planted last April, and from which four tall spikes of bloom had been cut and sold in July. Many others had three bulbs, and fifty to sixty bulblets about the size of peas, but the one above referred to was so extraordinary that a photograph was taken of it. The bulblets in front of the clump were all shelled off this plant and were a solid mass below and around the cluster of four which bloomed. The W. B. Davis Co. says, "We were fortunate in having several witnesses, or we would not have dared to send this in for publication." It is often said that the improved varieties are not prolific, but Elora seems an exception.

WANT HIGHER EXPRESS RATES.

The American Railway Express Co. has petitioned the interstate commerce commission for an increase in express rates, to become effective immediately. In this petition the company predicts that unless the increase is granted the earnings report this year will show a deficit of approximately $13,000,000, not including a reasonable return on the investment from this business. Express company officials, in commenting on the petition, said that they believed the interstate commerce commission would include the question of a rate increase in a general investigation of the express situation, scheduled to take place in Washington November 20.

George C. Taylor, president of the company, in the application points out the total gross revenues of the company for 1921 amounted to $298,976,591, against which were incurred both by the company and by the railroads in the conduct of the express business expenses amounting to approximately $338,147,782, leaving a deficit of $39,171,191.

The petition further states "that both the express and the railroad companies have conducted their business on the most economical basis consistent with good service; that while costs of operation have been declining, due to the gradual return to normal of all operating expenses and general conditions, your petitioner believes that the ratio of operating expenses will continue practically the same in the future, so that there will be at least the same deficit in 1922, 1923 and future years unless an increase in express rates is granted."

It is further pointed out in the petition that "it is desirable that certain changes be made in the classifications and ratings of articles tendered for transportation by express, and that these changes will be proposed in detail in event the hearing is granted."

DELPHINIUM BELLADONNA.

Kindly furnish me with directions for the forcing of Delphinium Belladonna under glass. H. & K.—Pa.

The reply which appeared under this inquiry in last week's Review appeared in such juxtaposition by error. That reply was to an inquiry regarding the forcing of annual larkspur, a quite different matter from forcing perennial varieties. Here is the reply that should have appeared:

One-year-old clumps of Delphinium Belladonna give the best results in forcing. The older and heavier field-grown clumps are more liable to damp off, experience has shown. If seed is sown in coldframes in February, excellent plants can be produced for forcing the following season. Some lath shades are necessary to cover the bed until the seeds germinate. A little shade in the hottest part of the day while the seedlings are small is also advisable. The seedlings should be pricked off and placed in sashes, being shaded a little until they are established. Later transplant them in nursery rows or beds outdoors, during cloudy, moist weather, keeping the soil well stirred. Such plants will be of good size by fall. They should not be lifted until there has been considerable frost, since they should have a good freezing before being forced.

Plants should not be started in the greenhouse until the middle of January or first part of February, and then only at a low temperature. If the plants are started earlier, one is liable to lose many by damping off. After the middle of February, give the plants a little heat, enough to make the night temperature 40 to 42 degrees, raising it to 50 degrees as the plants advance in growth.

Do not attempt hard forcing of delphiniums and always air them freely when they are flowering. Be careful, also, not to plant them in soil containing too much manure. Better use soil a little on the poor side and later give a top-dressing of old manure. Temperature, watering, ventilation and time of starting are points of much importance in forcing delphiniums. Success is not always achieved the first season. But when one has learned to handle the plants properly, he can produce fine, long spikes that are in strong demand in the markets.

FIRST LADY'S GOOD EXAMPLE.

The column about Washington society is a feature of every metropolitan newspaper and of some not metropolitan, at least on Sunday. It is read avidly by the ladies and supplies small-town society with examples from the elite of the land. There's good for us, then, in the column of Daisy Fitzhugh Ayres, as it appeared in one of the newspapers which print her syndicated stuff—the Indianapolis Star—Sunday, October 22. The caption read, "Flowers Are Absent from White House," and the subcaption, "Lack of Blossoms and Plants Certain Sign of Illness of Mrs. Harding, Who Uses Them Profusely in Decorating Rooms." Then, filling a third of a newspaper column, this:

One of the touchiest touches about the illness of the deeply beloved Mrs. Harding is the absence of cut flowers that formerly distinguished the White House with their prodigality when the lady was able to be up and doing and to fix things with her own fingers.

Mrs. Harding used to say it with flowers profusely, almost too profusely. She never went in the least for the artistic restraint, the economy in decorative effect practiced by those past masters in the art beautiful, the Japanese. The dear lady lying convalescent in the second-story front room of the executive mansion, herself personally surrounded by posies, Ossa upon Pelion piled, has always believed in laying it on lavishly.

You can't have too much of a good thing. So what's the use of scrimping. Fasten crimson oak boughs against the sapphire velvet walls of the blue room where all diplomats present their credentials to the President. Mass floral shrubs as high as the ceiling, in the corners of the great state dining room. Have mantels banked with all blossoms on the current menu. Let tables and consoles overflow with vases of bloom. Even don't forget the stair steps with a row of potted plants doing the Jacob's ladder act up and down close to the wall.

Mrs. Harding, if she had only two loaves of bread, would be the kind to sell one to buy white hyacinths to feed her soul. No mistress of the White House has ever so ebulliently expressed herself in flowers as she. With the beloved invalid, flowers are a necessity, not a luxury. When the government propagating gardens have yielded up their store unavailingly to deck the White House, the wildwoods are rifled of their blooms and foliage.

The most casual ramble through the White House shows eloquently that Mrs. Harding is off her job these days. Flowers are almost as absent as the snows of yesteryear. Towing some pilgrim friends to the greatest shrine in Washington the other day, I said, "You'd know in a minute Mrs. Harding was sick whether you knew it before or not. There are no flowers—her sign manual."

THE GLADIOLUS

STORING GLADIOLUS CORMS.

Dig gladiolus corms when the tops begin to turn brown. Cure them out in the sun and air if possible. Store corms in a cool, dry place where it is not too dry or too moist. Examine them occasionally. The ideal temperature for storage is between 35 and 50 degrees. A cellar is to be preferred to an attic, as the attic is likely to heat too much. They should be placed in baskets or boxes, but not more than three inches deep.

The same method may be used with small corms grown from cormels. Cormels after being dried, or cured, may be placed in boxes, cans or paper bags. It should be remembered that too much moisture will cause mildew and rot.

If the storage room is too dry, the corms will shrink and will not produce the best of flowers the following spring. See that the corms do not freeze.

WHEN TO SOW GLADIOLI.

When is the best time to sow gladiolus seeds?
C. F. C.—Ia.

The best time to sow gladiolus seeds is in the early spring, as soon as the frost has left the ground and the soil has dried so as to be workable. Sow the seeds thinly in drills and cover them about half an inch. You could, if you wished, hasten the flowering period by sowing the seeds under glass in January. When they are large enough, pot them off singly and plant them outdoors when the danger of damage by frost is passed. Treated in this manner, a large number of them will flower the first year, especially among the primulinus varieties. A large proportion of the bulblets produced from seeds grown outdoors as suggested will bloom the following year, coming in later than the larger bulbs, and this enhances their value.

GOOD GLADIOLI.

The observations of Stanley Thorpe, Medway, Mass., who publishes the bulletin of the New England Gladiolus Society, in regard to new varieties of gladioli are certain to be of interest to florists, who must keep up with the times in growing these flowers for market. Mr. Thorpe writes:

"Dorrit, pink with blotch, a large flower, cannot fail to please. It has been greatly admired wherever shown.

"Jenny Lind, a pink with yellow throat, flowers closely set together, makes a medium good-sized spike. It is a pleasing variety and should be in demand.

"Majestic, orange salmon, is a color that draws all eyes.

"Psyche, light salmon rose, forming an immense spike of wavy, odd-shaped flowers, makes a bouquet that is startling.

"Mrs. Frederick C. Peters is a lavender that certainly is pleasing.

"Oriental Beauty, flaked burnt orange and steel-blue, is perhaps the first one noted by visitors on account of its odd coloring and large size.

"Alpine Treasure, a light lilac over white, is about as pretty a variety as I have seen.

"Blushing Beauty, blush pink, a beautiful ruffled variety, is one of the most pleasing varieties, from a point of beauty, that it has been my pleasure to see.

"Stanford is a plain-petaled variety of immense size, a dark maroon or purple that surpasses all others of similar color.

"Mimi Stahlbaum, creamy white tinged with lilac and yellow, is a showy and attractive flower.

"Mrs. Richard Lohrman, creamy shell pink, makes a wonderful and entrancing bouquet.

"Artist, a combination of white, lavender and yellow, is in the same class. While both this and Lohrman are exceedingly beautiful, the spikes are usually kinked.

"Theda Bara proved to be splendid, white, slightly flaked rose with a little crimson in throat.

"Carmen Sylva, a splendid white variety and a good grower, was much admired.

"Perhaps I should not fail to mention a few of the older varieties that are really good. There are Kunderdii Glory and Czar Peter. Pride of Goshen makes a splendid showing, and Youell's Favorite adds attraction to the surroundings. Evelyn Kirtland and Gretchen Zang and the purple Anna Eberius show up well. Recently I sent 250 spikes of Mrs. Dr. Norton for decorations at a wedding and believe the sensation it caused will not be soon forgotten. Later for a funeral I sent Herada and Bertrex, and they caused considerable comment."

HARTFORD, CONN.

Business among the florists here is beginning to show improvement. Mums are the favorite flower and the many football games to be held in this vicinity should increase the sale of them.

Carl Peterson's Whiting lane greenhouses have finished bulb planting; 200,000 bulbs are planted in flats here. A Dodge delivery truck has been added to facilitate the fast delivery of plants, etc. Mums are in demand here.

The W. W. Thomson Co. has finished the new Lord & Burnham house, on Main street, West Hartford. Large quantities of bulbs are being planted for the firm's ever-increasing trade.

At the Cedar Hill cemetery a Hitchings house has been constructed.

W. F. Pinney, at his Burgoyne street houses, has a large quantity of cyclamens for the holiday trade. He reports a heavy demand.

E. A. Drake has placed orders for materials for a house on Palisades avenue, Windsor.

A. S. Pfel, of the Henshaw Floral Co., New York, was a recent visitor.

J. S. Jordon, of the Hall Tobacco Chemical Co., St. Louis, visited the growers recently.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

When Stephen D. Green, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was admiring the chrysanthemums in Danker's Flower Shop, Albany, N. Y., and learned that a basket filled with three dozen blooms of Sun Glow, at $1 apiece, tied with a superb bow of ribbon, was not considered an extraordinary purchase, he remarked it was highly encouraging and only increased his conviction that the apex of both quality and price had not yet been reached. Oconto also was much admired. Commenting on the general run of business following a three months' successful canvass, our worthy confrere returned home filled with optimism.

Conrad C. Gindra, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., commented upon the satisfactory sale of chrysanthemums, adding that, while the queen of autumn reigns, other flowers are secondary with the Vassar queens.

The Saltford Flower Shop, Poughkeepsie, is changing to fuel oil for heating the store and conservatory, giving the contract to the Combustion Co., of Chicago. It will be the first fuel oil heating system to be installed in this locality, and its working will be watched with interest.

Murphy & Schaumburgh, Poughkeepsie, are making a special effort to induce patrons to plant more bulbs and early, the idea being that the first hard frost or fall of snow materially affects sales.

A. A. Laub, New Hamburg, N. Y., has one of the finest showings of carnations, Enchantress Supreme and Matchless, along the Hudson river.

Some of the finest blooms from the establishment of Valentin Burgevin's Sons, Kingston, N. Y., are to be seen at the Albany flower show, November 1 to 4.

Samuel Hansen, North Troy, N. Y., will exhibit some of the same grade of stock that won the silver cup donated by the Albany Cut Flower Exchange.

Sunnyside Greenhouses, Schenectady, N. Y., are cutting fine chrysanthemums, Sun Glow, with Richmond to follow.

START 'EM EARLY

FLOWERING LILIES FOR EASTER.

Holiday Early in 1923.

In order to flower Lilium giganteum for Easter, from twelve to fifteen weeks from potting to marketing is necessary, according to the season and still more to the temperatures at command. Easter this season comes at an early date, April 1, and plants will, in most cases, need pushing from start to finish.

The average giganteum bulb needs a 6-inch pot, but if you chance to be short of this size when the bulbs come in, 4-inch pots will serve. A mixture of three-fourths loam and one-fourth old manure is suitable for compost, and if the soil chances to be quite heavy, it is an advantage to add some sharp sand to make it more porous. Just cover the bulb with soil and be sure to leave ample space for water. If the soil is damp at potting time, no water is needed; if it is dry, a little may be given. After potting, stand the pots below the benches, or several deep on the benches, and cover them with straw in order to prevent their drying out.

Bench After Christmas.

As soon as Christmas stock is out of the way, the lilies should have the bench space, although no harm is done if they are left below the benches until they are three or four inches high. One point which should be specially emphasized is that in the early stages of growth all lilies should be kept on the dry side. An excess of water will cause the roots to decay and the shoots will have a sickly, diseased appearance, or, as some growers express it, the plants develop a "curlensis" type. When the foliage curls up you can be sure that such plants are going to be valueless, and do not waste space with them.

A few words about temperatures. If your bulbs arrive in good season and are given a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees, they will come on all right if given 60 degrees after January 15. It is best to allow twelve weeks from the time the growth shows until the plants are in full bloom, in an average night temperature of 60 degrees. Now, it is possible that many small growers cannot command this heat. If not, you must, for an early Easter, give the lilies the warmest bench you have, and if heating pipes run below them all the better. In the late stages of growth, after the buds can be seen, night temperatures of 70 degrees can be given and the use of tepid water in spraying helps in some measure to accelerate the rate of growth. With giganteums received late, not less than 60 degrees at night must be maintained. This lily will stand hard forcing better than any other in use.

Buds at Lent.

Giganteum is naturally a dwarf lily under cool culture. It is apt to come too dwarf. To draw up the stems somewhat, a shade on the glass helps, but this must be light. As soon as the buds show, and this should be when Lent begins, a clear forty days before Easter, feeding can be started. Liquid cow manure or sheep manure is good, also nitrate of soda at the rate of one pound to fifteen gallons of water. The latter is recommended for backward plants; after it is used once a week for three weeks, a noticeable improvement will result. Discontinue feeding when the flowers start to open. In any batch of lilies there is a great variation in the time the buds will appear, and it will be necessary to move backward plants to the warmest and sunniest part of your house. In the case of early plants, use discretion in moving from a high to a low temperature. If you move half developed flower buds into a temperature of 45 degrees from one of 60 or 65 degrees, you will probably stunt most of the buds. Do not move any to a cooler house until the flowers start to open and even then be careful not to expose them to cold drafts. It is a simple matter to hold lilies back for a week or two in a cool cellar or greenhouse. It is better to do the forcing early rather than just before the holiday, and remember that while lilies command a high Easter value, they are hardly salable in a wholesale market just after the holiday.

Keep Down Pests.

Green aphid is liable to cause serious damage, and you must either spray your plants with nicotine or fumigate once a week to keep them clean. Aphid may hardly be discernible, but thousands may be lurking at the tops of the growths and will seriously disfigure both these and the flower buds if not fought persistently. A simple and safe method of fumigation is to use tobacco papers. These are clean and effective.

Properly grown giganteum lilies will need no supports, but if you do use them, have them painted green and as inconspicuous as possible. Be sure to have all pots well washed before the sales commence. Clean pots greatly enhance the appearance and the selling value of any plant. In forcing plants which are quite late, you can give them almost any amount of heat, provided you keep them well watered and sprayed and the atmosphere moist. Where the flowers are opening, however, a little shade should be given. As soon as the flowers open, remove such plants to a slightly cooler and drier house.

Hampton, Ia.—W. H. Brazelton is planning to erect a greenhouse in the near future.

GROWING SWEET PEAS.

How thickly should sweet peas stand in the rows? What should the conditions of moisture and temperature for proper growth be, and how should one feed the sweet peas? How long after seeding should the first feeding take place?
J. R. S.—Wis.

Sweet pea seedlings should average about an inch apart in the row. The spacing of rows depends largely on local arrangements and the planting season. With 4-foot or 5-foot beds, double rows across the beds twenty-four to thirty inches apart have become standardized practice with many sweet pea specialists. Early plantings are often subject to losses from excessive heat. Should half the plants from double rows drop out, enough will be left to fill the row nicely.

For planting after mums, we usually space the rows across such beds as the above fourteen to sixteen inches apart. Our latest planting is made after St. Valentine's day and at this late season we space the rows as closely as twelve inches. The idea of liberal spacing seems to have a strong hold on many growers, on the supposition that the space will fill up; this is true, if the soil is strong enough, but why have the space idle while waiting for it to fill?

If ground beds are used, little watering need be done during November, December and January. This, again, depends on the extent of the drainage; as long as the lower soil will ball in the hand, it can be safely left alone during these dark months. Overwatering at this time is certain to run the growth up soft and blind, unless more than a normal amount of sunshine prevails.

For sweet peas planted early, a night temperature of 52 to 54 degrees, during a cloudy day about 60 degrees, and 5 to 10 degrees higher with sunshine will be found right. Should a protracted spell of cloudy weather set in, as often happens in November and December, the temperature should be lowered 2 or 3 degrees daily until the skies clear, when the normal temperature should be restored in the same gradual way. The late planting should be started off in a night temperature of 40 to 50 degrees, gradually increasing this as the buds set.

We prefer to incorporate enough bone meal and cattle manure with our soil before planting to carry them through the winter. With the stronger sun and hardened growth in February and March, feeding the early-planted crop with sheep or pulverized cattle manure will prolong the life of the vines, which quickly give out in early spring unless liberally watered and fed.

George J. Ball.

AMONG FRAMINGHAM GROWERS.

S. J. Goddard.

Framingham, Mass., is well known in the horticultural trade, particularly to carnation specialists, for whom there is always much of interest. The establishment of Samuel J. Goddard has a national reputation. From here many notable exhibits have been made, and all carnationists who have attended recent conventions have admired the wonderful gold medal vases of Laddie grown by Mr. Goddard.

Many of Dorner's newest seedlings are growing here, and have a two or three years' tryout before dissemination, if they ever reach that point. No. 73 is a fine and brilliant scarlet. No. 17 is a splendid crimson and there are many more in a wide range of colors. Harvester is now the leading white here and Maine Sunshine the only yellow; the latter proves very free. Laddie fills a number of benches, one being carried over from last year. Surprise, a salmon pink, similar in color to Laddie, appears to be a freer bloomer and is evidently a fine commercial sort; it is planted here quite heavily.

A brilliant seedling, which Mr. Goddard calls Herman Weiss, is a fine thing. The Lark is grown as a variegated; another fine variegated is Eldora. Most of the carnations here are shipped to New York. There are a fine lot of A. F. J. Baur's seedling chrysanthemums here, and they include some excellent varieties. A yellow early-flowering pompon is especially good.

Some roses are grown here to supply the large retail trade, and they look good. Erlangea tomentosa is grown in benches; its pretty mauve-colored flowers sell well later in the season. Didiscus cærulea is also grown. Bouvardias promise a fine holiday crop. Cyclamens, of which there was a good-sized batch, were clean and thrifty; so were begonias, of which Chatelaine is a prime favorite. Echeveria metallica is grown as a pot plant and the flower spikes sell well. Godfrey callas, genistas, azaleas, palms, grevilleas, and a variety of other plants are grown for retail trade. There are some specimens of such acacias as A. pubescens and A. Baileyana which will soon give some fine spray.

A handsome new office and salesroom has recently been built here, as well as a greenhouse containing a fine selection of well grown flowering and foliage plants. There is a good supply of fuel on hand.

William R. Nicholson.

At one time carnations were the leading specialty here and William Nicholson, Sr., always classed them as his special pets. Of late years their numbers have been gradually reduced and this season not a solitary carnation is to be found on the place. Chrysanthemums have displaced carnations and Mr. Nicholson finds them a more profitable crop, in spite of some trouble with thrips, leaf rollers and fungoid affections. Chrysanthemums, as grown here, command the biggest prices in the Boston market and prices have been remarkably good this season.

White and Yellow Frost are grown in thousands. They are planted closely, four and five inches apart, and the crop this season has averaged over $1 per square foot. Early Frost has a long season, if the cuttings are taken at various times, and it will bloom from August 15 until the middle of November. Some magnificent Marigold were being cut at the time we called, October 26, and the first bunches of that ever popular yellow, Bonnaillon, which occupies several benches. The old Mrs. S. T. Murdoch still proves a good seller, as does Brutus. Wells' Late Pink is a Mensa, Charter Oak, yellow; Helen Hubbard, single red; Bronze Godfrey and Pink Godfrey are the leaders. A considerable number of new varieties are being given a try-out; a few will be retained, most of them dropped.

Crops to follow mums include snapdragons, of which there is a specially fine selected strain here; sweet peas, salpiglossis, clarkia, myosotis and perennial larkspur. I missed the wonderful mignonette which used to be a specialty here, and winter-flowering wallflowers have a restricted space now. One or two of the oldest houses will be pulled down the coming season and replaced with a larger modern structure; they have done good service for about thirty years.

John A. Nelson & Son.

The largest carnation specialists in Framingham are John A. Nelson & Son. No one visiting Framingham should fail to visit them. Over 50,000 carnations are planted here, and it would be hard to find a finer lot in the United States. The number of varieties is not large, but all are grown superbly. Morning Glow proves a wonderful bloomer and there was no sign of stem-rot in it here. Pink Delight was smothered with flowers, and is far from being a back number, as grown here. One large house was devoted to Matchless and it certainly was a grand sight. Another house of King construction, 36x109, just completed, planted late, was devoted to Ward. Beacon is retained as a scarlet; other varieties have been tried and dropped. Laddie looked extremely well, as did Maine Sunshine. There were smaller batches of Lassie, Red Matchless, Matchcheer (Good Cheer x Matchless), Benora and Thomas C. Joy. A great sight was a bunch of that old crimson, Harry Fenn; the flower stalks seemed almost as thick as the hairs on a dog's back. Other and newer crimsons had been tried out and Mr. Nelson said the old Fenn proved so much superior that he had to go back to it.

There are some good pompons and single mums here, chiefly Wilcox, Godfrey, Queen Marie and Becky McLean. There were also batches of stevia and one or two other crops, but carnations loom far above all others in importance.

John D. Butterworth.

Although orchids are the great specialty at John D. Butterworth's, one house is devoted to carnations, and they are carrying a splendid crop. Morning Glow carried far more flowers than any other variety, and proves an excellent seller. The Lark, Matchless, Pink Delight, Laddie and Ward all looked well. Exceedingly interesting was a batch of hybrid nerines flowering profusely, some pots carrying eight to twelve spikes each. The flowers sell well.

The orchids here never looked better. Cattleyas are grown in the greatest numbers, and a large proportion are shipped via parcel post to New York, Rochester, New Haven and other cities. A good batch of Cattleya labiata was in flower. Many, however, will not flower until Thanksgiving or later. A

Every Week

There is a rush in the office of The Review on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday like that in a florist's shop the day before Christmas. The rush would be lessened and more time could be given to individual wants of readers and advertisers if they would, as far as they can, mail their communications, whether directed to the editorial or advertising departments, so as to reach this office Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Thank You

popular late variety; also, Thanksgiving Pink. Dakota, a reflexed pink, had been largely cut.

Large quantities of single anemone and pompon mums are grown, the latter being in the greatest numbers. The old dark crimson, Julia Lagravere, is still grown and sells well for the Harvard football games a little later in the season. Doris is an excellent dark variety; New York is a good deep bronze, and November Gold a fine clean yellow. A neat little yellow is Variety, and Elva is a fine white.

Ouray is another fine bronze and Eugene Langauet is an excellent yellow. A considerable number of Mrs. Wilcox is still grown. Western Beauty will be dropped. Climax proves to be a satisfactory bronze. A fine early white anemone is Blanche; when disbudded, it builds up a fine center. It flowers weeks ahead of Garza.

Of the single varieties Buckingham, Bronze Buckingham, Mensa, Yellow considerable number of the hybrid Miss Williams was still flowering; more than 600 plants of this useful variety are grown and, as it comes in at a season when there is a great paucity of cattleyas, it proves especially valuable. Cattleya Trianae were bristling with sheaths, as were other varieties.

Dendrobiums had made up splendid pseudo-bulbs and the nodes were starting to show on the D. nobile section. Oncidium incurvum, O. Rogersii, O. varicosum and O. ornithorhynchum were flowering, including a nice batch of the pure white form of the last named. Phalaenopses, vandas and laelias showed numerous spikes and a house of Miltonia vexillaria, including many heavy specimens in 8-inch pots, could probably not be duplicated in the country. Miltonia Roezlii alba Mr. Butterworth considers a valuable variety, as it gives two crops of its pure white flowers a year.

Cymbidiums in no less than thirty varieties are grown and they are in luxuriant health, making remarkable growths, and numerous spikes were noted. Lycastes, masdevallias, odontoglossums, thunias, laeliocattleyas, anguloas, and many other varieties were seen, all in splendid health. Cypripediums are grown in greatest numbers, next to cattleyas, and much at home they are; numerous big specimens of the old insigne carry up to fifty spikes each and splendid batches of Harefield Hall, Laura Kimball and insigne Sandersæ were growing like weeds. As many as eighteen flowers were counted on a 6-inch pot of Sandersæ. Numerous hybrids were in luxuriant health. Overcrowding was evident in some cases and B. Butterworth and George W. Butterworth, the enthusiastic active members of the firm, are planning for a couple of more houses next season. The new show house and salesroom have already abundantly proved their value, and a closing word of appreciation must be said of the well laid-out flower garden of excellent geometric design, which is in marked contrast to the plantings seen at so many floral establishments.

NEW YORK FLORISTS' DRIVE.

A committee consisting of Frank R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Arno H. Nehrling and R. J. Roskelly, of Ithaca, N. Y.; F. A. Danker, of Albany, N. Y.; Werner Buttman, of Syracuse, N. Y., and W. A. Adams, of Buffalo, met with the state fair commission in Syracuse, Tuesday, October 24, and presented a plan for a new horticultural building. The scheme for this building entails an expenditure of $350,000, and when completed it will be the most modern type of building for horticultural and floricultural exhibition purposes in America. The state fair commission unanimously endorsed the plan of the committee.

SAGINAW-BAY CITY MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society will be held at the store of Boehringer Bros., Bay City, Monday evening, November 6.

The main discussion will center about the convention of the Michigan State Florists' Association, at Ann Arbor, an account of which appears elsewhere in this issue. A large party, it is expected, will go from Saginaw and vicinity. There will be a good showing of mums, especially from Bay City and Saginaw florists.

Another item of interest at this meeting will be the naming of a place and time for the local mum show, in regard to which all growers hereabouts are enthusiastic; there are cash prizes at stake. Henry Goetz, Sec'y.

MCCALLUM ABROAD.

Some snapshots taken on his trip abroad convey to home folks some of the interesting sights E. J. McCallum, head of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, saw across the water. One shows the aeroplane in which he traveled from Berlin to Dresden. Another gives truth to the reputed sign in German hotels that foreigners were charged 200 per cent above rates charged natives. Others gave typical views of present conditions in Germany. Not all could be reproduced by the engraver. One on

ROOTING POINSETTIAS.

Kindly advise me of the best method of rooting poinsettia cuttings in the south. When should the cuttings be taken? What size should they be, and how are they planted? C. W. O.—La.

There are three important things to do in rooting poinsettias. Use only heel cuttings about three inches long. Use clean, sharp sand and water the cuttings thoroughly only once. Do not allow the shoots to become over three inches long before taking them off as cuttings, and cut them right off at the heel. Do not put the cuttings too deep in the sand. Insert them only far enough to make them firm. Water them thoroughly only once, when the cuttings are put in the sand. The house should be sprayed early in the mornings and then, after the cuttings have dried off or about 10 a. m., cover them with newspaper. Remove the newspapers about 3 p. m. and spray the house again. The cuttings should be covered during these hours for the first week, after which time they will no longer need shading. The house will need spraying down two or three times per day until the cuttings are rooted sufficiently to pot. Poinsettia plants should be potted in medium rich sandy loam. Be sparing in the feed to begin with, in order that the plants may be short-jointed and of stocky growth. Subsequent feeding nearer Christmas time will bring out the color of both the flowers and foliage.

W. B. Paterson.

"PLEASE OMIT FLOWERS."

I noted in last week's Review the article, "Please Omit Flowers." The greater part of our business is funeral work, and we naturally are hard hit when some one uses this phrase. Here is our method of combating it:

Usually when a family makes this request, the members want a design or spray for themselves, but they are refused it, on the ground that, as they asked that no flowers be sent, none will. The absence of flowers naturally makes the funeral more cheerless than ever, if possible. This is a dose of strong medicine, but anyone who denies friends the right to express their sympathy, needs it. The news of this refusal spreads, and we have the practice of requesting the omission of flowers knocked on the head for a while.

Also, we keep on the good side of our undertakers, and they do their best to discourage the idea.

Charles R. Green.

E. G. HILL HONORED.

Three prominent citizens of Richmond, Ind., last week were elected to honorary membership in the Richmond Rotary Club, and one of these three is none other than E. Gurney Hill, the rose grower whose fame is not only national, but international. Honorary membership in the Rotary Club of Richmond can be conferred, it is stated, only on persons who are nationally conspicuous for their achievements. The ceremonies incident to the reception of these members were held at the greenhouses of Mr. Hill, where the entire membership of the club assembled, October 25. At the time the Indianapolis Star printed the portraits of the three and said of Mr. Hill:

Mr. Hill was born in England, coming to the United States when he was 5 years old. He and his father came to Richmond in 1881, where they conducted a florists' business. Mr. Hill is internationally known as the originator of Columbia, Premier and Butterfly. He was awarded gold medals by the city of Portland and by Paris, France, and the American Rose Society.

In Mr. Hill's office can be seen fifty handsome prizes won on his superior flowers. He has received, among others, the gold medal awarded by the French Chrysanthemum Society, the French National Rose Society, a silver cup given by the Royal Horticultural Society of Great Britain, and the gold medal for the finest American rose, awarded once every five years.

For many years Mr. Hill has bought and tried out all the varieties of roses that seemed to have possibilities. He made the Ophelia rose the parent of a new type which included General MacArthur, Theodore Roosevelt, Richmond, Rhea Reid, Robin Hood and others. Combined with Mrs. George Sawyer, Ophelia has given Columbia, and with the Mrs. Charles Russell, the famous rose, Premier.

The other two men elected to honorary membership in the Rotary Club were Timothy Nicholson, Quaker leader, and John E. Bundy, whose paintings of Indiana forests are becoming widely known.

Sioux City, Ia.—The name of the Rosery Flower Shop has been changed to the Rosery Garden.

GROWING POT PLANTS.

I have no real success with pot plants. Everything in the benches grows finely and blooms well. Plants potted in the same soil, or slightly richer, fill the small pots with roots, but when they are shifted on to 4½-inch or 5-inch pots the tops refuse to grow. I have often found a chrysanthemum, cineraria, schizanthus or begonia the top of which showed every sign of starvation, stunted growth, small, yellow leaves, etc., while the pot seemed to be filled with lively white roots. Upon shifting the plant to a larger pot, the top still refused to grow much, but the roots continued to fill up the pot rapidly. I have tried making the soil still richer than it was, but lose many plants then, as the roots rot. Is it possible that a too small quantity of water would cause the plants to act in this manner?

Is it a good plan to soak potted plants in pans of water occasionally? Would the sun shining on the pots make a difference? I have some sunny shelves where I keep geraniums, etc. I seldom have a plant die there, but they seem stunted and grow slowly. I have no trouble at all with bulbous stock. My soil is a sandy loam, to which I add one-fourth to one-third well rotted manure and more or less peat, which has been well weathered. C. F. G.—Minn.

The fact that your plants thrive well in the benches and do quite the reverse as pot-grown plants shows that the compost cannot be the whole source of trouble. Probably you have allowed your plants to become too much potbound before shifting them. Such plants do not do well, and if the ball of soil chances to be dry when the repotting is done, they are sure to do unsatisfactorily, for no matter how well you soak the plant after potting, the ball is pretty sure to remain dry. Pot along your plants before they get matted with roots and never allow them to become dry.

I should not add peat to the compost unless it may be for ferns or hard-wooded plants like ericas and azaleas. If you have any land in sod and can pile up some of the sod before the winter sets in, with layers of good cow or horse manure, you will have an excellent potting medium next spring.

When the pot plants get dry, it is an excellent plan to soak them in a pail or tub of water. This practice is also excellent for plants in the house, but it is too slow and costly a job to soak plants in this way regularly. The fact that the sun shines on pots at this season need cause no worry, as it warms the pots and makes the roots more active. Too much or too little water is harmful to all plants. Some varieties show harm earlier than others. As a general rule, plants are more damaged if too much than too little water is applied. Geraniums will do well on shelves in the winter time, and are best run on the dry side. Any growth they make will be short-jointed. Such plants, when potted along, will give a good account of themselves.

Merely give sufficient water at this season to keep the plants alive. They will make a mass of small fibrous roots, and then when given some good loam to grow in, they will make great headway. C. W.

DRYING OFF GLOXINIAS.

Kindly advise me whether or not I should dry off a batch of gloxinias in 4-inch pots. The plants, the seeds of which were sown at the end of May, are growing well. J. T.—Pa.

It will not be easy to keep such plants as gloxinias, gesnerias and tuberous-rooted begonias going after the end of October, and it will most certainly not pay you to attempt to keep them growing. Gradually reduce the water supply, and when the foliage has all disappeared, lay the pots on their side in a dry, warm place where there can be no drip. You can shake out the corms and pack them in sand until they are wanted again for forcing. C. W.

PRIMULA MALACOIDES.

Is a temperature of 50 degrees at night too cool for Primula malacoides? The plants do not seem to grow much. J. T.—Pa.

A temperature of 50 degrees at night is somewhat higher than I grow this primula in. I find 45 degrees gives more stocky plants, carrying better-colored flowers, and even 40 degrees is high enough if you do not want the plants in flower early. Some growers attempt each year to force this lovely and graceful primrose for Christmas. The plants are usually leggy and not of good quality. From the middle of January until the end of March is the season when P. malacoides is to be seen at its best, and the cooler it is grown the better the plants will be, always provided that the watering is done carefully. C. W.

TEMPERATURE FOR CYCLAMENS.

Will you kindly inform me as to what night temperature cyclamen seedlings should have from the time they are germinated until pricked off? We now have ours in a 60-degree house, but they do not seem to be doing well, and we wonder if the temperature is too high. M. F. C.—Utah.

You are not keeping your plants too warm. A night temperature of 55 degrees is all right for small seedling cyclamens. Almost all of the growers have their little plants in flats at this season, and a great proportion of the plants have only a solitary leaf so far. The growth is rather slow now and will be for some time. I presume your seedlings are in pans or flats. Let them remain there until they have two or three leaves; then transplant them into flats containing plenty of leaf-mold. Allow them to remain there until they are large enough to go into 3-inch pots. A shelf will be the best place for your little cyclamens for some time. C. W.

Newsy Items from All Over

Pana, Ill.—A. N. Nielsen, Inc., rose growers, now is known as the Pana Floral Co.

Summit, N. J.—Charles Daum, horticulturist in charge of the greenhouses at the northern extremity of Branch Brook park, placed an autumn exhibit of 5,000 chrysanthemum plants on display in those greenhouses Sunday, October 29.

Valparaiso, Ind.—Reinhart & Adams, who recently removed from 70 South Washington street, to larger and better quarters at 123 Lincoln way, have found business so good that they are planning to build a new greenhouse next spring. "I can't get along without The Review," says W. J. Adams, "and I don't think any other florist can if he has taken it for a while."

Hibbing, Minn.—Conrad Wolf, who has for several years been superintendent of Hibbing's famous park system and public greenhouses, is preparing to go into the florists' business on his own account. He is building a new double store and conservatory on a prominent corner and has contracted with the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, for the fixtures. Mr. Wolf knows the florists' business through some years of experience with Seekins & Leborious, of Duluth.

Belle Plaine, Ia.—H. W. Fuller has opened a new greenhouse and reports good business.

Galesburg, Ill.—I. L. Pillsbury & Son are constructing a new greenhouse, as an addition to the east end of their range at 65 Locust street. The new building is 40x100 feet, and will be used for growing roses.

Amesbury, Mass.—John Cormley, a well known florist, and Miss Ethel V. Sherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Sherman, of Ashmont, Mass., were married at the home of the bride Tuesday afternoon, October 24. The bridesmaid was Miss Sylvia Cormley, sister of the groom, and the best man was Albert L. Sherman, brother of the bride. The bride carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

Houston, Tex.—The flower store of the R. C. Kerr Floral Co. has been moved to its new quarters, at 1007 Main street, with the result that the floor space of the store is about double that of the old location. The show rooms and windows are finished in old ivory and gray. The center of the floor contains a large fountain, which lends still further attractiveness to the place. A refrigerating machine for the store is contemplated by the owner.

considerable number of the hybrid Miss Williams was still flowering; more than 600 plants of this useful variety are grown and, as it comes in at a season when there is a great paucity of cattleyas, it proves especially valuable. Cattleya Trianae were bristling with sheaths, as were other varieties.

Dendrobiums had made up splendid pseudo-bulbs and the nodes were starting to show on the D. nobile section. Oncidium incurvum, O. Rogersii, O. varicosum and O. ornithorhynchum were flowering, including a nice batch of the pure white form of the last named. Phalenopses, vandas and lae-lia showed numerous spikes and a house of Miltonia vexillaria, including many heavy specimens in 8-inch pots, could probably not be duplicated in the country. Miltonia Roezlii alba Mr. Butterworth considers a valuable variety, as it gives two crops of its pure white flowers a year.

Cymbidiums in no less than thirty varieties are grown and they are in luxuriant health, making remarkable growths, and numerous spikes were noted. Lycastes, masdevallias, odontoglossums, thunias, helioecattleyas, anguloas, and many other varieties were seen, all in splendid health. Cypripediums are grown in greatest numbers, next to cattleyas, and much at home they are; numerous big specimens of the old insigne carry up to fifty spikes each and splendid batches of Harefield Hall, Laura Kimball and insigne Sanderae were growing like weeds. As many as eighteen flowers were counted on a 6-inch pot of Sanderae. Numerous hybrids were in luxuriant health. Overcrowding was evident in some cases and B. Butterworth and George W. Butterworth, the enthusiastic active members of the firm, are planning for a couple of more houses next season. The new show house and salesroom have already abundantly proved their value, and a closing word of appreciation must be said of the well laid-out flower garden of excellent geometric design, which is in marked contrast to the plantings seen at so many floral establishments.

NEW YORK FLORISTS' DRIVE.

A committee consisting of Frank R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Arno H. Nehrling and R. J. Roskelly, of Ithaca, N. Y.; F. A. Danker, of Albany, N. Y.; Werner Buttman, of Syracuse, N. Y.; and W. A. Adams, of Buffalo, met with the state fair commission in Syracuse, Tuesday, October 24, and presented a plan for a new horticultural building. The scheme for this building entails an expenditure of $350,000, and when completed it will be the most modern type of building for horticultural and floricultural exhibition purposes in America. The state fair commission unanimously endorsed the plan of the committee.

SAGINAW-BAY CITY MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society will be held at the store of Boehringer Bros., Bay City, Monday evening, November 6.

The main discussion will center about the convention of the Michigan State Florists' Association, at Ann Arbor, an account of which appears elsewhere in this issue. A large party, it is expected, will go from Saginaw and vicinity. There will be a good showing of mums, especially from Bay City and Saginaw florists.

Another item of interest at this meeting will be the naming of a place and time for the local mum show, in regard to which all growers hereabouts are enthusiastic; there are cash prizes at stake.

McCALLUM ABROAD.

Some snapshots taken on his trip abroad convey to home folks some of the interesting sights E. J. McCallum, head of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, saw across the water. One shows the aeroplane in which he traveled from Berlin to Dresden. Another gives truth to the reputed sign in German hotels that foreigners were charged 200 per cent above rates charged natives. Others gave typical views of present conditions in Germany. Not all could be reproduced by the engraver. One on

ROOTING POINSETTIAS.

Kindly advise me of the best method of rooting poinsettia cuttings in the south. When should the cuttings be taken? What size should they be, and how are they planted? C. W. O.—La.

There are three important things to do in rooting poinsettias. Use only heel cuttings about three inches long. Use clean, sharp sand and water the cuttings thoroughly only once. Do not allow the shoots to become over three inches long before taking them off as cuttings, and cut them right off at the heel. Do not put the cuttings too deep in the sand. Insert them only far enough to make them firm. Water them thoroughly only once, when the cuttings are put in the sand. The house should be sprayed early in the mornings and then, after the cuttings have dried off or about 10 a. m., cover them with newspaper. Remove the newspapers about 3 p. m. and spray the house again. The cuttings should be covered during these hours for the first week, after which time they will no longer need shading. The house will need spraying down two or three times per day until the cuttings are rooted sufficiently to pot. Poinsettia plants should be potted in medium rich sandy loam. Be sparing in the feed to begin with, in order that the plants may be short-jointed and of stocky growth. Subsequent feeding nearer Christmas time will bring out the color of both the flowers and foliage.

"PLEASE OMIT FLOWERS."

I noted in last week's Review the article, "Please Omit Flowers." The greater part of our business is funeral work, and we naturally are hard hit when some one uses this phrase. Here is our method of combating it:

Usually when a family makes this request, the members want a design or spray for themselves, but they are refused it, on the ground that, as they asked that no flowers be sent, none will. The absence of flowers naturally makes the funeral more cheerless than ever, if possible. This is a dose of strong medicine, but anyone who denies friends the right to express their sympathy, needs it. The news of this refusal spreads, and we have the practice of requesting the omission of flowers knocked on the head for a while.

Also, we keep on the good side of our undertakers, and they do their best to discourage the idea.

E. G. HILL HONORED.

Three prominent citizens of Richmond, Ind., last week were elected to honorary membership in the Richmond Rotary Club, and one of these three is none other than E. Gurney Hill, the rose grower whose fame is not only national, but international. Honorary membership in the Rotary Club of Richmond can be conferred, it is stated, only on persons who are nationally conspicuous for their achievements. The ceremonies incident to the reception of these members were held at the greenhouses of Mr. Hill, where the entire membership of the club assembled, October 25. At the time the Indianapolis Star printed the portraits of the three and said of Mr. Hill:

Mr. Hill was born in England, coming to the United States when he was 5 years old. He and his father came to Richmond in 1881, where they conducted a florists' business. Mr. Hill is internationally known as the originator of Columbia, Premier and Butterfly. He was awarded gold medals by the city of Portland and by Paris, France, and the American Rose Society.

In Mr. Hill's office can be seen fifty handsome prizes won on his superior flowers. He has received, among others, the gold medal awarded by the French Chrysanthemum Society, the French National Rose Society, a silver cup given by the Royal Horticultural Society of Great Britain, and the gold medal for the finest American rose, awarded once every five years.

For many years Mr. Hill has bought and tried out all the varieties of roses that seemed to have possibilities. He made the Ophelia rose the parent of a new type which included General MacArthur, Theodore Roosevelt, Richmond, Rhea Reid, Robin Hood and others. Combined with Mrs. George Sawyer, Ophelia has given Columbia, and with the Mrs. Charles Russell, the famous rose, Premier.

The other two men elected to honorary membership in the Rotary Club were Timothy Nicholson, Quaker leader, and John E. Bundy, whose paintings of Indiana forests are becoming widely known.

POT PLANTS

GROWING POT PLANTS.

I have no real success with pot plants. Everything in the benches grows finely and blooms well. Plants potted in the same soil, or slightly richer, fill the small pots with roots, but when they are shifted on to 4½-inch or 5-inch pots the tops refuse to grow. I have often found a chrysanthemum, cineraria, schizanthus or begonia the top of which showed every sign of starvation, stunted growth, small, yellow leaves, etc., while the pot seemed to be filled with lively white roots. Upon shifting the plant to a larger pot, the top still refused to grow much, but the roots continued to fill up the pot rapidly. I have tried making the soil still richer than it was, but lose many plants then, as the roots rot. Is it possible that a too small quantity of water would cause the plants to act in this manner?

Is it a good plan to soak potted plants in pans of water occasionally? Would the sun shining on the pots make a difference? I have some sunny shelves where I keep geraniums, etc. I seldom have a plant die there, but they seem stunted and grow slowly. I have no trouble at all with bulbous stock. My soil is a sandy loam, to which I add one-fourth to one-third well rotted manure and more or less peat, which has been well weathered. C. F. G.—Minn.

The fact that your plants thrive well in the benches and do quite the reverse as pot-grown plants shows that the compost cannot be the whole source of trouble. Probably you have allowed your plants to become too much potbound before shifting them. Such plants do not do well, and if the ball of soil chanced to be dry when the repotting is done, they are sure to do unsatisfactorily, for no matter how well you soak the plant after potting, the ball is pretty sure to remain dry. Pot along your plants before they get matted with roots and never allow them to become dry.

I should not add peat to the compost unless it may be for ferns or hard-wooded plants like ericas and azaleas. If you have any land in sod and can pile up some of the sod before the winter sets in, with layers of good cow or horse manure, you will have an excellent potting medium next spring.

When the pot plants get dry, it is an excellent plan to soak them in a pail or tub of water. This practice is also excellent for plants in the house, but it is too slow and costly a job to soak plants in this way regularly. The fact that the sun shines on pots at this season need cause no worry, as it warms the pots and makes the roots more active. Too much or too little water is harmful to all plants. Some varieties show harm earlier than others. As a general rule, plants are more damaged if too much than too little water is applied. Geraniums will do well on shelves in the winter time, and are best run on the dry side. Any growth they make will be short-jointed. Such plants, when potted along, will give a good account of themselves.

Merely give sufficient water at this season to keep the plants alive. They will make a mass of small fibrous roots, and then when given some good loam to grow in, they will make great headway. C. W.

DRYING OFF GLOXINIAS.

Kindly advise me whether or not I should dry off a batch of gloxinias in 4-inch pots. The plants, the seeds of which were sown at the end of May, are growing well. J. T.—Pa.

It will not be easy to keep such plants as gloxinias, gesnerias and tuberous-rooted begonias going after the end of October, and it will most certainly not pay you to attempt to keep them growing. Gradually reduce the water supply, and when the foliage has all disappeared, lay the pots on their side in a dry, warm place where there can be no drip. You can shake out the corms and pack them in sand until they are wanted again for forcing. C. W.

PRIMULA MALACOIDES.

Is a temperature of 50 degrees at night too cool for Primula malacoides? The plants do not seem to grow much. J. T.—Pa.

A temperature of 50 degrees at night is somewhat higher than I grow this

OBITUARY

Charles Frost.

Charles Frost, the fame of whose Kenilworth strain of pansy seed had spread over the country, died September 22, at Kenilworth, N. J. Mr. Frost had grown some other flowers, but his specialty was pansies, of which he grew nearly a hundred named varieties.

Mr. Frost was born in England and came to this country when he was 24 years of age. When he landed he made his way to Brooklyn, N. Y., staying there a number of years; thence he went west and remained there for four years. Returning to New York, he went to Kenilworth, N. J., where he started in the fruit business, later engaging in truck farming. After several years at this, Mr. Frost began growing flowers and built two or three houses; he took up the culture of pansies and came to be considered an expert on them. He had resided in Kenilworth for the last forty-four years.

V. E. Rice.

V. E. Rice, of Elyria, O., who for many years was in business at Oberlin, O., passed away Thursday, October 26, at Lakeside hospital, where he had been operated upon for cancer of the throat.

Although Mr. Rice had not been active in business for seven years, he visited among the florists of Lorain, O., and his visits will be missed by his many friends. P. W.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

The attention of all florists' clubs and societies, and horticultural organizations desirous of having representation on the society's board of directors is directed to the following extract from the by-laws, governing such affiliation:

Societies or kindred organizations of professional florists, gardeners and horticulturists, national in character, whose membership includes 100 or more members of the S. A. F. in good standing, shall be entitled to one representative on the board of directors. Clubs and other organizations of professional florists, formed within a state, and not national in character, shall be entitled to one representative on the board of directors, provided that any such club or organization shall include in its membership the number of S. A. F. members in good standing prescribed in the following specification: Class A—100 S. A. F. members: Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, California. Class B—Seventy-five S. A. F. members: Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, Missouri, Texas, Maryland, Wisconsin. Class C—Fifty S. A. F. members: Minnesota, Kansas, District of Columbia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Colorado, Connecticut. Class D—Twenty-five S. A. F. members: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Delaware, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, Washington, Oregon. Any such representative shall be the president of the organization represented, and must be a member of this society. Any elective officer or appointed director shall not be eligible as a representative of any such organization. When the president of an organization is already a director, the vice-president shall be eligible for the office. Any organization applying for representation shall submit to the secretary of this society a certified copy of the resolutions adopted by their organization expressing its desire for such representation on the board of directors, together with a complete list of its membership. It shall be the secretary's duty to confirm same and submit it to the society's president for final confirmation. Announcement of the acceptance of such representative as a member of the board of directors shall be made by the president. The expenses of any such representative in connection with his attendance at any meeting of the board of directors shall be borne by the organi-

Organizations making application under this by-law are urged to send their membership lists to the secretary as early as possible, to facilitate the checking of the same with the society's membership roll. The appointments to the board are made by the incoming president January 1 and are announced as of that date, together with all other appointments. In previous years much confusion has been caused by delayed applications, and it is desired to avoid such a condition in future.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Pay Up, Please!

The appropriation of $2,500 made by the F. T. D. to the campaign fund helps materially to forward the objects of the campaign, and shows an earnestness in the publicity movement much to be commended, particularly as many members of this association individually are liberal contributors.

The full-page advertisement in colors, which is to appear in six leading magazines in December, has been completed, and a copy will be mailed to every subscriber early in November; also, to every member of the F. T. D. The design is considered to be admirably appropriate. A handsome girl in evening costume appears to be looking over a table of Christmas presents, from which she has taken a large bunch of fresh red roses, these appearing to have engaged her especial attention. The motive is well planned, and the subdued coloring creates a rich effect.

We are approaching the end of the year, and advertising plans for the remaining months of winter and the spring season are being formulated. As everyone knows, the pressure upon the advertising columns of the larger magazines during these months is particularly heavy; consequently, contracts for space in them must be made well in advance of the publication dates. The committee is necessarily governed in the making of these contracts by the amount of money at their disposal; therefore, it is urgently hoped that all subscribers who are delinquent in their subscription pledges will make immediate remittance to the secretary, so that there need be no falling down in the plans they are endeavoring to complete.

All in the trade who have not yet subscribed could not render support to the movement at a better time than now. Some active publicity during the next few months would mean much to our industry, and there is need of no further demonstration of the value of magazine advertising to convince us that it is the best tonic conceivable for the florists' business at large, and insures a continuance of the prestige of our million-dollar slogan, "Say It with Flowers."

TROUBLE WITH ASPARAGUS.

I have sent a specimen of our Asparagus Sprengeri, with which we are having difficulty. They grow vigorously and then suddenly are affected as is the specimen. Will you inform me as to the difficulty? E. R. A.—Md.

All of the foliage had fallen from the asparagus when it was received, and it was impossible to tell anything from the shoots sent. If your asparagus is turning brown or quite pale before reaching maturity, something is lacking in the soil or the plants have suffered from too much, or too little, water. If you have a good, rich soil, well balanced, such as would grow mums, roses or carnations, it should suit A. Sprengeri.

The plants would need a top-dressing of manure if they were carried over a second season, as is often done. A great deal more harm comes from overwatering the plants in beds or benches than from allowing them to become dry. Without knowing anything of your growing conditions, the writer is willing to hazard the opinion that your trouble was caused by overwatering at the root. C. W.

TROUBLE WITH BLACK INSECT.

How can I get rid of little black spiders in my greenhouse? I do not know whether they are a form of red spider or not. They form webs on the beds and from plant to plant every night. C. G.—N. M.

Sometimes black fly or black aphid is mistaken for spiders. These can be readily controlled by either fumigation or spraying with a nicotine extract. The writer does not know the particular spider you may have, but it would seem as though these two remedies would clean them out, if applied regularly. C. W.

Noblesville, Ind.—Meikel & Warner are planning to hold a flower show November 4 and 5, at their greenhouses, on Logan street. The chief display will be of chrysanthemums.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

A PAGE OF TIMELY AID AND ADVICE TO GROWERS

WINTER-FLOWERING GERANIUMS.

Bright-colored flowers are in good demand for Thanksgiving and Christmas, but especially the latter holiday. We have poinsettias, euphorbias and certain berried plants of bright colors, but I have always found that there are many who would prefer a nice double scarlet zonal geranium to even a poinsettia or a cyclamen. Nicely bloomed plants of Nutt, Ricard or other doubles, as well as good bright singles, like Paul Crampel, Single Grant, and Maxine Kovalevsky, prove good sellers. The doubles are best adapted for shipping and the singles for local trade. Plants in from 4-inch to 6-inch pots will be found the most serviceable. To have such stock in the best condition for Christmas, it should be given a bright, sunny house and a position well up to the glass, in a house with as dry an atmosphere as possible and a minimum temperature of 50 degrees. Avoid the use of liquid manure on these geraniums, as it promotes a soft, rank growth. An occasional light top-dressing of fine bone promotes a stocky, healthy growth and this is the type of plant which will bloom properly.

POTTING GIGANTEUM LILIES.

Giganteum lilies, which are mostly grown for Easter forcing, are now coming to hand and should be cared for as soon as possible after arrival. Unlike Dutch and French bulbs, the various lilies, the bulbs of which are built up with scales, soon shrivel and suffer if kept long out of the soil. Pots six inches in diameter are those most generally in service for lilies. For small-sized bulbs, 5-inch pots will answer. If pots of these large sizes are in use, you can pot in 3½-inch or 4-inch pots and later transfer to 5-inch and 6-inch pots. I like, however, to place them in the pots they are to flower in if possible. For compost, we are often told that "any old soil" or "almost any kind of dirt" will answer for lilies. Do not believe it for a moment. Lilies do not want a rich soil and resent having any fresh manure come in contact with their roots at the start. Well decayed sod, with some well rotted and pulverized old cow manure added, is ideal for lilies. If your soil is heavy, add a little sharp sand or fine charcoal. Keep the bulbs well down in the pots and remember that most of the roots of this and many other lilies come from the base of the new growths on the top of the bulbs and not at the bottom. When you barely cover the bulbs, as in the case of tulips or hyacinths, many roots will appear above ground, instead of below.

L. longiflorum giganteum likes warm treatment from start to finish. If your soil at potting time is fairly moist, don't water at all; wait until the pots dry out well and the roots become active.

Herein lies much of the secret of successful culture. If you water freely before the pots are filled with roots, you will have many sickly, diseased plants. If you run them drier, the number will be greatly reduced. Plants after potting can be stood several deep on the beds for a time, if space is at a premium, but do not give them a cold house to start in; give not less than 50 degrees at night and you will find 55 degrees better.

EARLY PAPER WHITES.

Some Paper Whites come in useful for Thanksgiving, and a batch placed in gentle heat now will flower in ample time. Keep other bulbs cool, as there is danger of too many coming in while the chrysanthemum season lasts. Late bulbs will now be better if placed in the soil; they fritter away much of their strength if kept out of the soil too long. Start some Soleil d'Or and you can have them also in flower for Thanksgiving. Some growers plant their Paper Whites in benches. Flats, however, are far better for the small grower, as they can be forced or retarded as wanted.

PELARGONIUMS.

Cut-back pelargonium plants are now making a vigorous growth and will soon need repotting. Cuttings put in when the plants were headed back are also starting to grow apace and should have their tops pinched out to make them more bushy. Pot the pelargoniums firmly and grow them cool at all times. If grown warm, they will be more subject to attacks of both green and white fly. For the former, fumigation is sufficient, but hydrocyanic acid gas alone will kill the latter. Spraying, however, with such remedies as Thrip Juice, nicotine extracts or a soapy remedy will greatly reduce their numbers and discourage them. Pelargoniums such as Easter Greeting, Lucy Becker and Wurtembergia prove useful as Easter plants.

PRIMULAS FOR CHRISTMAS.

As plants which are easily grown and can be profitably sold at a comparatively low price, primulas appeal to many florists. They can be had in fairly good condition for the holidays, if treated properly. A shelf in a house kept at 50 to 55 degrees at night for the next few weeks will bring along the Primula sinensis in good time. If there are a few flowers open or even one truss, it will be ample, and scarlet and bright pink colors are the next in demand. Primula obconica is less brittle than Primula sinensis and is altogether a better market plant. There have been great improvements in the strain in late years and the flowers are now double the size of even a decade ago. This primrose can be had in better shape than any other member of the family for Christmas and is splendid for window boxes and for working in among varied plant assortments. Unfortunately, a great and growing prejudice exists against it, on account of its poisonous properties. While probably nine-tenths of growers and buyers are immune from any danger of irritation when handling the plants, the remaining tenth are more susceptible and occasionally are badly poisoned. For that reason some growers have dropped its culture and some retailers refuse to handle it; all the same, a large number are sold each year.

Primula malacoides, the most graceful and decorative of all the winter-flowering primulas, appears at Christmas each year, but is never seen at its best until later in the winter. It resents warm treatment, and, in order to have nice, stocky plants of a fine, deep pink color, a low temperature is needed; 40 to 45 degrees at night is ample for it.

SHAMROCKS.

Many thousands of shamrocks in small pots or pans are sold annually for St. Patrick's day. The present is a suitable time to make a sowing of seeds of this much-prized clover. Sow the seed in pans or shallow flats in light, sandy soil and barely cover the seeds. A temperature of 50 to 52 degrees will be found suitable. The seed is small and can be sown thickly. When the seedlings are of sufficient size to handle, they should be carefully transferred to other flats, and they can be pricked out quite closely. They should be given a light, sunny position, and care should be taken not to expose them to cold drafts, or the foliage will soon become covered with mildew; such plants are valueless. In a dry, arid atmosphere, the writer has sometimes known red spider to attack the plants, but, as a general thing, mildew is the disease to be guarded against. Later in the season the plants must again be transferred from flats to little pots or shallow pans, in which they are to become well established before March 17.

CALLAS.

These useful plants should now be starting to bloom nicely. Do not plant them among your carnations or mums. It does not pay. Far better are they grown in pots or shallow boxes, unless you can give them a bench or bed to themselves. Where only a few dozen are grown, pot culture should prove the most profitable. As soon as you notice white roots appearing on the surface of the pots, give them some plant food and you will find nothing better than a tablespoonful of fine bone to each 7-inch or 8-inch pot every ten days right along. You will be surprised to notice how the roots take this food.

OBITUARY

Charles Frost.

Charles Frost, the fame of whose Kenilworth strain of pansy seed had spread over the country, died September 22, at Kenilworth, N. J. Mr. Frost had grown some other flowers, but his specialty was pansies, of which he grew nearly a hundred named varieties.

Mr. Frost was born in England and came to this country when he was 24 years of age. When he landed he made his way to Brooklyn, N. Y., staying there a number of years; thence he went west and remained there for four years. Returning to New York, he went to Kenilworth, N. J., where he started in the fruit business, later engaging in truck farming. After several years at this, Mr. Frost began growing flowers and built two or three houses; he took up the culture of pansies and came to be considered an expert on them. He had resided in Kenilworth for the last forty-four years.

V. E. Rice.

V. E. Rice, of Elyria, O., who for many years was in business at Oberlin, O., passed away Thursday, October 26, at Lakeside hospital, where he had been operated upon for cancer of the throat.

Although Mr. Rice had not been active in business for seven years, he visited among the florists of Lorain, O., and his visits will be missed by his many friends. P. W.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

The attention of all florists' clubs and societies, and horticultural organizations desirous of having representation on the society's board of directors is directed to the following extract from the by-laws, governing such affiliation:

Societies or kindred organizations of professional florists, gardeners and horticulturists, national in character, whose membership includes 100 or more members of the S. A. F. in good standing, shall be entitled to one representative on the board of directors. Clubs and other organizations of professional florists, formed within a state, and not national in character, shall be entitled to one representative on the board of directors, provided that any such club or organization shall include in its membership the number of S. A. F. members in good standing prescribed in the following specification: Class A—100 S. A. F. members; Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, California. Class B—Seventy-five S. A. F. members; Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, Missouri, Texas, Maryland, Wisconsin. Class C—Fifty S. A. F. members; Minnesota, Kansas, District of Columbia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Colorado, Connecticut. Class D—Twenty-five S. A. F. members; Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Delaware, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, Washington, Oregon. Any such representative shall be the president of the organization represented, and must be a member of this society. Any elective officer or appointed director shall not be eligible as a representative of any such organization. When the president of an organization is already a director, the vice-president shall be eligible for the office. Any organization applying for representation shall submit to the secretary of this society a certified copy of the resolutions adopted by their organization expressing its desire for such representation on the board of directors, together with a complete list of its membership. It shall be the secretary's duty to confirm same and submit it to the society's president for final confirmation. Announcement of the acceptance of such representative as a member of the board of directors shall be made by the president. The expenses of any such representative in connection with his attendance at any meeting of the board of directors shall be borne by the organization represented. Should the president of such organization be or become unable to serve as its representative, through sickness, or for any other reason which is acceptable to the president of the society, then the vice-president shall act in his place and stead during the period of such inability.

Organizations making application under this by-law are urged to send their membership lists to the secretary as early as possible, to facilitate the checking of the same with the society's membership roll. The appointments to the board are made by the incoming president January 1 and are announced as of that date, together with all other appointments. In previous years much confusion has been caused by delayed applications, and it is desired to avoid such a condition in future.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Pay Up, Please!

The appropriation of $2,500 made by the F. T. D. to the campaign fund helps materially to forward the objects of the campaign, and shows an earnestness in the publicity movement much to be commended, particularly as many members of this association individually are liberal contributors.

The full-page advertisement in colors, which is to appear in six leading magazines in December, has been completed, and a copy will be mailed to every subscriber early in November; also, to every member of the F. T. D. The design is considered to be admirably appropriate. A handsome girl in evening costume appears to be looking over a table of Christmas presents, from which she has taken a large bunch of fresh red roses, these appearing to have engaged her especial attention. The motive is well planned, and the subdued coloring creates a rich effect.

We are approaching the end of the year, and advertising plans for the remaining months of winter and the spring season are being formulated. As everyone knows, the pressure upon the advertising columns of the larger magazines during these months is particularly heavy; consequently, contracts for space in them must be made well in advance of the publication dates. The committee is necessarily governed in the making of these contracts by the amount of money at their disposal; therefore, it is urgently hoped that all subscribers who are delinquent in their subscription pledges will make immediate remittance to the secretary, so that there need be no falling down in the plans they are endeavoring to complete.

All in the trade who have not yet subscribed could not render support to the movement at a better time than now. Some active publicity during the next few months would mean much to our industry, and there is need of no further demonstration of the value of magazine advertising to convince us that it is the best tonic conceivable for the florists' business at large, and insures a continuance of the prestige of our million-dollar slogan, "Say It with Flowers."

TROUBLE WITH ASPARAGUS.

I have sent a specimen of our Asparagus Sprengeri, with which we are having difficulty. They grow vigorously and then suddenly are affected as is the specimen. Will you inform me as to the difficulty? E. R. A.—Md.

All of the foliage had fallen from the asparagus when it was received, and it was impossible to tell anything from the shoots sent. If your asparagus is turning brown or quite pale before reaching maturity, something is lacking in the soil or the plants have suffered from too much, or too little, water. If you have a good, rich soil, well balanced, such as would grow mums, roses or carnations, it should suit A. Sprengeri.

The plants would need a top-dressing of manure if they were carried over a second season, as is often done. A great deal more harm comes from overwatering the plants in beds or benches than from allowing them to become dry. Without knowing anything of your growing conditions, the writer is willing to hazard the opinion that your trouble was caused by overwatering at the root. C. W.

TROUBLE WITH BLACK INSECT.

How can I get rid of little black spiders in my greenhouse? I do not know whether they are a form of red spider or not. They form webs on the beds and from plant to plant every night. C. G.—N. M.

Sometimes black fly or black aphid is mistaken for spiders. These can be readily controlled by either fumigation or spraying with a nicotine extract. The writer does not know the particular spider you may have, but it would seem as though these two remedies would clean them out, if applied regularly. C. W.

Noblesville, Ind.—Meikel & Warner are planning to hold a flower show November 4 and 5, at their greenhouses, on Logan street. The chief display will be of chrysanthemums.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

WINTER-FLOWERING GERANIUMS.

Bright-colored flowers are in good demand for Thanksgiving and Christmas, but especially the latter holiday. We have poinsettias, euphorbias and certain berried plants of bright colors, but I have always found that there are many who would prefer a nice double scarlet zonal geranium to even a poinsettia or a cyclamen. Nicely bloomed plants of Nutt, Ricard or other doubles, as well as good bright singles, like Paul Crampel, Single Grant, and Maxine Kovalevsky, prove good sellers. The doubles are best adapted for shipping and the singles for local trade. Plants in from 4-inch to 6-inch pots will be found the most serviceable. To have such stock in the best condition for Christmas, it should be given a bright, sunny house and a position well up to the glass, in a house with as dry an atmosphere as possible and a minimum temperature of 50 degrees. Avoid the use of liquid manure on these geraniums, as it promotes a soft, rank growth. An occasional light top-dressing of fine bone promotes a stocky, healthy growth and this is the type of plant which will bloom properly.

POTTING GIGANTEUM LILIES.

Giganteum lilies, which are mostly grown for Easter forcing, are now coming to hand and should be cared for as soon as possible after arrival. Unlike Dutch and French bulbs, the various lilies, the bulbs of which are built up with scales, soon shrivel and suffer if kept long out of the soil. Pots six inches in diameter are those most generally in service for lilies. For small-sized bulbs, 5-inch pots will answer. If pots of these large sizes are in use, you can pot in 3½-inch or 4-inch pots and later transfer to 5-inch and 6-inch pots. I like, however, to place them in the pots they are to flower in if possible. For compost, we are often told that "any old soil" or "almost any kind of dirt" will answer for lilies. Do not believe it for a moment. Lilies do not want a rich soil and resent having any fresh manure come in contact with their roots at the start. Well decayed sod, with some well rotted and pulverized old cow manure added, is ideal for lilies. If your soil is heavy, add a little sharp sand or fine charcoal. Keep the bulbs well down in the pots and remember that most of the roots of this and many other lilies come from the base of the new growths on the top of the bulbs and not at the bottom. When you barely cover the bulbs, as in the case of tulips or hyacinths, many roots will appear above ground, instead of below.

L. longiflorum giganteum likes warm treatment from start to finish. If your soil at potting time is fairly moist, don't water at all; wait until the pots dry out well and the roots become active.

Herein lies much of the secret of successful culture. If you water freely before the pots are filled with roots, you will have many sickly, diseased plants. If you run them drier, the number will be greatly reduced. Plants after potting can be stood several deep on the beds for a time, if space is at a premium, but do not give them a cold house to start in; give not less than 50 degrees at night and you will find 55 degrees better.

EARLY PAPER WHITES.

Some Paper Whites come in useful for Thanksgiving, and a batch placed in gentle heat now will flower in ample time. Keep other bulbs cool, as there is danger of too many coming in while the chrysanthemum season lasts. Late bulbs will now be better if placed in the soil; they fritter away much of their strength if kept out of the soil too long. Start some Soleil d'Or and you can have them also in flower for Thanksgiving. Some growers plant their Paper Whites in benches. Flats, however, are far better for the small grower, as they can be forced or retarded as wanted.

PELARGONIUMS.

Cut-back pelargonium plants are now making a vigorous growth and will soon need repotting. Cuttings put in when the plants were headed back are also starting to grow apace and should have their tops pinched out to make them more bushy. Pot the pelargoniums firmly and grow them cool at all times. If grown warm, they will be more subject to attacks of both green and white fly. For the former, fumigation is sufficient, but hydrocyanic acid gas alone will kill the latter. Spraying, however, with such remedies as Thrip Juice, nicotine extracts or a soapy remedy will greatly reduce their numbers and discourage them. Pelargoniums such as Easter Greeting, Luey Beeker and Wurtembergia prove useful as Easter plants.

PRIMULAS FOR CHRISTMAS.

As plants which are easily grown and can be profitably sold at a comparatively low price, primulas appeal to many florists. They can be had in fairly good condition for the holidays, if treated properly. A shelf in a house kept at 50 to 55 degrees at night for the next few weeks will bring along the Primula sinensis in good time. If there are a few flowers open or even one truss, it will be ample, and scarlet and bright pink colors are the next in demand. Primula obconica is less brittle than Primula sinensis and is altogether a better market plant. There have been great improvements in the strain in late years and the flowers are now double the size of even a decade ago. This primrose can be had in better shape than any other member of the family for Christmas and is splendid for window boxes and for working in among varied plant assortments. Unfortunately, a great and growing prejudice exists against it, on account of its poisonous properties. While probably nine-tenths of growers and buyers are immune from any danger of irritation when handling the plants, the remaining tenth are more susceptible and occasionally are badly poisoned. For that reason some growers have dropped its culture and some retailers refuse to handle it; all the same, a large number are sold each year.

Primula malacoides, the most graceful and decorative of all the winter-flowering primulas, appears at Christmas each year, but is never seen at its best until later in the winter. It resents warm treatment, and, in order to have nice, stocky plants of a fine, deep pink color, a low temperature is needed; 40 to 45 degrees at night is ample for it.

ST. LOUIS will be the center of trade interest next week, with the annual exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America as the nucleus for the season's largest trade show.

THERE has been an interesting story in the daily papers about a coal miner who was so fortunate as to get full time work and whose wages were $540 last month. Most miners work only half time or less, but draw a full-time living. Who wouldn't be a miner?

TELL the tailor in your block that a basket of yellow and red mums in his window would draw passers' attention to their need for an autumn suit or overcoat of the materials otherwise so lifelessly draped behind the plate glass. The florist can supply a vivid and vivifying touch of color to most merchants' windows, to mutual profit.

SAYS a current digest of trade conditions: "The end of the coal and rail strikes and the consequent reemployment of labor, together with the far-reaching effects of the better supply of fuel and transportation, promise a considerable increase in general business for a time, at least." Here is staid confirmation of an optimistic outlook, though we wonder why "for a time, at least" was added.

DAYTON, home of the cash register, rapidly is becoming famous as the vinca center of America.

THE fall shows promise particularly well this year. Many of them have learned the use of publicity.

JOHN H. DUNLOP, Toronto and Richmond Hill, Ontario, has just returned from Montreal, Quebec, where he was in attendance at the supreme council of the Ancient and Accepted Order of the Scottish Rite, where he received the thirty-third, or last, degree of Masonry.

HAVE you noted the increased number of German seed and supplies catalogues you are receiving this season? It is evident that German houses which never before sought export trade are drumming America for orders. Germany is hustling while the rest of the world is maintaining the 8-hour day.

THE proceedings of the 1920 and 1921 annual meetings of the Chrysanthemum Society of America have just been published in a single volume, bearing the mark of Secretary C. W. Johnson's usual care. Portraits of the 1921 president, S. S. Pennock, and the 1922 president, Earl H. Mann, are included. The membership list includes 148 names.

THE agricultural experiment station at Purdue University has just issued an 8-page bulletin on "House Plants—Their Selection, Culture and Care." Florists would surely make friends and customers if they could distribute copies of the bulletin, or reprints of it, to persons who come into their stores. Prof. Victor H. Ries has packed much good advice into the pamphlet.

WE remember the "suit clubs" that tailors used to foster, wherein each member paid $1 a week and each week one member received a suit of clothes. Now a New England florist has started a flower club. Each member pays $1.50 a week and receives every week a bouquet of flowers. Knowing how many orders he has to fill, the florist can buy seasonable stock in quantity and give a better value than he could if such trade were transient and not booked in advance.

WHEN the bars were closed, the florists profited, it is said, because people bought flowers, instead of liquor, to make them happy. But New York retailers fear that the Daugherty ruling, compelling ships to enter and leave that port bone dry, will transfer transatlantic sailings—and likewise steamer flower orders—to Canadian ports. Since several leading New York firms estimate their annual business in these orders at from $10,000 to $50,000 a year, the seriousness of the matter is evident.

IT is said that Frederick C. Mathews Co., Detroit, was the originator of the idea of a little magazine to be devoted to a special subject, for dealers to distribute to their customers, each distributing dealer having his ad printed on the cover. The Mathews Co. began issuing a "Safe Milk" magazine of this character over seven years ago and for a somewhat shorter time has issued two ice cream magazines. Recently the company undertook the publication of "Say It with Flowers" magazine, which is being distributed by a number of first-class florists. Copies which recently have reached The Review carry the imprint of Breitmeyer's, in Detroit, and Joy's for the cities in which they operate.

"THE man who gets business and who makes money for the next twenty-five years will be the man who succeeds in giving unusual quality at the lowest price." It is a quotation from a recent article by Roger W. Babson, who is, perhaps, America's foremost business forecaster. Mr. Babson thinks that, having passed through thirty years of fairly continuous rising markets, we are now a couple of years along on a protracted period of falling markets.

OUR TWENTY-FIFTH BIRTHDAY.

THIS week begins the twenty-sixth volume of The Review. Counting fifty-two issues to the volume, the twenty-fifth was completed last week. Because five years out of the twenty-five since The Review was founded contained fifty-three Thursdays, instead of the more usual fifty-two, it will be five weeks until The Review completes its first quarter century according to the calendar. The first Thursday in December, 1898, saw the initial copy of this paper issue from the press. It was far different from the copy the reader holds in his hands today, just as the florists' trade is far different from the trade of that day. The passage of that quarter century and our twenty-fifth birthday will be celebrated on the anniversary of that issue, the first Thursday of next month, December 7. On that date will be issued our Twenty-fifth Anniversary Number and the annual Christmas Number, combined, as the biggest issue of the new season.

COAL TRADE REFORM.

AS generally understood, the object of the federal coal commission now just beginning its work is, after gathering pertinent data, to formulate a program of reform whereby the coal industry may be placed on a more stable and efficient basis. Pretty nearly all the necessary data are now available, either in the files of the Department of the Interior, at Washington, or in other files readily accessible. The main task of the commission will be to draw up a constructive program of reform.

IT is agreed that the coal trade is overmanned and overmined, if one may coin a coordinate word. In order that miners may earn enough in six months to live upon during twelve and that operators may make sufficient profits in one-half the year to meet deficits the other half, the public is asked to pay prices that are excessive and unreasonable. Competition is needed in the coal fields—even if it means the closing of some mines and the sending of some of the miners into the wheat fields to earn a living—in order that the country's industries may buy coal at fair prices. Talk of nationalization of the mines, of a "living wage" or a "saving wage" or of similar socialistic ideas, will not bring a solution of the problem. This trade, and the public, wants a coal trade program that will result in regular and efficient production at fair wages and reasonable prices. The coal commission will have to confine itself to thoughts of the most practical character to produce such a program.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

C. R. P., Pa.—Proserpine tulips will not flower for Christmas.

R. F. G., Mo.—Not dependably.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The cut flower market showed considerable improvement last week, in that demand and supply were closer together. With practically all outside flowers cut out by frost, excepting a few of the most hardy varieties of pompons, the market is dependent upon flowers cut from under glass, and of these the mum is, of course, just now predominant. It seems to those who know, that the chrysanthemum situation was never more favorable to grower and wholesaler than it is this season. The cut so far is much lighter than ordinarily expected at this time, and prices have approached a record mark. Bonnaffon, one of the most popular of the late varieties, is in market, as well as others, and there is no change in conditions. Most wholesalers report a fair clean-up of the daily chrysanthemum arrivals. Who shall say that the movement for publicity for flowers has not something to do with the situation?

The supply of roses appears to be curtailed somewhat and, in the face of the chrysanthemum supply, is distributed rather slowly. Short grades sell readily, but the top grades hang fire, and clear only by regrading in the price line. American Beauty is in fair supply and the quality of arrivals shows improvement, but the demand is nothing to boast of. Hybrid teas clean out quickly in the short grades.

Carnations show good quality and move well. Arrivals are not so heavy as might be expected at this time, and short-stemmed flowers form three-fourths of the shipments. It is evident that growers largely have timed their first cuts for a later market.

Cattleyas are in good supply and a better demand for them is noticed. The price range has advanced. Oncidiums are in moderate supply. The supply of gardenias is rather small at $4 per dozen for the best.

White lilies are not so plentiful and arrivals meet a good demand. Valley is plentiful.

There is an increased supply of violets, but the demand fluctuates, as does also the quality. The supply of sweet peas is increasing, and some flowers seen show rather remarkable quality for the season.

Offerings of other herbaceous material are not large, but among them are some good pansies, and blue lace flowers of excellent quality.

Various Notes.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held Monday evening, November 13, at the Pennsylvania hotel. A good turnout of members is expected, first, because many will desire to look over the club's new facilities for meetings, and, again, because at this meeting the nominating committee will announce its selection of candidates for office for the ensuing year. At this meeting, too, nominations of candidates from the floor must be made.

A large advertisement in the Times Monday, October 30, announced the opening, at the new store of C. H. Totty Co., of a chrysanthemum show, embracing a large number of varieties, all bearing name labels. With the resources of the Totty establishment at Madison, an excellent exhibition was staged, and the store was thronged with visitors throughout the day. The exhibition was staged to continue for several days.

Several in the trade visited the show, held last week, of the Morris County, N. J., Gardeners' and Florists' Society, at Morristown. The show was of the usual high character.

The "alumni" of the New York Florists' Club, in other words its past-presidents, to the number of fourteen, had one of their customary dinners at "Billy the Oysterman's" Tuesday evening, October 24, afterwards taking in the performance at the Winter Garden.

J. H. P.

The Horticultural Society of New York announces that Clement Moore has offered a special prize in the form of a gold medal, to be awarded at the fall show, November 9, for the best hybrid orchid plant of recent origin, cattleya, lœliocattleya, brassocattleya or brasso-lœliocattleya. The plant winning the medal must be of sufficient merit. Form, color and substance only will be considered, and hybrids of American origin will be given preference.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

The supply of first-class cut stock was short last week and just about met the demand. Roses, in particular, were scarce the early part of the week, but they gained in quantity toward the last of the week. The quality of the roses coming in now is good and nearly all varieties are right as to color and size. Red and white roses are particularly fine and clear each day at good prices.

Mums are gaining in quantity, but there are not sufficient to take care of the demand. Few small mums are making their appearance now, and most of the supply runs to the larger varieties. Fine pompons are now to be had in good quantity, but each day finds the market cleaned out on this item. Yellow and bronze varieties are still scarce, and the price on these remains high.

Carnations are now arriving in larger quantities and clear each day at good prices, somewhat over the average for this time of the year. Laddies have made their appearance now and, although the shipments are small, they more than take care of the demand. Dahlias have disappeared entirely, after having one of the finest seasons in several years.

Valley and orchids are still coming along in limited quantities, but the demand is also limited, so that these items are well taken care of each day. Easter lilies are still scarce and what few make their appearance are snapped up quickly at good prices. A few callas are in the market now, but the demand is limited.

The first violets of the season made their appearance last week, but they moved slowly, even though the quality was of the best. Alyssum is now coming in each day, and is picked up as fast as it makes its appearance.

Greens of all kinds are in heavy supply, and it keeps one busy keeping this class of goods moving. Potted ferns are moving out in good shape and all the growers are enjoying a good business on this item.

Various Notes.

The Red Rock Rosery, Bradford, Pa.,

has resumed shipping roses to the local market, after a long lay-off, due to a serious attack of mildew.

J. H. Gould, of Middleport, is cutting some fine roses and mums at present, which find a ready sale at his retail stores and in the wholesale market.

Galley Bros. are now marketing their fine crop of 6-inch, 7-inch and 8-inch ferns. This firm is expert in this line, and the demand for the product always exceeds the supply.

W. B. Mulford, of the Prima Bulb Co., New York, was visiting the local trade last week.

W. J. Palmer & Son have been making some fine window displays the last week, which have been attracting much attention.

J. B. M.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Business has not yet settled down to a steady autumnal gait. The reason seems to be that the weather has been too warm and summer-like. A few days of brisk weather produce a brisk market, but the return of sun and warmth produces a large supply and a lackadaisical demand.

The supply of stock in general is greater than the demand. The orders received have not been sufficient to clean up the receipts in any of the important lines, with the usual result that prices are lower than anyone wishes they were. Even the retailers agree that it would be better if supply and demand were more evenly balanced, so that the job-lot buyers need not be called on to take out the surplus.

There was an unusually large shipping business for All Saints' day. Most of the houses report that the bulk of their orders were for carnations, with a few roses, though here and there a wholesaler reports some good telegraph orders at the last minute for white chrysanthemums. The market was well supplied and all late southern All Saints' day orders were filled in full and the orders were decidedly welcome. A good number of the wholesale houses were open Sunday, October 29, because of the number of orders to be shipped that day. They did not, however, notify the city buyers and there was no city demand.

The chrysanthemum is now the dominating flower in the market. The western stock has practically disappeared, the local crops having nearly reached flood tide. Any buyer can supply his wants and in most cases the prices are reasonable. There is a big business in pompons, the variety of which is infinite. When these flowers first become moderately plentiful each year they are extremely popular and widely used. Their popularity and use seem greater this season than ever before. Also, the supply of disbudded pompons grown to single stem is greater than in any previous season and their popularity also seems to be increasing. As for the big mums, the local cut now includes a complete range of colors in practically all sizes; it is just a matter of letting the wholesaler know in time and any buyer gets what he wants. Prices are softening.

With the influx of chrysanthemums the demand for roses has been affected as usual. The orders still clean up good short stock, but of the medium and long stems in all the principal varieties there are enough so that iceboxes never are empty. The quality of roses is excellent; one scarcely could ask for better stock than is now generally offered.

The increased supply of pompons has, of course, affected the demand for carnations, especially white. During the pompon season colored carnations are the ones most in request and at present Mrs. Ward is, as was the case last season, the favorite. Quality has become good.

Weather conditions have not favored sweet peas and the supply is small. There are a few violets in the market, single and double, but the weather is not cool enough for them. Valley is equal to the demand. Cattleyas are obtainable in a few places, but do not occupy so important a position as when the supply was larger. The same thing may be said of giganteum lilies, the price of which now runs as high as 30 cents per flower. Callas have come.

There are a few snapdragons and calendulas, but they are not yet of more than indifferent quality. That about completes the list.

In the green goods market boxwood has begun to cut some figure, though receipts are not yet large. The price is as in other years, $25 per hundred pounds. Ferns are now held at $3.50 per thousand, with some jobbers asking $4. There are indications that the supply will be small this season, that the quality may not be good and that prices may be high by midwinter.

flower dealers, were invited last week to the office of R. G. Schmid & Co., architects, 154 West Randolph street, to inspect the preliminary plans for the proposed new home for the market. C. J. Michelsen also is a member of the committee of wholesalers, but was unable to be present that day.

H. A. Achenburg, of the real estate firm of Teich & Co., has developed a deal which calls for the erection of a new building 150x287 at the southeast corner of Lake and Jefferson streets. The basement and first two floors should be adequate to house all the wholesalers. The upper floors would be used for other businesses. The committee asked for figures, but none were ready, so progress, only, can be reported.

October 31 to listen to the committee's report of progress in the development of a new means of dealing with credits.

Various Notes

C. L. Washburn reports he is being offered the best grade of Franklin county coal at $4 per ton, where $5 was asked a month ago, with coal from less favored sections down to $3 per ton. Mr. Washburn is known to buy from twenty-five to fifty cars at a time. Smaller buyers do not receive these offers, as they are not in such close touch, and when they hunt up the sellers the market stiffens as they see the buyer coming.

The new store of Poehlmann Bros. Co. continues to be a bright spot in the center of the market. The windows, the glass in which is clean, are kept filled with fine flowers and pot plants like a retail store, although nothing is sold to the public. The removal from Randolph street has necessitated a new telephone number. The Poehlmann switchboard now is Dearborn 4123. The supplies department will have the old number for a few days yet.

Mrs. James Mara has opened a flower shop in the Vabusch block, Ogden and Prescott avenues. On that side of the street it is the town of Lyons, but opposite is Riverside, one of the best of the suburban residence districts.

Ed Jacob will be at the St. Louis show next week, in charge of the exhibit of the A. L. Randall Co.

where the pecan crop is being harvested in the Tonner orchards.

A. Henderson was at Washington, D. C., October 30, to attend the conference between bulb importers and the federal horticultural board, looking to some modification of quarantine regulations.

Marshall N. Tyler and A. A. Martial will go to St. Louis next week with an exhibit of seasonable items from the supplies stock of Poehlmann Bros. Co.

Miss Leslie, of Leslie & Delamater, who recently opened the store at 6471-73 Sheridan road, reports business as being good. Contemplating a good plant season, they have taken over a lease for the dance hall on the second floor of the row of stores in this new building, 6459-73 Sheridan road, known as the new Loyola Studio. With extensive decorations and numerous tables displaying potted plants, they intend using the hall as an exhibition room for those who prefer plants to cut flowers. Until this season sets in, Miss Leslie has undertaken to hold classes for instruction in dancing on Tuesday and Thursday nights, with special classes for children in toe and æsthetic dancing Saturday mornings and regular open dances every Saturday evening. Although it is a hard task, the efforts put forth are repaid by large attendances, enabling them to finance this undertaking until it can be used for the purpose intended.

H. N. Bruns and wife announce the marriage of their daughter, Madeline, to Dr. Louis Campbell Johnston, Wednesday evening, October 25, at the family home in River Forest. The bride has many friends in the trade.

One of the most successful of the dis-budded pompon chrysanthemums in the market this season was the variety Mrs. H. Harrison, grown by Henry Wehrman. The introducers of this variety originally offered it for outdoor growing, but it proves an excellent early bloomer under glass and takes most kindly to the disbudding treatment. The color when grown under glass is a most exquisite blush. It is several shades deeper if grown outdoors.

W. J. Smyth was confined to his home for several days last week, but his illness proved to be nothing more serious than a severe cold and he is again attending to business.

The office of the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co. is this week being removed to the new factory in River Forest, completing the work of establishing the new material mill. Since last spring's fire Phil Foley and his stalwart sons have had a strenuous season. With their factory practically destroyed between two days, they nevertheless kept right on filling orders while they built a new factory at a new location and, now that the work is done, they find they have, as a matter of fact, billed out more sales this summer than in any previous like period since they started in business.

A letter from Otto Amling, in Berlin, to Peter Pearson, dated October 15, says that so much of interest attracts him that he has decided to prolong his stay in Europe, visiting Switzerland and Italy before returning. He will be back, he writes, about the end of November.

Charles Russell, of the Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland, was here last week, his errand being principally to attend the opening of the new McVicker's theater, in which he was interested.

J. J. Karins, well known for his many years on the road for the famous house of Dreer, was a Chicago visitor this week. Mr. Karins says that wherever he has been demand has been fair, with confidence everywhere high that business will boom as soon as cold weather drives the people indoors.

Brazil, Ind.—The Brazil Dahlia Farm has changed from a retail business into a wholesale business. Last year the storage space for bulbs was enlarged and this year an additional fireproof storage space of 400 barrels' capacity is being built. Each year at this place new varieties of dahlias are tried out; 300 varieties were added this fall. Proprietor Ralph O. Wenning reports that Holland varieties are probably the best, while California varieties are fine.

The Market.

Business is better. The effect of the frost is seen in increased activity in the shops. People no longer have flowers in gardens; only pompons remain. The cooler weather has made other changes. Sweet peas, which were plentiful, have suffered a check. It is merely temporary, but the supply has shortened sharply. Some say it is bud dropping; some say it is the cooler nights; anyway, there are few peas. Carnations have improved and, which is even more important, the improved market absorbs the low-grade stock at fair prices.

Chrysanthemums are coming in strongly. It has been the best October that the autumn queen has known for some time. The yellow lead; Sun Glow, Richmond and Golden Glory are the best in that color; not so much is heard of Chrysolora. White is beginning to be better represented, now that Oconto and White Chieftain have come. Good pink are still shy Chieftain and Rose Perfection. Pompons are more plentiful. There are some choice singles.

Roses are coming in more freely. There is a good supply of Beauties. Russell is excellent. Premier has moved up into third place, with the cooler nights. Orchids are becoming scarcer and the price has advanced to $1 to $1.25 each. The few single violets coming in shot up 40 and 50 to $1 per hundred for the navy football game. Foliage is selling well in a wide range of varieties, colors and shades of color.

Across the Bright Blue Sea.

The Review correspondent had an appointment in the private office of the Henry F. Michell Co. It was with the chief himself, so it was with some trepidation that the stairway was mounted and a door on the mezzanine floor was pushed open. The brothers Michell were inside. Frederick J. Michell was seated at his desk; Henry F. Michell was bending over him. They were earnestly discussing some matter of moment. Your correspondent had just time to note the details of the office when Henry F. Michell moved and stepped forward with a winning smile:

"I really have little to tell about myself abroad," he said. "I had not been over for twenty years and I just renewed acquaintances and took up things where they were left. I was much interested in the effect of our quarantine. I saw beautiful stock at the two shows we visited and when I questioned those in charge they told me that there was little or no market for it since the American quarantine had gone into effect. I noticed that the greenhouses in Belgium are being neglected.

"The people in Europe have money for eating and drinking and for the theater. They have no money for luxuries, such as plants and flowers. The war destroyed that and our quarantine did the rest. No, I do not think that the quarantine is likely to be repealed. Our nurserymen are largely in favor of it. They make more money on their own roses and other things than on the imported stock. The importers were hurt by it, but the nurserymen, as a body, were benefited. We are neutral.

"The seed crops in Germany looked good, despite the war, but they have a strong rival in our market in California

Mums - Roses - Carnations of the Highest Grade

This week will bring out a larger supply of MUMS. The Best of the Mums are still to come. Our growers have planted heavily of the mid-season and late varieties. Our biggest supply of Mums we will have during November. All the best commercial varieties we can supply you.

In POMPONS we have now a larger supply of indoor grown varieties, in yellow, bronze, pink and white.

The supply of ROSES is increasing again. We now have more of the medium and long Roses, most of them showing exceptionally good quality.

CARNATIONS—We have several large Carnation growers who cut and ship every day in the week. Their flowers are never held on the plants, and they are not held in water. Carnations of that kind should give satisfaction.

Those are the Carnations that we select for our out-of-town orders. We give you the very best that our growers produce.

Mr. Reid Accepts.

Edward Reid was confronted by a novel situation on his return from Dakota, where he had been visiting his brother. Mr. Reid had been elected president of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia during his absence, without his knowledge.

It was clearly a case of the office seeking the man. When seen in the wholesale commission house on Ranstead street Saturday, October 28, Mr. Reid modestly said that he did not feel that he was worthy of the honor, but, as he was elected, he would accept and do his best.

The Barometer.

The florists' supply business is generally admitted to be a pretty safe barometer of what one may suspect in our own business. The morning of Saturday, October 28, three of the brightest stars in the supply world, each entirely unknown to the others, gave it as his opinion that the season now opening will be one of extraordinary activity.

Service!

FLORISTS take pride in delivering boxes of beautiful cut flowers or corsage bouquets. They are anxious to pack every ounce of beauty into that tempting box—for friends and customers are often made through fine deliveries. And service is the very best advertising.

Dennison recognizes the importance of these deliveries, suggesting and creating beautiful seals to accompany the boxes—and to advertise the quality service of the florist.

In addition to these labels, Dennison also designs and manufactures unusual address tags—address tags that are not discolored by water, and that have the standard Dennison quality.

These labels and tags are good advertising. Invest in them for the sake of your service. Let Dennison suggest a label for you, without charge. Fill out the coupon and write for samples and prices.

I want to thank my friends
For all the courtesy shown me at Baltimore,
And ask forgiveness of those
To whom I could not pay enough attention.
I invite correspondence
And will be very glad to answer any inquiries
Regarding conditions in the East,
Regarding prices
And all other relative matters connected with our profession.
I will also be very glad to answer any questions Regarding the motives
Which guide me in my work
And in my business policies.

Boxwood Sprays

Finest grade material.

We carry a large stock of the choicest Boxwood Sprays—the season's big favorite with florists everywhere. Our stock is always fresh and free from surplus wood. Dwarf or tree variety, every crate guaranteed, packed 50 pounds to crate. Lowest prices—immediate delivery—order now!

Aluminum Foil

Cheaper than tin foil.

Aluminum foil runs 14,600 square inches to the roll, weighing one pound. It is more easily handled and more economical than tin foil, which measures but 1,760 square inches to the pound. Comes in six-inch or ten-inch widths. Per lb., $1.10; lots of ten lbs., $1.00 lb.; lots of 25 lbs., 90c a lb.

Red Flanders Poppies

Get ready for Armistice Day.

Co-operate with your local American Legion Posts—get the kind that are their favorites—prompt attention to last-minute telegraph orders.

Double Petals, 2½-in. in diameter, $3.50 gross; $21.00 per thousand.

Puttium

Cold weather is approaching. Do your glazing and repairing AT ONCE! Your nearest jobber can supply you with the McCallum-guaranteed PUTTIUM. If not, order direct. Remember the name—take no other—avoid materials that are similar only in name and not in quality.

Full line of florists' supplies, ribbons and chiffons ready for quick delivery—usual McCallum quality and service PLUS economy!

Dennison's

Seal your fine boxes with a mark of Service!

FLORISTS take pride in delivering boxes of beautiful cut flowers or corsage bouquets. They are anxious to pack every ounce of beauty into that tempting box—for friends and customers are often made through fine deliveries. And service is the very best advertising.

Dennison recognizes the importance of these deliveries, suggesting and creating beautiful seals to accompany the boxes—and to advertise the quality service of the florist.

In addition to these labels, Dennison also designs and manufactures unusual address tags—address tags that are not discolored by water, and that have the standard Dennison quality.

LET THE PUBLIC LOOK?

On many points of store arrangement there are widely contrasting ideas, but on none is the difference more marked than on the question as to whether make-up work should be done within view of the customers or not. If you will reflect on the flower stores of the highest reputation which you have visited, you will recall that in some the make-up artists were in full view of the public, while in others there was no sign of activity, nothing save flowers to be sold and the salesmen to sell them.

Henry Penn, than whom there is no more capable merchandiser of flowers in the country, says, "Let the public see. Customers want activity. It interests them to have a view of what's going on."

Yet the new store of Gude Bros. Co., in Washington, D. C., is carefully constructed so that the make-up work shall be done in a rear room. On the other hand, Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, almost invariably have one man at work on a wreath or similar piece in full view of patrons in the store. The Fleischman Floral Co., Chicago, presents nothing save display cases, cashier's window and mirrors to customers' view; the work of arranging and packing flowers is all done in a basement room beneath the store. But the store of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., in Kansas City, Mo., fully as handsome an interior, gives customers a view of at least some workers in the active season.

Here are stores catering to the best trade, some giving customers "a view of what's going on," some denying them such a view. Since all are eminently successful, it seems as though a hard and fast rule on this point of store arrangement would not be accepted. Yet it's often discussed. What do you say?

A MAIL BAG IN FLOWERS.

For three-tenths of a century the superintendent of mails at Salina, Kan., had been popular in his office. One day recently he passed away. The fact that he had been so popular set the telephones in Salina florists' shops buzzing. And orders upon orders were placed. And design upon design was made. With so much competition in ideas and designs, it is easy to see that pieces "out of the ordinary" were to be rare.

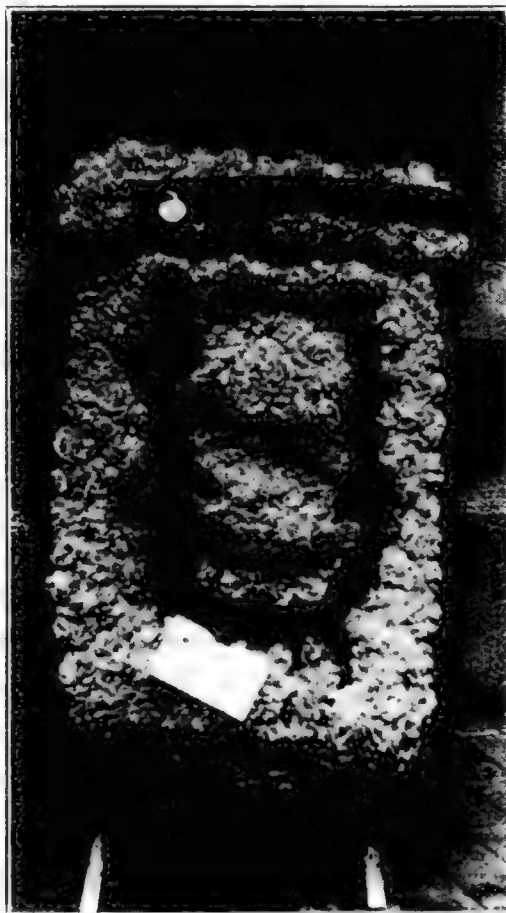

The Prescott Avenue Greenhouse, Salina, of which A. B. Walter is proprietor, seized upon an idea and carried it out to the entire satisfaction of the postal clerks and mail carriers who placed the order for a design. One must admit that the mail bag, illustrated on this page, was appropriate for the occasion. The bag proper was made of white carnations, the letter "U" was formed with red roses and the "S" was of asters. The firm made the frame of wire and mounted the completed piece on a white easel. The idea was rewarded by the praise of all who saw the piece.

SERVING FOR ARMISTICE DAY.

The Trade's Role.

November 11, four years ago, enveloped the world in excitement and gratitude. On that day hostilities in the great war ceased and in millions of homes, fathers, mothers, sisters and brothers were assured that the list of casualties would cease to grow.

But, contained in the casualties previous to November 11, were the names of many Americans and for every name there was at least one person left to mourn. November 11 the nation as a whole pays respect to the dead and honors the living.

On days such as this comes reward to the trade. And this does not imply only the reward of monetary profit. Of course, we aim to profit in a financial way on this day as on any other. But a deeper feeling goes with such an occasion and, as we merchandise, we feel that we are accomplishing good in bringing into numerous hearts a bit of beauty. The more flowers we sell this year on Armistice day, the more good we shall accomplish all around. This article has to do with ways to establish a demand on Armistice day.

In the first place, the day is supported by public spirit. It will be public spirit that will do the buying; so the appeal will be best made to the public through the spirit of the day. Following this logic, an advertisement in the local papers should not so much stress the quality of your stock, but should rather emphasize the fact that flowers can best do honor to the departed loved one and that a flower in the buttonhole of every man will prove his interest in honoring the heroes of the late war.

Everything lies in the approach to the public mind. And the copy for every advertisement should be prepared with an eye to fingering the heartstrings—not roughly, but gently. There must be an appeal "in memoriam" and coincidentally an appeal to the patriotic urge.

Other Ways to Appeal.

The St. Louis Flower Growers' Publicity Association struck the proper notes in an advertisement for Armistice day last year, as follows:

ARMISTICE DAY.

The greatest memorial day in the history of civilization! From it has risen the world's demand for everlasting peace. The citizenry of all nations cry aloud for disarmament and the right to live one by the other in contentment and happiness.

It is a day for Flowers. By no other tribute can there be expressed this universal yearning of humanity. Nothing is there in all nature that so exquisitely typifies the tranquillity, beauty and fragrance of life.

In memoriam, or as a token of appreciation, esteem or veneration, Flowers are the essence of all that is hope and love.

Last year a number of firms found it profitable to send out neat folders, in which were quoted prices on wreaths, specially made-up baskets, carnations, mums, roses, etc. These folders in most cases were so planned as to appeal to the members of the family of a soldier lost in the war. One, for instance, contained this sentiment: "A beautiful sentiment in memory of her boy—send the mother an assorted box or basket of flowers to lay on his grave." On the cover page of another folder was the following verse, entitled "Their Message," by Jane Dowling Foote. It touches the heartstrings and could be used generally:

Weep not for us; we are content.
Conserve your strength to work and pray
And raise to peace that monument
Whose cornerstone we died to lay.
Our gift was great; but you must give
A greater to complete the plan;
We died; now you must nobly live
To make man brother unto man.

Armistice day presents another time when it does not pay to let matters go until the last minute and then busily rush things. It is preferable to start advertising, if you are selecting a paper as the medium, several days before Armistice day; perhaps, a whole week. This will give the public ample time to know that you are ready to satisfy their Armistice day needs.

displays. Flags, always striking, can be used. One firm last year used a huge statue of liberty as a focal point and about this draped the flags of the Allies. War relics can be featured to good advantage in almost any window. There are innumerable ways to arrange a window that will appeal at once to patriotism and regard for the departed. The main point is to get the window into shape at least several days before the holiday.

A HALL FOR YOUR SHOW.

Every city has on its main street automobile display rooms that are spacious and handsome in architectural style, just the type of room to appeal to those who are in the habit of giving flower shows. If you have not found a good place for your autumn show, make arrangements with the local automobile sales agency to hold the exhibition in its show room. These rooms offer fine facilities and firms of this nature are generally glad to extend the courtesy, having in mind the publicity to be gained and the number of visitors who will be attracted into the agency, perhaps to buy a car.

This has been done. Just recently the Portland, Ore., florists arranged to hold a show in a local automobile sales-room, and the trade at Springfield, Ill., has done the same thing. It is an idea that can be more generally used to advantage.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

The market eased up considerably last week, and stock is now plentiful. Chrysanthemums are arriving in all grades and colors. The colored stock is moving well, but the whites are slower. Pompons are plentiful. Roses and carnations are also in heavy crop and the prices have taken a drop. There is plenty of stock in all varieties to take care of the demand. There is also a good supply of lilies and plenty of green goods.

Publicity Association Meets.

The Florists' Publicity Association held its annual stockholders' meeting at the Republican house Tuesday evening, October 24. The meeting was well attended, and the members present were much interested in the proceedings of last year and the manner in which the publicity campaign was "put over." Everyone was well satisfied with results. An additional assessment was voted on and passed unanimously for the months of February and May for the publicity of St. Valentine's day, Mothers' day and Memorial day. Many other interesting discussions came up at this meeting, and the trade in general seemed well pleased with our plan of publicity.

H. V. Hunkel, president of the association, presided, and the following directors were elected, who will hold Flower Show and Meeting Coming.

The Florists' Club will hold a fall flower show in the Public museum and Library building, November 2 and 3. At the same time the Wisconsin State Florists' Association will hold its annual meeting in Milwaukee. The meeting of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association will be held in the Trustees' room of the Public museum. There will be a banquet Thursday evening, November 2, at the Milwaukee Athletic Club. A pleasant entertainment will be the feature of the evening. Friday the visiting florists will go sight-seeing around the various greenhouse establishments. From present indications a good attendance is expected.

Various Notes.

The Edlefsen Floral Co. has opened a new flower shop at Third and State streets. William Edlefsen, who was one of the prominent florists in the city for many years and who has been out west for some time, has returned to Milwaukee, and, together with his daughters, will operate the store. The family is well known and, no doubt, should do a good business.

Another new store is being opened, on North avenue and Forty-sixth street, called the Bell Flower Shop; Earl L. Bell, manager. This will make five florists' shops on upper North avenue. It

The Market.

Funeral work still forms most business. Since prices have gone down, there has been a little increase in transient business, and more and larger orders are being received for society events than was the case a few weeks ago.

The social season has not advanced far enough as yet to make any large difference in the volume of business. There have been a number of weddings during October, and others are already listed for November.

Various Notes.

A large number of persons visited the annual flower show held here. In the collection of blooms on exhibit there were 7,000 chrysanthemums and 1,000 begonias, asters and other kinds of flowers. The exhibit was open daily, includ-

Club Meeting.

At the meeting of the Albany Florists' Club held on the evening of October 26, final reports on the fall show to be held November 1 to 4 were discussed. Members Davidson and P. J. Newman, for the home team, and Samuel Hanson, North Troy, for outsiders, have done good work. R. E. Loeben and Walter Mott were selected from the trade to act as judges. Henry Eberhardt, Schenectady, N. Y., joined the Albanians in a bicomunity advertisement, embracing several leaders in the enterprise. A bountiful spread wound up an enjoyable and profitable session.

Mark Roak, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, was a visitor and incidentally mentioned the Halloween window of the Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, as the finest he remembered seeing. W. M.

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

Market conditions last week were good, although there has been a great quantity of poor outdoor stock for sale.

Chrysanthemums hold first place and the quality of the larger varieties is good. They range in price from $1.50 to $6 per dozen; there is not a great quantity to be had at the latter price. There is only a fair supply of pompons and the bulk of this stock is white. Pink, bronze and yellow are reaching the market in limited quantities.

Roses are fine and range in price from $10 to $20 per hundred. Short-stemmed roses are to be had at $8 per hundred.

A limited supply of sweet peas, myosotis and marguerites is reaching the market. These find ready buyers.

Various Notes.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club will be held November 13. State Forester Besley will give an illustrated talk on the care of our state forests.

November 6 a flower show will be staged by the students of the University of Maryland, at College Park. All flo-

The Market.

The local wholesale market was in splendid condition all last week, as far as the supply was concerned, but the demand was not able to consume the consignments that arrived each day. The last few days of the week caused a slump in the demand.

The increased shipments of mums caused a weakened demand for roses. Only extra fancy stock held to quotations. Premier is at the head in demand, followed by Columbia, Russell, Milady and Killarney.

Early varieties of mums are now abundant. Carnations are arriving, and these suffer as usual during mum season. The warm spell has kept the color out of violets and not until the cold weather sets in will they be at their best. There are still a few excellent dahlias, as well as cosmos and a few other outdoor flowers.

Valley is fine; so are Easter lilies. Orchids sell well, when fancy stock is obtainable.

Flower Show Meeting.

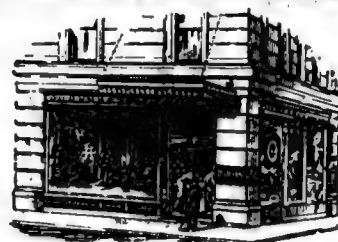

The executive committee of the fall flower show held an important meeting October 24 in publicity headquarters. Chairman J. F. Ammann presided and there were present seventeen chairmen of committees, all of whom made splendid reports.

The secretary read many letters from outside growers, who will stage exhibits in nearly all classes. The applications were turned over to Superintendent Pring, who allots the space for all exhibitors.

D. S. Geddis, chairman of the special premiums committee, reported $1,100 in specials to date; it is anticipated that the amount will be $2,000 before the show opens.

Charles Beyer, of the ticket committee, has everything in readiness for the opening. Chairman L. A. Hoerr, of the patrons' committee, reports that $2,000 so far has been subscribed.

A meeting will be held November 3 in the public library, to which all members of committees will be invited.

During Flower Show Week.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its monthly meeting November 9, at 2
p. m. The meeting will be held in the Coliseum building, in which the fall flower show is to be held. The secretary's notices will tell the members that the card will admit them to the building.
A special program has been arranged and all visitors are invited to attend

The Missouri State Florists' Associamembers, with an enclosed card of admission to the flower show. The entertainment committee, consisting of W. A. Rowe, W. J. Pilcher and C. E. DeWever, has arranged an attractive program. The election of officers will also feature the meeting.

The annual meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America will take place Wednesday, November 8, in the Coliseum building, according to Secretary C. W. Johnson.

The new Hotel Claridge has been made the headquarters of the Florists' Club. The club's banquet will be held here Thursday evening, November 9. Rates at this hotel were made known in the advertisement in The Review of October 26.

The judges for the fall show have been announced by the executive council as follows: A. H. Nehrling, Ithaca, N. Y.; A. T. Hey, Maywood, Ill.; John Moritz, St. Louis, Mo.

A. W. Gumz, chairman of the hotel committee of the flower show, says anyone wishing to make early hotel reservations would do well by addressing him at 1314 Pine street.

Various Notes.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle was entertained by Mrs. O. G. Koenig, October 25, at her home, on Florissant avenue. All enjoyed a pleasant afternoon. Plans were talked over for entertaining all visiting ladies during show week.

Emil Vilcek, employed by the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., died October 22, after a short illness. The trade extended its sympathy to the wife and young son. The funeral took place October 25 from the family residence, 2321 Salena street. Many in the trade sent flowers and attended the funeral.

Walter A. Amling, with his brother Herbert, of Pana, Ill., spent October 27 in St. Louis, visiting county growing establishments. They were guests of Henry G. Berning during their stay.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. is now snugly settled in its new quarters at the southeast corner of Fourteenth and Pine streets. The Fourteenth street front has one of the largest "Say It with Flowers" signs in the city. The interior as a whole is attractive.

Many attractive Halloween windows were seen in the downtown district, especially those of Grimm & Gorly and Mullanphy Florists.

The trade has extended its sympathy to Edward A. Guntly in the loss of his mother, Mrs. Sophia Guntly, who died October 27. The funeral was held October 30. Many flowers and beautiful designs were in evidence.

The florist bowlers had a great night October 25, when six full teams lined up for three matches. These resulted in the Roses winning two of the three games from the Orchids. The Sweet Peas won all three games from the Violets, while the Daisies won the odd game from the Carnations. There will be no bowling during flower show week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., were married October 28, 1890, and celebrated their anniver-

Conditions in the retail trade are normal. The florists still complain of the scarcity of flowers, especially the lack of variety. Much stock is sold in an undeveloped condition, so great is the demand. Mums are the chief standby in the way of decorative material, and only the leaders are carrying exhibition flowers. Preparations were in progress for the Halloween festivities. The weather remains somewhat cold, and about everything in the way of crops is harvested and under cover.

The European corn borer is reported to be in some of the nearby townships and is causing anxiety among the growers of Worcester county.

Outdoor flowers disappeared from the market entirely about October 20.

market is working a hardship on all growers. However, conditions are improving slightly. E. A.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Home-grown mums are being cut in such large quantities, and the supply of roses is so good, that the market was overloaded last week. The weather warmed up suddenly after heavy frosts and business received a setback. Roses sold as low as $20 per thousand. They could not all be moved without a great reduction being offered. An unusual amount of funeral work the latter part of the week helped to use up a good deal of the surplus. Roses will be less plentiful from now on. Most of the growers will hold back their crops for Christmas. In the meantime chrysanthemums will have their inning.

Various Notes.

John Stevens is cutting Mrs. C. C. Pollworth mums. On account of the warm summer, the early mums are two weeks late. Mr. Stevens has about 15,000 mums.

John Kallas has opened a new flower shop, on Grand avenue near Twelfth street.

palette of white carnations. Colored flowers made the spots of paint, red, blue and yellow. A frame of oak leaves finished the outer edge.

The bowling team known as Rock's Flowers won three games played against the Martin Printing Co. Friday, October 27.

A. Newell had several orders for large sprays and wreaths, and three or four large wedding decorations last week.

H. Kusik & Co. have been making up special designs in the wire factory. Extra help has been employed lately to catch up with orders.

Mr. Shields, of the Rosedell Gardens, Creston, Mo., visited the Kansas City market October 25. The Rosedell range has three houses, in which 250,000 roses are grown. The varieties are Columbia, Premier, Butterfly and Golden Ophelia. A model dairy is operated in connection with the gardens. Mr. Shields visited Longview Farm and was much interested in the methods used there.

Eric Fransden is growing Premier, Butterfly and Columbia roses and is cutting good stock. Last year he grew nothing but Columbias.

J. E. Murray & Co. have completed one of the best months since they have been in business.

E. A. Humfeld has had a number of Halloween decorations for clubs. Marigolds and yellow mums have been used in combination with foliage.

A wire received from L. R. Bohannon, October 27, stated that he was in San Antonio, Tex., and would spend several days there. He is making a successful trip through the southwest.

Longview Farm will begin to cut Richmond mums in a few days. Longview keeps a special truck and sends all stock to market as soon as cut. When it reaches the wholesale house it is in much better condition for packing than when it was cut in the afternoon and sent to market the next morning.

Dr. B. W. Murphy and Mrs. A. E. Stuppy, St. Joseph, Mo., were in the city October 25.

William Wade will go to St. Louis for the flower show. Mr. Wade is secretary of the Missouri State Florists' Association, which will hold a meeting one day of the show. J. E. K.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

Several hard frosts have cut the outdoor crop to almost nothing. There are still a few cosmos, calendulas and dahlias that have withstood the cold nights, but they are few and of poor quality. There was a considerable change in the market last week. Two weeks ago business was brisk and everyone was of the opinion that the fall rush had commenced, but last week, outside of a day or two, was slow; stock cleaned up fairly well, but there was not the snap to it that there was the previous week.

Prices did not change a great deal, although there has been a slight tendency to climb. Mums have begun to arrive in quantity, while good pompons are scarce and are bringing $1 per bunch. Yellow mums especially have been scarce and there have not been enough to supply the demand for Halloween decorations. Roses are coming in much better at present than they were, particularly Premier. is not large enough, however, to take care of all the orders, but it is increasing daily.~ Ophelia and Butterfly are still slightly off crop, while a few Ward, Sunburst, Columbia and White Killarney are helping out considerably. Carnations are increasing in supply and there is still some outdoor stock arriving. The stems on some of the varieties are short, while others are getting better daily. Some fairly good Laddie carnations are arriving, but not in sufficient quantities to take care of the demand. Violets are arriving regularly and have helped out well. Easter lilies are more plentiful than last week, but are still bringing high prices. Fancy ferns have been arriving in fine condition, and asparagus was plentiful last week.

The Market.

Business has been good during the last week, but stock has been scarce. Roses are still scarce, but mums are beginning to come in plentifully; generally they are of good quality, though the foliage in some cases might have been better. A few Turners are seen in some of the florists' windows, but these are from private greenhouses.

Telegraph business has been excellent, both incoming and outgoing orders being satisfactory. These are widely scattered, the orders not being from any particular community or city.

Various Notes.

Another Toronto florist has joined the F. T. D. He is T. H. P. Hammett, of Main street.

A meeting of the western Ontario members of the F. T. D. has been called, to take place at London November 1.

The executive of the Toronto Retail Florists' Club met November 2 to arrange committees and the coming meetings. The new president will entertain the members November 13, according to custom.

Arrangements have been completed for the flower show in connection with the Royal Winter Fair, to be held at Toronto, November 22 to 29. W. T. Macoun, of Ottawa, has been appointed judge of flowers.

The annual meeting of the Ontario Gardeners' and Florists' Association will be held at 22 College street November 20.

office and fumigation plant in New Orleans. The following resolutions were passed:

Resolved: That the New Orleans Horticultural Society take up the question with the state department, in Baton Rouge, and insist that the $10,000 that was appropriated for nursery inspection work be forthcoming for this work; also, that the office and central fumigation plant be kept open for the use of horticulturists and the public of New Orleans.

Resolved: That all New Orleans nurseries be inspected each month and, where necessary, clean-up measures be instituted.

Resolved: That the city of New Orleans spray and clean up all city trees infested by injurious insects in the vicinity of nurseries, and that private residents be required to clean up any plants on their premises which menace such nurseries.

Resolved: That the New Orleans Horticultural Society ask W. E. Anderson, state entomologist, why a sufficient force of inspectors has not been maintained in New Orleans to cope with the nursery inspection problems efficiently.

After the passing of the resolutions, there followed the announcement by Robert T. Hobson, chief inspector of the entomological division of the state department of agriculture, that the office maintained here will be closed, except for two hours daily.

It was decided at the meeting to make efforts to have the city appropriate money for the spraying of trees in the vicinity of nurseries, as being essential to favorable competition with nurseries in other states. According to an estimate to be brought to the attention of the commission council soon, $5,000 will be needed for four sprayings annually. This would also provide for spraying the municipal nurseries, from which trees for the parks and other public grounds are obtained.

The October Meeting.

The October meeting of the New Orleans Horticultural Society was held in Gentilly, at Farley's nurseries, October 22, 1922. Mr. Farley, one of New Orleans' most progressive florists, is a comparatively young man, full of pep. He has just completed a new packing room, large enough to hold six trucks at one time. He has three large houses of poinsettias that are in the best of condition, two or three houses of ferns, a large block of Robinson chrysanthemums, thousands of palms and hydrangeas and one house of cattleyas. He is making preparations to build two more orchid houses. Fancy-leaved caladiums for the northern market are grown here, as well as most of the Easter lilies that are sold here in New Orleans. Mr. Farley has an extensive nursery and a more healthy lot of stock would be hard to find. Cannas of the best kinds are grown in large numbers and a large block of promising Radiance roses. Several varieties of arbor-vitae in all sizes are beautiful to look upon, because one rarely sees large quantities of this class of evergreens in New Orleans. These, together with a good number of cedars, are all home-grown.

There were about thirty members present at the meeting. Charles Eble, the oldest southern florist, told of the progress of the business since he had been in it. His talk aroused considerable interest in some of the other members and they also told of progress in their line. A. Alost is another veteran, his line being ficus, dracaenas and crottons.

Correspondence from Baton Rouge, relative to the special meeting, aroused a lively discussion.

P. Chopin was selected to give a talk on "Credit," at the next meeting, which will be at Mr. Alost's residence.

A. Green was chosen to make up a list of suitable seeds and plants to plant the coming month. It is to be published in the daily papers for the benefit of garden owners.

After the business was concluded and the meeting adjourned, Mr. and Mrs. Farley served a real feast, and were given a vote of thanks for their hospitality.

President Papworth called on H. Kraak, who has just returned from a trip to Germany, to give us a little talk on the condition of the florists' trade over there. We were told that the florists' business has been almost wiped out of existence, because of the difference in wages paid by the florists and the factories. He said that the suit of clothing which he was wearing, and which looked every bit as good as our American ones, was purchased in Germany for the sum of $3 in American money. Mr. Kraak also told us of treating thirty of his friends to a dinner for 50 cents. This will give us an idea of the difference between the value of the German mark and the American dollar.

The Market.

The quantity of flowers cut by all the florists now is unusually large for this time of year, because of the continued warm weather. We need rain badly and a good cold snap would put a little more impetus into the trade. All outdoor flowers are gone now.

Chrysanthemums are arriving. These have been selling well and prices still remain up. Pompons in any quantity are not yet on the local market, although they have made their first appearance. These always sell well, because of their attractive combinations with other flowers.

Roses are plentiful, with large flowers and long, stiff stems. Columbia leads in the high-class roses; Premier and Ophelia are still close seconds. Crusader and American Legion are the best red roses on the market. These are being produced with big flowers and are of good color. Never have the American Beauties been so large and in such abundance this early in the season. The demand is greater than the supply, even with this abundance.

The California strawflowers have been selling rapidly this fall. Of these the brighter-colored helichrysums seem to take the best. Some of the florists are combining these helichrysums with statice, gypsophila and bittersweet, thus

In all the greenhouses the prospects for potted plants are good for early autumn trade. Begonias and pompons are in now and there is good indication that cyclamens are soon to follow.

Most of the bulbs are in now, perhaps with the exception of a few Paper Whites. All bulbs have been received in excellent condition.

Various Notes.

Frey & Frey are through now with their building program for this year and are busy getting their houses ready for winter. All their stock is unusually good, especially their house of the new violet, Frey's Fragrant. The benches are full of fine long-stemmed flowers, in a good deep purple. Irving Frey is away now, chicken shooting in the northern part of the state.

The Market.

Last week the weather was ideal for fall. The days were warm, but sharp frosts at night killed most of the outdoor stock, except where it was particularly well sheltered. Business during these days has shown an improvement, there being a fair demand for cut flowers as well as the regular run of funeral and wedding work. The cool nights are chiefly responsible for the excellent stock, which shows considerable improvement. There is a good supply of roses reaching us daily, and the demand keeps up well. Columbia, Ward, Butterfly, Ophelia, Premier and Pilgrim are among the daily consignments. American Beauties are of good quality, with a fair demand. Violets are improving and there is a steadier sale for them. Carnations are in good demand and the quality is good. There was a fair call for orchids last week, and valley is also in good demand. A fair supply of Bouvardia Humboldtii is seen and is sold freely. We are getting well into the chrysanthemum season now; the stock is coming along in excellent shape, and good varieties are seen, most of the stock selling for $20 to $30 per hundred. Pompons, cut and potted, are in good demand. Easter lilies are not abundant, and the call for them is good. The supply of calendulas is considerably smaller now than it was previously. Dahlias are scarcer. Helichrysums are plentiful and are being used extensively in basket work and colonial bouquets. Begonias, cyclamens, cherries and a few primroses are all that is seen in potted plants at this time. Green goods are in good demand.

The death of Ed Brockmann, of Irondequoit, N. Y., occurred early last week, following a serious operation for gallstones. Mr. Brockmann had been a florist in this community for a good many years and was an excellent grower.

George T. Boucher is running a large new delivery truck, which will be particularly useful to him during the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Hart and family spent the week-end in Buffalo, N. Y., making the trip by automobile.

Most of the uptown florists made special windows for Halloween, using a large quantity of cornstalks and yellow mums, with a goodly share of pumpkins filled with flowers in basket form.

Valentine Gatz, of Albion, N. Y., is bringing in a good quantity of mums, which find a ready sale.

Fred Schlegel & Sons report a good business so far this season. Stock with them is plentiful and in fine condition.

The Hart & Vick seed store is doing an extensive business in bulbs this season. This firm has a large mail order business and this season's orders are considerably heavier than heretofore.

Jacob Thomann & Sons are cutting some good mums, for which they are finding a ready sale. Funeral work at this establishment continues to be good.

A new flower store, which will be known as the Flower Shop, will be opened Saturday, November 4, at 668 North Clinton street, with Horace J. Head as its proprietor. Mr. Head is well known to the trade, having been traveling salesman for George B. Hart for the last three years. Previously he was in the employ of H. E. Wilson for over nine years, as designer at the East Main street store. H. J. H.

in good demand. A fair supply of Bouvardia Humboldtii is seen and is sold freely. We are getting well into the chrysanthemum season now; the stock is coming along in excellent shape, and good varieties are seen, most of the stock selling for $20 to $30 per hundred. Pompons, cut and potted, are in good demand. Easter lilies are not abundant, and the call for them is good. The supply of calendulas is considerably smaller now than it was previously. Dahlias are scarcer. Helichrysums are plentiful and are being used extensively in basket work and colonial bouquets. Begonias, cyclamens, cherries and a few primroses are all that is seen in potted plants at this time. Green goods are in good demand.

The death of Ed Brockmann, of Irondequoit, N. Y., occurred early last week, following a serious operation for gallstones. Mr. Brockmann had been a florist in this community for a good many years and was an excellent grower. George T. Boucher is running a large new delivery truck, which will be particularly useful to him during the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Hart and family spent the week-end in Buffalo, N. Y., making the trip by automobile.

Most of the uptown florists made special windows for Halloween, using a large quantity of cornstalks and yellow mums, with a goodly share of pumpkins filled with flowers in basket form.

Valentine Gatz, of Albion, N. Y., is bringing in a good quantity of mums, which find a ready sale.

Fred Schlegel & Sons report a good business so far this season. Stock with them is plentiful and in fine condition.

The Hart & Vick seed store is doing an extensive business in bulbs this season. This firm has a large mail order business and this season's orders are considerably heavier than heretofore.

Jacob Thomann & Sons are cutting some good mums, for which they are finding a ready sale. Funeral work at this establishment continues to be good.

A new flower store, which will be known as the Flower Shop, will be opened Saturday, November 4, at 668 North Clinton street, with Horace J. Head as its proprietor. Mr. Head is well known to the trade, having been traveling salesman for George B. Hart for the last three years. Previously he was in the employ of H. E. Wilson for over nine years, as designer at the East Main street store. H. J. H.

INSPECT GOVERNMENT WORK.
Garden Clubs at Capital.

A trip through the Arlington farm and the greenhouses of the Department of Agriculture, and addresses by officials of the Department of Agriculture were the features of the meetings of the Garden Club of America in Washington last week. The convention was attended by more than 300 members and delegates from all sections of the United States. The meeting was not a regular business meeting, that coming in June, and the next will be held in Newport next summer, but the convention in Washington was more for the purpose of keeping in touch with the activities of the government and viewing some of the changes which have occurred in floral circles in that city since the last meeting that was held there.

Members of the Garden Club went to Arlington as guests of the bureau of plant industry to view the rose garden being carried on in coöperation with the American Rose Society. They were shown the large number of varieties of roses which are being tested there, the hardy chrysanthemums selected from more than 10,000 varieties, and which are being tested for outdoor use, and collections of irises and peonies, the latter being work which is carried on in coöperation with the American Peony Society. After leaving Arlington, the club members visited Gunston hall, on the Potomac just below Mount Vernon, where they were entertained at luncheon by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hertle, and were shown the rose gardens which are located there. Following this the party visited Mount Vernon, where a wreath was placed on Washington's tomb and a tree planted. Under arrangements which had previously been made with the Mount Vernon regents, the tree was a seedling from a white ash originally planted by George Washington himself.

Dr. Taylor at Greenhouses.

A large party of members also visited the greenhouses at the Department of Agriculture, where they were shown through by Dr. W. A. Taylor, chief of the bureau of plant industry, accompanied by officials of the bureau. During their trip through the greenhouses, they were the first to see the chrysanthemums which will be placed in the big mum show this year. The season for chrysanthemums has been rather poor, but, according to Dr. Taylor and those who visited the greenhouses, the new varieties which will be shown will be interesting. Many of the varieties which have been prime favorites in years past are in excellent bloom this year. There will be at least a dozen varieties which are flowering for the first time and which will be shown during the show.

The work being carried on in the twenty greenhouses of the department was carefully explained by Doctor Taylor and his assistants, and the Garden Club members were shown over practically all of the available space, seeing much of the work which is being done in the field of flowers, fruits and vegetables. Much interest was shown by members of the club in a collection of new vegetables now under test. These are being studied by the office of foreign seed and plant introduction. The collection consists of basella, a hot weather spinach; escarolle and endive, varieties relatively little known; Chinese mustards; tai-tsa, or Chinese cabbage; patience; a perennial green; daikon, Chinese radish, and giant triangle sorrel, a hot-climate green.

Club Meetings.

The meetings of the Garden Club were devoted to a discussion of developments in parks and similar activities in Washington and the work of the Department of Agriculture. The development of the city was taken up at the first full meetings, on the evening of

The Ideal Evergreen Grave Blanket

NOTHING can approach it for beauty as a winter covering for graves. Our special method of close weaving gives it the rich green mound effect so greatly admired. The Ideal Blanket is manufactured only by us. Florists will find our Blanket a valuable addition to their business, as it is strictly in their line. Profits are good, as they retail from $4.00 to $5.00 each. Our Blankets also furnish the base for added decorations which will run their retail price up to $50.00 or more.

Wild Smilax, $7.50 per case

THE E. F. WINTERSON CO., 166 N. WABASH AVENUE Chicago, Ill.
 Phone Central 6004. Established 1893

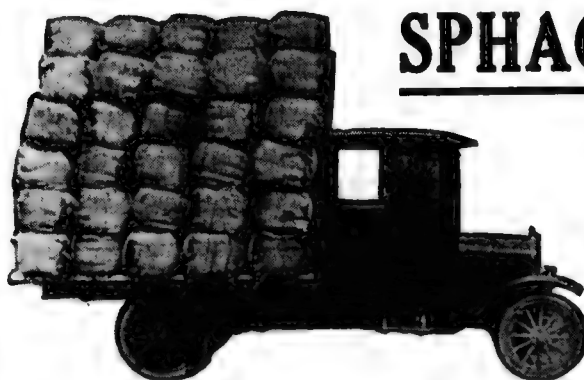

October 25, when Charles Moore, chairman, and James L. Greenleaf, a member of the commission of fine arts, spoke on the subject of improving Washington. The speakers severely criticized the old and decrepit buildings which are located at the foot of Pennsylvania avenue, just below the Capitol, and in other sections of the city where the greatest interest centers for visitors. Members of the Garden Club were asked to do what they could in their own communities in influencing legislation to bring about the elimination of these unsightly spots and the substitution therefor of parks, trees and flowers.

Unless immediate action is taken to stop the building in certain sections of the city, the original plan for a park system which would enable a person to drive completely around Washington without crossing a section will never be carried out, declared Mr. Greenleaf. At the present time building construction is going on on ground which it was originally proposed to place in this system of parks. Unless Congress takes the necessary steps to acquire this land in the near future, the proposed park will never be completed. "The Voice of the Wild Flowers," a fantasy written by Mrs. Minnigerode Andrews, was a feature of the final session. In "The Voice of the Wild Flowers" the various flowers of the fields and woods were shown in tableaux, the colorful costumes and the excellent staging doing much to make the piece a success. The growth of Shaw's water lily gardens, at Kenilworth, was explained to members of the club by Mrs. L. Helen Fowler, manager, who illustrated her talk by a number of interesting slides, which showed the ponds and flowers for which the business has become well known the world over. Mrs. Fowler also made some interesting comments on her recent trip to South America.

Acidifying Soil.

Means for acidifying soil for the growing of orchids, rhododendrons and other flowers have been discovered by the experts at the greenhouses of the Department of Agriculture, declared Dr. Frederick V. Coville, chief botanist of the department, who was one of the principal speakers. This was the first public announcement of this discovery, which will be of great importance to flower growers in all parts of the country.

For some time experiments have been dience. Many plants, he pointed out, require an acid soil, among them the rhododendrons and azaleas, the various members of the heather family and the blueberry. Dr. Coville declared that he has found that by the use of aluminum sulphate he can acidify any soil. In the past, acidification has been brought about through the use of peat and decaying leaves. By the use of the acid soil, however, he has been able to increase the blueberry from its previous insignificant size to almost an inch in diameter. The new discovery is held to open the door to great developments in the culture of orchids, the arbutus and other plants.

Dr. Coville also discussed other experiments which he has conducted in the greenhouses, as the result of one of which the department has succeeded in making a poinsettia bloom in August, instead of its natural blooming period, around Christmas. This was done by controlling the daylight to which the plant was exposed; efforts were made to restrict the plant to ten hours of daylight every day. Other experiments dealt with the effect of cold on certain varieties of plants, and it was found that dahlias which were exposed to chilling periodically grew much faster and were much healthier than similar plants which had been grown in a warmer place. These experiments have not been completed and further study is being given these subjects.

Dr. William E. Stafford, of the bureau of plant industry, gave an illustrated lecture on the dahlia, showing many beautiful pictures of the various specimens, all of which have sprung from three original species found in Mexico and South America.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

In looking over the stock at the markets and the wholesale houses, one cannot help noting the lack of variety in the flowers. Retailers look in vain for something a little out of the ordinary, something they can interest a flower lover in as distinct from an ordinary flower buyer. There is room for the grower with new ideas as to stock, but he will have to do more or less pioneer work, owing to the sheep-like tenacity with which the average retailer and stand holder, yes, and wholesaler, too, follow the same old line of least resistance. Whenever anything new is shown by a grower, he has to run the gauntlet of wholesaler and retailer, take the remarks made about his flowers as good-temperedly as he can and eventually wear down the wall of prejudice and make good.

Mums and dahlias are both at their best and the yards everywhere are full of flowers. But in spite of this, flowers clean up daily and the stock that goes to the trash can is usually worthy of just that destination. It is true that the grower has often to make a reduction in price to the retailer who will help him out by gambling on an extra large bill, but this is only to be expected at times of plenty. Possibly by the time these lines are read conditions may be quite different, but with summer weather in late October, no rain to damage stock and little fog, it is no wonder that prices on certain lines favor the buyer. Flowers of first-grade quality, and especially stock that will ship, is holding up well. Retailers say that funeral work is still the mainstay of this trade, but customers are beginning to talk of decorations and the outlook is good.

Various Notes.

H. Plath and E. W. McLellan, both from San Francisco, and H. G. Frey, of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., were in the city last week.

C. E. Moore and Jesse S. Nunn, both of Santa Ana, have purchased the retail business of Howard E. Gates, on Los Angeles street, Anaheim, Cal.

Baskets are selling well at the store of the E. C. Amling Co., where there is an immense stock of these in all shapes and sizes. The roses are coming in fine from the Amling Bros.' range, at Santa Ana.

Carl Brose, of H. Bateman, Inc., went off on a duck and goose hunting expedition last week. He says business has been fine at the store. He leaves here in November to join the staff of the Dostal-Wolters Flower Shop, Hill street.

George Eischen returned last week from San Francisco, his partner, E. J. Delaney, having been in the city to take his place while he was away. Mr. Delaney has returned to the northern city.

Sweet peas look promising in the new greenhouses of Groen's Nurseries, Montebello. Large consignments of Dutch bulbs have arrived here and the whole staff is kept busy planting.

Murata & Co. are shipping wreaths made of prepared foliage and straw-flowers to Mexico. They are beautifully made by R. Overstreet, who knows well how to bring out the color values in this class of stock.

Lichtenberg's is a busy place now, decorations, funeral work and other business keeping a large staff on the rush.

H. Eischen, recently of Alexandria Florist, has started a flower store in Alhambra.

It looks like plenty of Easter lilies this year. The Figueroa Street Nursery, at Montebello, is potting 25,000, while close by, at the Star Nursery, is another big lot. These are giganteum. The formosums are, of course, already up and growing.

Excellent reports on the condition of the arrival of long-distance shipments continue to come to Walter Armacost & Co., these referring not only to the splendid long-stemmed Russell roses now going out, but also to the green shipments, which are getting back to normal winter capacity. This firm has again contracted for the entire heather crop grown by H. R. Richards, at Montebello. Despite the injury from frost last season, this stock is again in wonderful condition.

An immense block of dahlias in all of the best commercial varieties is now in full beauty at the nursery of Howard & Smith. Standing out head and shoulders above everything else is the magnificent white, Polar Bear. Without question, this is one of the most wonderful commercial dahlias ever sent out. Its absolute purity of color, fine, wiry stem and long-lasting qualities put it in the first rank. There is not a more free-flowering kind in existence. It is another triumph for this well known firm.

Paul Ecke is much pleased with the condition of his poinsettias this season, and he will be shipping earlier than last year. His plantings are about the same as those of last season, but the weather has been more suitable and kindly, so there will be no lack of fine stock for Thanksgiving trade. Mr. Eeke left last week for a northern trip, to be gone about ten or fourteen days.

David Goldman, of the Redondo Floral Co., and Anton Graalfs, of the Athletic Club Florist, have started in business for themselves at 2028 West Seventh street under the name of the Art Floral Co. This is at the intersection of Seventh and Alvarado streets, which should be a good location. Both of these young men have had a good deal of experience with the best class of trade in Los Angeles. The Market.

Since the heavy rainfall last week, the outdoor flowers have gone for this season, and business will increase considerably for wholesalers and retailers. Local mums are coming in freely and are of good quality. Violets are showing up from California, but are of poor quality. Local violets are coming in more freely and are in good demand. Ferns in all sizes are plentiful. Orchids are on the increase and are readily taken by the trade. Carnations are coming in from all the growers and are improving right along.

Florists' Club Meets.

The Oregon Florists' Club held its monthly meeting at the regular quarters, October 24, with a good attendance. The meeting was of unusual interest, as a great deal of business was disposed of. Several suggestions were made by members to the club, and will be acted upon at a later meeting. It was also decided to hold a series of

Speaking of Gladioli

Do you know that the variety MRS. DR. NORTON is a most pleasing shade of apple-blossom pink, that BYRON L. SMITH is a superb lavender and GOLDEN MEASURE a glorious clear yellow? This is the English yellow which has been selling at several dollars a bulb. Having increased our plantings, we are now offering these three fine varieties and a few other good ones at prices within the reach of all progressive florists.

Here are the prices for immediate acceptance, fall delivery. Better get busy, as they are moving in large lots.

dances later in the season and this met with great approval. Efforts are being made to get everyone connected with the florists' business to join the club and work for the betterment of the business in general.

Wiederman Is Host.

A fine venison dinner, followed by a dance, was served to seventy members of the Oregon Florists' Club and their lady guests, Wednesday evening, October 25, at the Multnomah hotel. Leo Wiederman, member of the club, furnished, for the second time, the deer, which he recently killed on his hunting trip in southern Oregon. The elaborate decorations were furnished for the occasion by the various retailers, and consisted of palms, ferns, chrysanthemums and roses. A good time was enjoyed by all present. A vote of thanks was extended to Leo Wiederman and the committee in charge for the successful occasion. N. V. H.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums were still the leaders in the market last week. The Turner mums were numerous and in prime condition. There were a number of other large varieties and the medium-sized, small and pompon mums were exhibited in great profusion. Violets were much more plentiful and were selling well. The first anemones were seen in several florists' windows, but they were not numerous enough to have any appreciable effect on the market. Carnations were plentiful and cheap. Roses were good and there was a satisfactory supply. Scotch heather was not much more plentiful than it had been the preceding week. There were plenty of cut cyclamens, baby roses, mignonette, gillyflowers, delphiniums, marigolds of many kinds and dahlias, though the dahlias

Various Notes.

An effort has been made to reorganize the Retail Florists' Association of San Francisco and to enlarge its scope by taking florists' employees into the ranks of the organization. A meeting was held a few days ago and the following officers were elected: President, J. Kilroy, of the Castro Floral Co.; vice-president, Albert O. Stein; treasurer, P. Benedetti. The committee on reorganization is made up as follows: Charles Brown, of Brown & Kennedy; John Pagano, of Avansino Bros. & Co.; Anton Dinucci, of Dinucci Bros., proprietors force Sunday closing and can also take steps to prevent growers from putting up prices on holidays and on such occasions as Mothers' day.

The All Saints' day business this year assumed large proportions. Speaking of this, W. A. Lewis, inspector for the American Express Co., said: "This is a regular movement and we are trying our best to cater to it. Three carloads, chiefly of chrysanthemums, left for New Orleans. Four years ago, the first car to leave from here for New Orleans contained only 10,000 pounds. This year we have shipped over a thousand boxes in two days—over 50,000 pounds of flowers." When asked how it happens that the florists are so fortunate as to secure cars, when grape growers and other fruit men are tearfully lamenting the shortage of cars, Mr. Lewis said: "Grapes are not so valuable a commodity and they are not moved in refrigerator cars, except a few choice table grapes. This practice of shipping flowers to New Orleans has grown tremendously, and we are helping the movement by providing all the cars needed."

General Gooch, of Darbee's, had a novel idea for preparing his stock for New Orleans. The whole crew, including the bookkeeper, went to the growers, at Menlo, and boxed the chrysanthemums there. Like a good many other large shippers, these men worked almost to the point of exhaustion, with an augmented staff, but they got the goods off.

Charles Brown, of Brown & Kennedy, was a delegate to the Elks' convention, at Santa Monica, from the Elks' lodge of San Francisco.

Adrian J. Schoorl reports that business is good in bulbs. He is practically sold out on daffodils and hyacinths, but is still well supplied with tulips. The season has been exceptionally early, according to Mr. Schoorl. The rain came at a timely period and started people planting.

H. A. Avansino is building several new houses at his nursery in Alameda county. In them will be grown early tulips, daffodils and lilies for the market.

The staff of Enomoto & Co. fully participated in the orgy of work for All Saints' day that was indulged in by about half a dozen large packers. The firm handles quantities of fine Turners, ment is next door to the new store of the Suzanne Floral Co. and the gift baskets were numerous and elaborate. They also had the decorations for the annual banquet of the stockholders of the Mutual Drug Co., the tables, laid for 100 guests, being done in pink Ophelia roses and blue delphiniums.

Domoto Bros. were busy with chrysanthemums, Turners especially, for New Orleans. They state that the chrysanthemums have been arriving at their various destinations in excellent condition, not more than three complaints in all having been received from consignees, these being due to a spell of heat in the middle west.

Mr. Tanaka leaves for Japan November 11 to look after the interests of the United Flower & Supply Co. in arranging with houses over there for supplies. The firm states that, in spite of the large crops of chrysanthemums this year, all the flowers have been cleaned up.

Joseph's last week decorated a charming engagement party table in tuberous-rooted begonias, Columbia roses and pansies. George Wagner is using a good many begonias at present in his decorations.

Avansino Bros. & Co. have been especially busy with teas and funerals.

Manager Pritchard, of Goldberg, Bowen & Co., has had many table decorations.

Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has gone to Byron Springs to recuperate. This firm was busy with decorations for the funeral of the late Signor Fontana, who was one of the best known Italians in the state of California and the pioneer in some of its industries.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Sharp, snappy weather last week brought a heavy white frost for several nights in succession. This spelled doom for the dahlias. The market for chrysanthemums and other seasonable flowers is thriving. Chrysanthemums are coming in plentifully and the quality of stock is exceptionally fine. Pompons are also now one of the leading features in the market and are being received in several colors and varieties. The supply of roses during the last week increased considerably.

There seems to be a sufficient quantity of carnations to take care of the demand. Lily of the valley is being received in the market daily and moves out fairly well. Yellow daisies are to be had and the demand is fairly good.

Various Notes.

Last week Mrs. E. A. Williams delivered a truckload of flowers to Fairmont, W. Va. A prominent oil man from Oklahoma died and was buried from Fairmont.

The annual chrysanthemum show was opened Sunday, October 29, to the public at Schenley park conservatory. Crowds of people thronged this exhibition, and at times the crowds were compelled to wait in line for hours.

E. J. McCallum, president of the McCallum Co., who has just returned from a trip abroad, will be the principal speaker at the Florists' and Gardeners' Club's meeting to be held in Carnegie hall Tuesday evening, November 7.

Zvolanek's Winter Orchid-Flowering Sweet Pea Seed

Every packet of our Winter-Flowering Sweet Pea Seed must bear our Trade Mark. Do not accept any other as genuine.

ZVOLANEK'S NOVELTIES FOR 1922-23

The Best Blue Sweet Peas Ever Produced to Date

Zvolanek's Blue Sensation—A self of clearest blue. Similar to Zvolanek's Blue and twice as large. The best blue ever produced. Four flowers to a long stem; they hold their color to the very last.

Zvolanek's Blue Wonder—A large clear blue flower upon opening, but changes to a light violet as it ages. Slightly larger than the above.

Zvolanek's Blue Chief—A blue self which is slightly darker than Zvolanek's Blue Sensation, but in all other respects is the same.

Zvolanek's Comet—A large salmon on cream ground. A good bloomer and holds color very well. If well grown, majority of flowers produce four on a long stem and with double standards or wings—very large.

Price—¼ oz., $4.00.

Zvolanek's Pink—Practically the same as Zvolanek's Rose, but shorter grower. Color of more intense pink, which holds color to the very last.

Price—1 oz., $2.50; 4 oz., $8.00; 1 lb., $25.00.

Zvolanek's Rose—This is the very best commercial Sweet Pea ever produced to date. Every one who has ever tried it cannot say enough for it and wants it again in larger quantities. The flowers are of the most beautiful self-rose color, double the size of Mrs. Skach; holds its color to the last and is a free bloomer, also unexcelled for outdoors.

Price—1 oz., $2.00; 4 oz., $6.00; 1 lb., $20.00.

Zvolanek's Perfection—Dark pink or old rose of very largest size; similar to Zvolanek's Rose in shape and size. Holds color to last; short crop.

Price—1 oz., $2.00.

Zvolanek's Xmas Gem—Same color as Xmas Pink, only double the size. One of our 1919 introductions. Short crop.

Price—1 oz., $2.00.

White and Blush Colors

Zvolanek's White—The largest white-seeded white in existence; flowers are wide apart with nearly all fours; majority with double wings or standards. The very best commercial white to date.

Zvolanek's Swan—The very best black-seeded white; rather short grower, with very ruffled flowers. One of our 1920 introductions.

Ed. Zvolanek—Purest lavender, similar to Mrs. Chas. Zvolanek in color, but very large. A good bloomer in darkest winter. If well grown the majority of the flowers produce four to a long stem, with double wings or standards. This variety is a great improvement over all other lavenders. May revert to some extent, but we guarantee it about 90 per cent true.

Price—1 oz., $2.00; 4 oz., $6.00; 1 lb., $20.00.

These are the best commercial varieties and all of largest size. There are none better. Send for complete list.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Alexander Forbes, Newark, N. J.;
Secretary, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

LESTER L. MORSE will celebrate his fifty-second birthday anniversary November 9.

THE principal houses report the demand for bulbs to be continuing strong and steady.

THEODORE OUTERBRIDGE came from Bermuda to attend the bulb conference October 30 at Washington, D. C.

SMALL acreages characterize the flower seed crops throughout the country. On the other hand, most stock is excellent.

JELLE ROOS has added seventy acres to his already extensive holdings, at Concord, Mass. He will grow still more gladioli.

THE travelers for the Holland bulb exporters began arriving in this country in late October, in quest of orders for the 1923 crop.

THE November calendar of the J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo, Neb., says, "Half the battle is being on the hilltop first, the other half in staying there."

THE Oregon Bulb Co., of Salem, Ore., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $15,000. The incorporators are James Forbes, W. C. Dibble, W. C. Franklin and Rollin K. Page.

THE final accounting of the bankrupt estate of J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York, has yielded creditors a third dividend. This is of sixteen per cent. A total, therefore, of forty-six per cent on claims has been paid by the receiver.

AMONG those at the bulb conference, at Washington, D. C., from Chicago were James Burdett, of Vaughan's Seed Store, and A. Henderson, of A. Henderson & Co. A complete account of the conference is to be found on page 29 of this issue.

J. C. VAUGHAN, national counselor of the S. A. F. in the United States Chamber of Commerce, advises that the Chamber of Commerce, by referendum vote, favors making par remittance in payment of checks universal throughout the United States.

"THE present unsteady and fluctuating conditions in Germany," writes a flower seed exporter, "render it perfectly impossible to fix prices binding for a long time. I therefore mean to point to the prices of this catalogue as being by no means obligatory. By the fluctuating monetary standard I am forced to reserve alterations of the prices. If the mark should improve and prices decline, I readily make due allowance."

Our catalogue will be sent free on application. Primulinus MAIDEN'S BLUSH, pink, extra.

F. O. WILDHAGEN and L. J. Dunnwald, who conduct a gladiolus farm on Hammond avenue, Waterloo, Ia., have completed the harvesting of seven million bulbs. This is the largest crop the firm has ever had.

THE opening of the Madison street bridge, in Chicago, has caused a rapid acceleration in the retail business of the W. W. Barnard Co. The detour it was necessary for commuters to make when the bridge was closed kept them from the lure of the store's big display windows on Madison street.

HOLLAND bulb exporters now in this country include the heads of several important houses. Most of them were present at the conference between the bulb dealers and the federal horticultural board at Washington, October 30, but probably the chief reason for their early appearance here is the losses sustained on the bulbs which heated on the New Amsterdam.

C. C. MASSIE CELEBRATES.

November 6, Charles C. Massie, president of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., will celebrate the completion of a half-century of life. Three-fifths of this time has been spent with the firm above-named, and at the same time he will celebrate his thirtieth year there.

Mr. Massie was born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, November 6, 1872, the son of a grain merchant. He was educated in the public schools and at Robert Gordon College, Aberdeen. He worked for a time in a seed store in Aberdeen. In 1892 he came to Minneapolis and entered the employ of Northrup, King & Co. He became secretary of the company in 1896 and later acted as manager for many years. In 1914 he became president and general manager, on the retirement of Jesse E. Northrup.

At Cleveland, in 1913, he was elected president of the American Seed Trade Association and vice-president of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association. He has always been prominent in the affairs of the trade and his services have been highly valued in the trade's organizations.

Mr. Massie was married in 1896 and has one daughter, 23 years of age, and a son, 20 years old.

ON THE PACIFIC SLOPE.

In his four weeks' trip to the Pacific coast, which ended with his return to Chicago October 22, C. D. Coventry, secretary of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, visited many of the western seedsmen, all of whom, he reports, presented him the glad hand of hospitality. He was generally taken from place to place in automobiles by his hosts, which enabled him to cover a great deal of ground.

Conditions in general throughout the west are fine, according to Mr. Coven-try. Crops are generally splendid, but, as a rule, acreages are small. Slight shortages are apparent in salsify, parsnips, onions and some others, but these shortages are by no means serious.

Among the firms visited was that of the El Paso Seed Co., El Paso, Tex. This firm has just moved into new quarters and reports good business. The company does a considerable amount of business with the Mexicans. A new catalogue has just been issued.

At the fields of John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, Cal., Mr. Coventry saw much excellent stock, including fine asters and the noted Bodger zinnias, which Mr. Coventry says "would pay anyone to go and see." Exquisite, Burnt Orange and Golden State are especially fine.

With the Haven Seed Co., at Santa Ana, Cal., all stock is in first-class condition, and all hands are busy in preparation for the coming season.

The Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Cal., Mr. Coventry says, has as VINE SEED CROPS.

The summary of the 1922 crops of vine seeds and corn sent out by the J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo, Neb., reads as follows:

Seed corn has matured in splendid shape this fall, but the short acreage and small yield will allow no large surplus. We think sweet corn particularly short and what small surpluses we have had are being taken rapidly. The poorest crop of cucumber seed is being delivered since this vegetable has been grown in Colorado in large quantities for seed. The acreage, in the first place, was small, and with sition. We have reported full delivery on contract orders, but think that on some items we may fill short, since actual delivery has been so disappointing.

The seed crop of muskmelon promised better than cucumber, but deliveries so far have been below estimates. We do not think the shortage in muskmelon will be so acute as in cucumbers. However, a short acreage forbids any large surpluses. Aphis has been particularly bad in Colorado the past year.

Our northern-grown watermelon seed has given universal satisfaction the past year, and our district is so reliable that we are harvesting every acre planted. Aphis has worked more than usual, but with no serious damage. The seedsmen shown through our patches this fall are unanimous in declaring our section unexcelled for producing melon seed. The seed is produced by the finest type of American farmers under ideal conditions, insuring pure stocks of better germination and appearance than the seed ordinarily offered.

Pumpkin crops are nearly a failure in Colorado and central Nebraska, while winter squash is nearly as poor. Summer squash was damaged by the dry weather in September to the extent of only returning one-third the yield promised in August. We believe pumpkin and squash are very short this season in all sections of the country.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Babylon Dahlia Gardens, Babylon, N. Y.—"Patrician Dahlias," a neat folder, printed with brown ink on heavy, enameled, cream-colored paper; it contains an advance retail list, with an invitation to "send for our complete de luxe catalogue, ready January 1."

W. E. Kirchhoff, Sr., Monterey, Cal.—"Descriptive List of Gladioli of Unusual Merit," a 4-page circular. Besides about half a dozen recently introduced varieties, mostly originated by Mr. Kirchhoff, the list comprises a selection of about thirty standard commercial sorts.

W. M. Woodruff's Son & Co., Lowgap, N. C.—An exceptionally tasteful booklet, offering "Woodruff's Eagle Brand" preserved foliage and other decorative greens; illustrated; twenty-two pages, in pocket form; printed with green ink on enameled paper and bound in a light green cover with dark green and red lettering.

Naperville Nurseries, Naperville, Ill.—A general catalogue, with a conspicuous, rubber-stamped statement as to the amount of discount granted to the trade; twenty-four pages and cover. A comprehensive list of hard-wooded stock, both ornamental and fruit-bearing, is followed by a good list, also, of herbaceous perennials. The catalogue is rendered distinctive by the color of the paper, which is yellowish or orange-hued throughout, with the exception of the inside pages of the cover.

Hermann Leid, Arnstadt, Germany.—A comprehensive catalogue of flower and vegetable seeds; illustrated, fifty-six pages, in a richly colored cover. In the flower list, the dianthus or pink family occupies a large amount of space. Indeed, on his stationery Mr. Leid refers to himself as a "pink-grower and horticulturist," and he lists the dianthus varieties in wide assortment, from the old-fashioned and improved garden pinks to the greenhouse carnations, or "American remontant" type. Pansies are another of his specialties.

Ove Gnatt Co., Inc., La Porte, Ind.—A notably comprehensive, attractively arranged, well illustrated catalogue of florists' supplies; forty-eight unusually large pages, printed on a good grade of enameled paper. On the front cover is an artistic design in colors, with the "O. G." trade-mark as the central feature; on the back cover are views of several different departments of the company's business, at La Porte and Hammond, Ind., at Evergreen, Ala., and at Chicago. The stock offered is not limited to the distinctive Gnatt specialties, such as prepared foliages, artificial palms and similar wares, but includes baskets, wire designs, flower boxes, vases and a full line of other staple supplies.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Employees of the office of foreign seed and plant introduction, of the Department of Agriculture, last month surprised their director, Dr. David Fairchild, by presenting him with a memorial citing the work which he has accomplished since the formation of the bureau and expressing the friendly sentiments of the staff toward him. The twenty-fifth anniversary of the office of foreign seed and plant industry was celebrated October 9. Dr. David Fairchild joined the forces of the Department of Agriculture in 1889, as a member of the division of plant pathology, and was the leader in the organization of the plant introduction work, which was, for the first few months, conducted as a part of the division of forestry.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

AUGUSTINE & Co., Normal, Ill., expect to have work started in a few days on a propagating house east of the present offices of the branch at Bloomington, Ill. This greenhouse is to be used for the propagation of giant Concord grapes, which are now being started at the parent plant at Normal. The new house will contain 1,000 square feet of glass.

THE Monroe Nursery, at Monroe, Mich., is celebrating its seventy-fifth anniversary this year. It was founded in 1847 by Israel E. Ilgenfritz. Since his death, in 1905, it has been conducted by his sons. Wilbur F. Ilgenfritz is president of the company, Frank L. Ilgenfritz, vice-president, and Thomas I. Ilgenfritz, secretary and treasurer. The corporation operating the nursery is known as I. E. Ilgenfritz' Sons Co.

IN connection with the "Plan to Plant Another Tree" movement of the Illinois Nurserymen's Association, Secretary J. A. Young has issued a pamphlet of suggestions in regard to Tree Planting week. This pamphlet contains the names of the many different clubs and civic organizations which have been appealed to in order to further the planting of trees. It is suggested in the pamphlet that civic organizations which have the public welfare at heart be instructed to appoint a committee and allow this committee to decide upon one or more activities with the object to further the tree planting movement in their community. The folder gives purposes for which trees might be planted during the week, also.

PLAN TO PLANT ANOTHER TREE.

Movement Making Progress.

Nurserymen and florists from all sections of America are tying up to "Plan to Plant Another Tree." The movement is to encourage tree planting, and by this we mean shrubs and flowers as well. The movement is being sponsored by the 4,000 nurserymen of the nursery industry and by the 18,000 florists who handle nursery stock.

All civic and agricultural clubs, farmers' clubs and farm bureaus are ready to cooperate with us. These clubs know the value of tree and shrub planting in their community. They are always anxious to do anything for civic betterment. Many such clubs and especially the chambers of commerce have already given us a lift. The "Plan to Plant Another Tree" movement has been financed by subscriptions and has cost but little money, compared with the value it has been to the nursery industry.

Subscribers to the Fund.

So that all may know the money is being spent, we publish below a list of subscribers, and a statement as to money expended:

The Great American Wonder Lemon

Will bear fragrant flowers and fruits in any ordinary living-room. Fruits are immense. Equal to three or four ordinary Lemons

This is one of the grandest fruits for house culture ever introduced. The flowers are pure waxy white, very sweet and like orange blossoms; the leaves are thick, glossy green, and shine as if varnished. It is a strong, healthy grower, requires no coddling, and will bear fruits quickly as soon as established.

Dwarf Otaheite Orange

Has thick, glossy green leaves and deliciously sweet, pure white flowers. It begins fruiting while quite young, and bears flowers and lovely, golden yellow Oranges on the same plant at the same time.

All summer field-grown—now in pots—nicely established.

A PLANT INVESTMENT IS SURE TO GROW IN VALUE

New Box-Barberry NOVELTY HARDY EDGING PLANT

Perfectly Hardy Anywhere in the United States

An exquisite, new, perfectly hardy edging plant. Makes shapely, upright bushes, that can be kept 6 inches high by trimming. Our stock is grown from cuttings made from the original plant.

Especially valuable in the central and northern states, as it is perfectly hardy and does not winter-kill.

This new dwarf Barberry comes to fill a long-felt need for an edging plant that is dwarf in growth, free from all diseases and insect pests, and absolutely hardy everywhere in the United States. The foliage is small and dainty, in fact, as small as the leaves of the universally known evergreen Box Edging, Buxus sempervirens. The young leaves are a beautiful emerald-green in the spring, changing to a pleasing, soft green during the summer and dark red in the fall. In many parts of this country, garden-beds had to be bordered annually or not at all, as there was no perfectly hardy edging plant to use, but now no garden need be incomplete on this account. Box-Barberry, as far as we are aware, has never been known to winter-kill in the slightest degree, and this insures a neat, unbroken border that is always a delight to look at.

Border your rose-beds, also your perennials and annuals, with this neat, upright, hardy, little shrub. Plant 4 inches apart for a low border and keep the plants pruned to whatever height you want. They can be trimmed at any time without injury, and pruning or trimming makes the plants grow more dense.

I am pleased with the appearance of the BOX-BARBERRY and intend to order more for spring planting. What I ordered last spring was merely a trial. I think when I get enough to border the entire rose-bed, that the effect will be very pleasing. Assuring you I will be more than pleased to recommend it, I am, H. A. T., Minneapolis, Minn.

sible. Men in authority, including President Harding, are encouraging the plan. The good road commissioners all over the country have started the planting of trees along the highways and most of our states are interested in furthering the cause.

"Plan to Plant Another Tree" and the plan of reforestation are the vital things which make for better citizenship. The trees along the highways add 1,000 per cent to land values, and supply a long-needed want for all of our people. I trust the nurserymen will realize their responsibility, for it is up to them to provide the need. Let us all put our shoulder to the wheel to carry on a duty which we owe not only to ourselves, but to future generations.

the late fall outdoors in prepared beds, which should have a mulch of hay, straw or leaves over them through the winter. It is an advantage to macerate the fruits before sowing, in order to eliminate the pulp from the seeds. Seeds may be sown under glass in flats from November until March. Some of the Chinese varieties germinate quickly; others require several months. In your own case I would suggest sowing outdoors, if you want a large quantity. If only a moderate number are needed, sow them in flats under glass. Either method will give good results. C. W.

ROSE STOCKS FOR BUDDING.

Are multiflora rose stocks, 3 to 4 years old, as good to bud as young stock? J. S.—Pa.

Stocks which are 3 to 4 years old will be rather large for grafting, although they might be used for outdoor stock. The writer would rather not use such old stocks if younger ones are obtainable. C. W.

MEALY BUGS ON TREES.

I have mailed you a specimen of an insect taken from three different kinds of plants; one a rose bush, one a chrysanthemum and one a large pecan tree. I suppose it is the mealy bug, although I have used whale-oil soap, kerosene emulsion and a nicotine pray without marked success. The latter preparation was more effective than any other, but I did not continue its use, because it is somewhat expensive. This insect made its appearance in town about eighteen months ago. One entire hedge was killed, and the pest has gradually spread, so that the shrubs and trees in the prettiest residential section of our town are becoming heavily infested. Will the formula for killing mealy bug given in The Review of October 12 be a good one? E. B. J.—Ga.

The shoots received were almost smothered with mealy bug. The remedy, published in The Review, October 12, is a good one and I can safely recommend it. Strong pressure of cold water from a well directed fine nozzle is an excellent remedy for mealy bug. The force of the water will blow the bugs off, but additional applications will be necessary to keep the plants clean. Hammond's Thrip Juice, applied at double strength advised for thrips, also proves a good remedy for mealy bug, but the carbolic acid solution should prove effective on your various open-air crops. C. The Kunde & Son Normal Double Cut Pruning Shears are the Shears that give satisfaction. Once used, you would not be without them

No. 135. Normal Double Cut Pruning Shears. — This is the best and strongest all around shears for nurseries and florists. Will cut a branch 1 inch in diameter; 8 inches long. Price $3.00 each; $30.00 per dozen.

We gave the Kunde double cut pruning shears a good trial by cutting the tops of the budded Manetti roses, which were very heavy, but they stood the test, as they worked very satisfactorily. Also the knives we bought are very fine. Please send us by return mail six more shears.

Yours truly,
KOSTER & CO.
Bridgeton, N. J.

With regard to the shears which you sent us as a sample: We have given them a fair trial and we think them far superior to anything we have used in the way of domestic shears, having used about all of the different makes. They seem to carry an edge very satisfactorily and they are built so substantial that the blades do not seem to spread apart under severe strain of cutting as do the domestic shears.

No. 136. Normal Double Cut Pruning Shears. — With very narrow, heavy blades which will enable you to get into very narrow space where you could not get with any other pruning shears. Will cut up to 1-inch branch; 8 inches long. Price $3.25 each; $32.00 per dozen.

BOSTON.The Market.

No fault could possibly be found with the market. There continues to be a good clean-up about every day and prices are satisfactory to the grower, vastly better than they were a year ago. Retailers all report excellent trade, and there is a strong undertone to the business all around. With high coal prices and other overhead charges, the above conditions are welcomed by the growers.

Chrysanthemums at this time in 1921 swamped everything; no such conditions have arisen so far this season, although a heavier supply and lower prices are probable within a few days. I never have seen cleaner sales on mums at the end of October. The ever popular Bonaffon has now appeared and fancy blooms have realized $6 per dozen. Some splendid Marigold has sold at similar prices. Chieftain, White Chieftain, Rager, Polly Rose, Halliday, Golden Feather and a number of other varieties are now offered. Pompons have been in great demand. While most of them go at 75 cents and $1 per bunch, some have sold as high as $2. Lillian Doty and Pink Doty are special favorites, as are the best varieties of singles.

Roses continue to sell well and prices show little change from a week ago. Columbia and Butterfly are in strongest demand, but all varieties are in good demand. The same holds true of carnations; while the general average is $4 per hundred, fancies make $5 and $6, and Laddies, $7 and $8. Violets are not plentiful and they are easily cleaned up. There are some good pansies which make $1 per hundred. Sweet peas continue in fair supply, as do longiflorum lilies. Small supplies of indoor cosmos come in. Cattleya labiata continues in good supply at $9 and $12 per dozen. A few hybrids go higher. Some good cypripediums, oncidiums and other orchids are offered. Valley is in good supply and reasonable in price. Gardenias appear in small numbers, while bouvardia is just about sufficient for the demand. Asparagus is in good demand.

Pot chrysanthemums are now of better quality; the various Caprices are noteworthy, as well as some nice pompons. Begonias and cyclamens are plentiful. A few of the pretty little South African violet, Saintpaulia ionantha, are coming in.

Flower Exchange Meets.

A largely attended meeting of the Boston Flower Exchange, Inc., which now includes the members of both wholesale markets, was held at the American House Saturday evening, October 28. William O. Stickel presided. In his opening remarks he said the Flower Exchange has been in existence about thirty years; with the exception of a couple of years, it has paid dividends of at least ten per cent, and in one or two years as high as forty per cent. Last year over $4,000 was cleared—this, with rentals charged to the stockholders and others no higher than ten years ago; all this, he said, was made possible by cooperation.

Andrew Christensen read the minutes of preceding yearly and special meetings. Mr. Stickel reported on how a committee of twenty men from the two wholesale markets had successfully earried through the reorganization plans. The committee of twenty, he said, wanted it to be a purely growers' market and the meeting almost unanimously endorsed this stand: Not to sell any stock to salesmen.

A small committee consisting of Messrs. Roland, Comley, Peirce, Wood, Christensen and Stickel carried out all the arduous duties of selecting a new market site and finally chose the Cyclo-rama building, on Tremont street, at a cost of $170,000. This is a building with a frontage of 135 feet on Tremont street and on Warren avenue, and is 220 feet deep and covers 30,000 square feet. The construction is of brick and iron; there is a basement fourteen feet to the ceiling.

The extremely limited time left, with the present great cost of alterations, has necessitated some modification of original plans and the present plan is for a market floor covering 20,000 square feet and a basement of similar area. There will be a high-domed roof to the market and additional glass will be placed in the roof to give ample natural light. There will be provision made for a number of large stalls running around the sides of the market, of about 500 square feet each; these will have space for separate offices and refrigerators. Smaller stalls will fill the center of the market, similar to those now in use. There will be three wide aisles running the full length of the building; eventually the market proper will cover 3,000 square feet. Heating is guaranteed to furnish a temperature of 70 degrees in zero weather. The outline of the market was lucidly explained by E. Allan Peirce.

Mr. Stickel estimated running costs of the market at $27,000 a year, rentals from stalls and basement of at least $45,000, leaving a balance of $18,000. All growers and retailers like the new location, it being easier of access and less congested than Winthrop square. It was unanimously voted to ratify all transactions of the executive committee.

Andrew Christensen was elected unanimously to act as clerk and treasurer in the corporation. Frank Gibbs, H. J. Patten and D. F. Hutchinson were appointed a committee to sort and count ballots for the executive committee, for which there were some sixteen candidates. The ballots and proxies, representing varied amounts of stock, required several hours to count and not until 2 a. m. Sunday, October 29, was the count concluded; practically all the members had then gone home. Members elected were W. C. Stickel, Andrew Christensen, Frank Edgar, Thomas Roland, Edward Wood, E. A. Peirce, George W. Butterworth, N. F. Comley and S. J. Goddard.

During the counting of ballots Thomas Stock, the veteran octogenarian soloist of Dorchester, entertained with some of his songs. Carl Engelmann, of Saffron Walden, England, spoke very interestingly of carnation growing in England, and gave a description of the great Covent Garden market, London.

Club Meeting.

There was an attendance of over 100 members at the Florists' Club meeting October 24. Communications were read regarding the coming meeting of agricultural and horticultural organizations in Horticultural hall, commencing January 16. William Downs acted as club representative and as one of the executive board. It was voted to cooperate as usual, and W. N. Craig was unanimously selected to furnish the lecture on the evening when the Gardeners' and Florists' Club and Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association will fill the center of the stage.

The death of Herbert F. Calder was reported, and Peter Fisher, Harry Cole and F. J. Rees were appointed a committee on resolutions. One new member was elected. Exhibits included a fine display of single chrysanthemums from James Donald, awarded honorable mention; Baldwin apples from James Methven, report of merit; collection of apples from A. K. Rogers, report of merit; apples and pears from W. H.

Golby, honorable mention; display of gourds from the same exhibitor, honorable mention; Solanum hybridum, also from Mr. Golby, honorable mention. This solanum is tall, loose in habit, carries fruit in bunches and is much more graceful and decorative than Cleveland and other dwarf types now in favor.

This was fruit night and Albert R. Jenks, proprietor of Middlesex Fruit Farms, West Acton, Mass., gave an exhaustive and most interesting lecture on apples and their culture, answering numerous questions at the close. He favored 2-year-old trees for planting, and considered Baldwin still the commercial leader in Massachusetts. Other favorites with him were Astrachan, Williams, Duchess of Oldenburg, Crimson Beauty and Gravenstein, for early. For later Wealthy, Northern Spy, McIntosh Red, in addition to Baldwin, are the best. Winter Banana, Grime's Golden, and Yellow Transparent, being yellow, are not good sellers. New England demands red apples. Fertilizing, spraying, pruning, thinning, packing, grading and other work incidental to successful apple culture were gone over thoroughly. Dynamiting holes for apple and other fruit trees is not approved of and the practice is dying out. Trees planted in dynamited holes make great headway for two or three years, but trees planted in holes dug in the regulation way are ahead of them at the end of six years.

Various Notes.

The following list of nominees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society was made at the last trustee meeting; these are to be voted on November 18: President, Albert C. Burrage; vice-president, Thomas Allen; trustees for three years, Arthur T. Lyman, Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby, E. S. Webster and F. A. Wilson; trustees for two years, Robert Cameron and E. H. Wilson; trustee for one year, Mrs. Homer Gage; nominating committee, C. S. Sargent, Mrs. Bayard Thayer, Thomas Roland, John S. Ames. The election of the foregoing will make lady members of the trustee board four in number.

At a meeting of the Horticultural Club held October 23, Thomas N. Cook, of Watertown, the hardy rose specialist, gave an interesting account of a recent

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

HEATING OFFICE AND HOUSE.

I am building a greenhouse, 11x50 feet. The side walls contain two feet of concrete and four feet of glass. The ridge is eight feet from the ground. The boiler room is located at one end and the office is situated on the other end. What capacity should the boiler be, and what length and size of pipe should I use to heat this house to 55 degrees when the outside temperature is 20 degrees below zero? J. R. S.—Colo.

The radiation for the greenhouse can be supplied by means of a 2½-inch flow pipe on each side wall plate and eight 2-inch returns. The returns should be arranged in two coils of four pipes each. The heater for such a house should have a rating of about 600 square feet of hot water radiation. If desired, the coils could be extended into the office at the south end of the greenhouse, to furnish heat for this room also.

USING HOT WATER.

We are intending to add a house, 29x160 feet, to our range. We are a little in doubt as to whether to use hot water for the heating of this house or not, as it is sixty-five feet away from the boiler at one end and 225 feet away at the other end. Kindly advise us whether the water would circulate regularly enough at this distance to heat the house to 60 degrees when the outside temperature is 25 degrees below zero. S. L. F. C.—Ia.

While, of course, it is desirable to have the boiler as close to the coils as possible, the distance mentioned would not prevent the use of hot water for heating the new house.

It is suggested that you use 5-inch main flow and return pipes and these should be thoroughly insulated, except where they can be utilized to furnish heating surface. With four 3-inch overhead flow pipes and sixteen 2-inch returns, there should be no difficulty in securing a temperature of 60 degrees when it is 25 degrees below zero, unless there is glass in the side walls, for which additional radiation will be required.

The main flow pipes may be run uphill, but the 3-inch overhead flows, as well as the returns, should be given a fall of about one inch in twenty feet.

HEATING FOUR HOUSES.

I have two greenhouses, 16x140 feet, with a lean-to on the south side and one on the north side of these houses. The lean-to houses are six feet wide. There is no glass in the side walls, but the ends contain three feet of boards and the remainder glass. I should like to know how many flows and how many 2-inch returns it would take to heat the houses to 60 degrees when the outside temperature is zero. How deep should the boiler be placed in the pit?

R. B.—Ore.

For each of the larger houses it would be advisable to use two 2½-inch flow pipes and six 2-inch returns, placing the flows on the side wall plates and the coils, each containing three returns, on the walls underneath.

In the lean-to houses run a 2½-inch flow pipe on the plate, with two 2-inch returns underneath, unless they are propagating houses in which bottom heat is required. An additional return should then be run underneath the bench.

The higher the returns above the top of the boiler, the better the circulation, but it will answer well if the lower end of the returns is at least as high as the top of the boiler. However, if possible, sink the boiler two or three feet lower than this.

It will be advisable to select a boiler rated for about 3,000 square feet of hot water radiation.

REGARDING SIZE OF BOILERS.

I have just completed the erection of a greenhouse, 22x100 feet. The side walls are six feet to the gutter and are composed of three feet of boards and three feet of glass. The boarding is of the same height, three feet, at the ends. I wish to heat the house to 50 or 55 degrees. What size of boiler would you advise my buying? How many flows and returns should I use and what size should they be?

P. P.—Ill.

A boiler rated at 1,400 to 1,600 square feet of hot water radiation should be used. This will probably have a grate about twenty-seven inches in diameter. Some of the boilers with eight sections will probably have this rating with grates from twenty-five to twenty-six inches in diameter, but for use with soft coal we prefer a boiler with a larger grate and only five or six sections, including the ash pit and fire pot.

Three 2½-inch overhead flows should be used. These, with nine 2-inch returns, will maintain a temperature of 50 degrees when it is 10 to 15 degrees below zero outside and the house can be readily kept at 55 degrees in ordinary winter weather.

Run one flow pipe on each side wall plate and the other three feet below the ridge. Arrange the returns in three coils, each with three pipes, and place one coil on each side wall or under each side bench and the other either under the middle bench or in the walks, if solid beds are used.

A liquid Nicotine for the greenhouse

FOR effective greenhouse spraying or fumigating use Hall's Free Nicotine. It is a liquid Nicotine carefully prepared for just this kind of work.

It contains Nicotine in the free state, which makes it particularly adapted to indoor work. It is easy to handle and very economical. And—it is deadly effective against plant lice, thrips and many similar insects.

Hall's Free Nicotine is a dependable and economical insecticide. Remember—it is equally effective as a spray or a fumigant.

8-lb. tins, $15.00; 2-lb. tins, $4.25; 1/2-lb. tins, $1.40. Buy from your dealer. If he is not supplied, send us your order along with his name.

two attractive single varieties of chrysanthemums now coming into the place of the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co.

Gun metal ware vases are an interesting novelty of H. Bayersdorfer & Co.

Robert Craig is planning going to his farm in Porto Rico as soon as he gets quite well again.

The staff of the M. Rice Co. is working three nights each week getting orders filled. The support given the firm's high-grade specialties is gratifying.

Some fine Chieftain chrysanthemums are coming into the Philadelphia Growers' Cut Flower Market.

The Joseph G. Neidinger Co. has received high commendation for its beautiful new catalogue. The fine paper, clear cuts and comprehensive assortment win praise.

William Berger's Sons had a large amount of work for the funeral of State Senator Edwin H. Vare. Through an error in last week's Review, the senator's name was incorrectly given.

Mrs. Ida H. Claus celebrated her anniversary of entering into business October 20 and 21, with her usual generous courtesy to all callers. The exact day was October 25, but Mrs. Claus likes to have her friends about her, and the end of the week is her best time.

George Redles has been appointed city guardian of Wester's woods. I do not know the exact title; possibly it is forester, not guardian, but it is looking after the trees and wild flowers, and the man and the job just suit each other.

James Bedler has the place of John Stephenson's Son in fine shape.

Samuel S. Pennock, Alvah R. Jones, Alfred Burton and George E. Campbell were among the recent visitors to Arlingham to see the work progressing on George Burton's place.

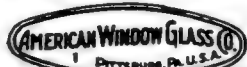

Dr. J. E. Bennett Beckenham made a striking dahlia exhibit before the Germantown Horticultural Society at its October meeting. There were some new and striking varieties in the large collection shown. Dr. Beckenham made a bitter attack on quarantine 37.

King GREENHOUSES

Here are two views from two entirely different sections of the United States.

The greenhouses shown above are 32x400 foot commercial houses in the State of Washington. They're planted to both vegetables and flowers and they're making money for the owners.

The lower view is of a 25x75 foot curved eave greenhouse owned by a flower hobbyist in eastern Pennsylvania, whose chief pleasure is growing prize-winning roses. This man says his house pays him in the pleasure and recreation he gets. Many houses of this style find use as show houses.

These greenhouses are not the largest ever built by this company nor are they the smallest—just fair examples of what can be supplied regardless of what you need, what you grow or where you are.

If you have any questions regarding any particular style or size house, we'll be glad to have you call on us to answer them, or, if you wish, we'll send you a catalogue.

When you think of good greenhouses, think of KING.

trip through the northwest. S. J. Goddard started a discussion on the standardization and grading of cut flowers, in which a number of members took part. The following new members were elected: E. I. Farrington, Harlan P. Kelsey, C. Van der Voet, W. N. Craig, Harold J. Patten, J. T. Butterworth and R. T. Brown, Cottage Gardens, L. I.

Carl Engelmann, of Saffron Walden, England, is spending a few days with S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., previous to which he made a tour of carnation establishments in Toronto, Detroit, Lafayette, Indianapolis, Richmond and Ithaca, N. Y. At the latter place he addressed the students on carnation culture under glass in England. October 26 he and Mr. Goddard visited C. S. Strout, at Biddeford, Me. This week Mr. Engelmann will go to Cromwell, Conn., and one or two other places before sailing home November 4, in time to cast his vote at the coming British election.

William Nicholson, of Framingham, was taken suddenly sick October 20 and was quite seriously ill for a few days. His many friends will be pleased to learn that he is now much improved. He recently visited New York and attended the funeral of his intimate friend, Paul Dailedouze. Mr. Dailedouze's death was a shock to Mr. Nicholson. On returning home, he put in two strenuous days' work in his garden and overtaxed his strength, causing a breakdown.

James B. Shea, chairman of the board of park commissioners of Boston, is urging the licensing of cats as a remedy for the wholesale killing of pheasants, quail, partridges and other birds by cats. This licensing of felines was advocated a few years ago and a hearing held in regard to it. Almost every old maid in the city appeared in protest and the same thing will probably occur again. The best cure for the cat scourge would appear to be one or two shotguns placed in the hands of park men who are good shots.

Albert C. Burrage has been nominated for a third term as president of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. The annual meeting and election occur November 18. November 4 and 5 the annual show opens. C. H. Totty will lecture each day on the culture of hardy chrysanthemums.

Joseph B. Reardon has an interesting rockery under glass in an unheated house at the Harvard Botanical Garden, formerly used as a tropical house. There are 350 species of plants in the rockery, mainly alpinas, which do not succeed well outdoors in America, but fall trade has been the largest in the firm's history, wedding orders being specially heavy. Nerines are great favorites among cut flowers here. Some splendid pot mums with two large specimen flowers per pot were noted, as well as some grand plants of Dracena Massangeana.

At the Symphony Flower Shop, Huntington avenue near Horticultural hall, the store is kept most attractive, and courteous treatment of customers is building up an excellent business in this rapidly growing section of the city. Mr. Saunders, many years with Wax Bros., is a most efficient manager.

John McFarland, of North Boston, is bringing in a fine lot of lily of the valley, as well as excellent Bonnaillon, Chieftain and White Chieftain chrysanthemums.

Peter Hylan, of Randolph, is just completing a new greenhouse, 32x102, which he will plant with sweet peas as a starter. He has boxed over 120,000 bulbs, mainly narcissi. These include 10,000 King Alfred, which come in well about the end of January.

Golden Feather, a light bronze-colored pompon, is heavily grown by W. R. Nicholson, of Framingham, and, dis-budded, sells remarkably well in the market at present.

The address of Saunders' Gardens is North Scituate, R. I., and not North Scituate, Mass., as was stated in The Review for August 28.

There will be several practical orchid talks at the Gardeners' and Florists' Club meeting November 21. Nominations of officers will be made the same evening.

The Market.

Extremely warm weather this last month has forced mid-season mums into bloom, along with the early mums. So mums of all kinds, colors and varieties are abundant on this market. Prices are being ridiculously slashed.

Roses are abundant. Large quantities are to be had at low figures. The quality is good and the range in varieties is great. Carnations are not so plentiful, but there is no demand for them. A few Easter lilies are available. Orchids in small quantities are to be had. Valley is also available.

Green goods of all kinds are abundant.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Business last week showed a notable increase over that of the week before. There is plenty of stock and also plenty of business to take care of it.

Mums are now more reasonable in price than they were a week ago, the best bringing $3 per dozen, as against $4 and $5 last week. The smaller ones can be had at as low as $4 per hundred.

Carnations are better this season than they were last season, largely due to the fact that weather conditions this year are far better than those of last year.

Miscellaneous stock, such as valley, Easter lilies, snapdragons and sweet peas, is still a trifle scarce, and the price is accordingly high.

Various Notes.

The Avondale Floral Co. has just finished redecorating the store, and it is now one of the most attractive on the hill.

The William Murphy Co. received some good sweet peas last week from C. A. Murphy, of Price Hill, and pompons from J. A. Peterson, of Westwood.

E. A. Porter reports a good week for funeral work. He deserves mention for his excellent window displays lately.

C. E. Critchell reports receiving some good Oconto mums from C. C. Schmidt, of North Fairmont.

Gus Mickley reports an unusual number of wedding decorations for the coming month.

H. W. Sheppard reports having had an unusual amount of funeral and wedding work last week. Mr. Sheppard purchased some rare specimen decorative plants while in the east on his last visit; they give the shop a tropical appearance.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. J. Baur, of Indianapolis, paid a visit to the trade Sunday, October 29. They were guests of H. W. Sheppard. The former is the president and the latter the vice-president of the American Carnation Society.

Peter Weiland is receiving some excellent Doty mums from his Newcastle, Ind., greenhouses.

E. G. Gillett reports a good week in wirework orders and coontie foliage sales.

R. A. Kelley reports the largest week he has had in basket arrangement orders.

Visitors: Fred Rupp, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., and Joseph R. Goldman, of Middletown, O. G. H. K.

Mumford, N. Y.—J. F. Ward has disposed of his greenhouse and business to Arthur Burnham and will leave the trade.

CAMPANULAS

CAMPANULAS FOR IMMEDIATE SHIPMENT.
Our forcing grade.

HOW TO FORCE THEM.

As soon as received, pot them and carry the plants after that into a frame; they are better off if they do not freeze, they don't appreciate it. Up to February they want anything but a warm house; leave all the foliage on you can; hold the house as near to 32 deg. as possible and also after that time don't subject them to a high temperature; lift the plants and heel in a coldhouse to be planted out in a solid bed in February, to be slowly forced into bloom for cut-flowers for late April and during May.

Campanula Medium, blue, rose and white;
Campanula Calycanthema, blue, rose, white, $8.00 per 100, $60.00 per 1000.

GERBERAS

GERBERA HYBRIDS.

Few florists are acquainted with the Gerberas.
They will grow under glass under ordinary treatment and bloom all winter long. Imagine a Daisy of a rich red or a soft pink, or any other color, borne on long stems and 2 to 3 inches across. Try a few of my field-grown plants at 25c, 35c and 50c each, according to sizes.

TAIT BROS. CO., BRUNSWICK, GA.

POMMERT'S "PURITY."

This is the new commercial white that created a sensation at the Washington, D. C., convention of the S. A. F., was given a first class certificate and was presented to President Harding by the ladies of the S. A. F. with an appropriate speech dedicating it to the memory of his mother.

It is a pure white when cut in bud and opened in water; flower is size and form of America but has more substance making it the best shipper and keeper we have ever grown.

Strong healthy grower in the field and greenhouse; an ideal forcing variety but two weeks later than Lilywhite; an all season kind. You will have to have it eventually—Why not now? The best money-maker of all in the cut flower market. Be sure to get the right one "Pommert's." Our soil produces the best bulbs to be had.

Pelargoniums are the leading blooming plants for Easter, Mothers' day and Memorial day sales, when most any number can be sold. Easter Greeting and its three sports can easily be had in bloom for Easter and later. The other varieties begin blooming the latter part of April and are at their best throughout May and early June. They are a good substitute for Azaleas.

"PLANT CULTURE."

FOURTH EDITION—444 pages.

By George W. Oliver.

A working handbook of everyday practice for the florist and gardener. This work covers practically all the known plants cultivated in the garden and home grounds, together with those of the greenhouse and conservatory, and with still more thoroughness those grown for everyday commercial purposes. The treatment includes a thorough elucidation of all the main points having to do with plant culture, such as budding, grafting, potting, soils, watering, seed sowing, hybridization and cultivation. Insect pests and plant diseases are taken care of in a special chapter.

Price, postpaid, $3.65.

QUICK ACTION.

Sharp eyes watch the Classified section of The Review and when a specially attractive offer appears there the response is almost instantaneous. Like this:

Please stop our ad of field-grown carnation plants at once, as we are all sold out already. We shipped plants to three different states.—Spear Bros., Kankakee, Ill., October 24, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

Lewistown, Ill.—A greenhouse will be erected by Clarence Weirauck, on North Main street, in the near future. The only greenhouse of which the town could boast previously was burned down some time ago.

CLIMBING AT KEWANEE.

An excellent example of what persistency of effort will do for a man may be had by viewing the achievements of the Lake Street Floral Co., Kewanee, Ill., during its ten years of existence. This firm started in the business about ten years ago with one house, 16x36 feet, erected by Thurwanger & Son. One year later another house was added, the same size as the first. The expansion of the business of this firm was such that the following year two more houses were added, 25x50 feet each.

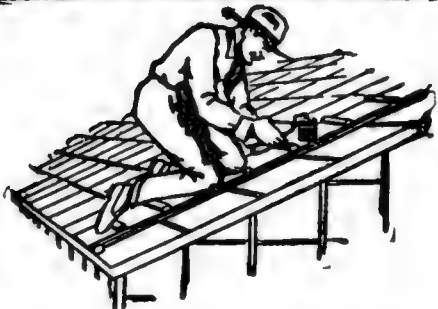

But such rapid progress can never go on unhindered, and while the last-mentioned houses were under construction, a hail storm struck Kewanee with such force that the entire range of the firm was reduced to ruin. The builders were undaunted, however, as the debris was rapidly cleared away and the work completed. The following year a second storm again did much damage to the range and caused anxiety to the owners. At this time the old greenhouses were abandoned, and when the new ones were again repaired a wire screen was placed over the glass to protect it from hailstones. At this time two buildings, 17x30 feet, were added.

In 1917 another addition, 25x100 feet, was made. To this was added another house, 25x95 feet, and in 1921 a lean-to, 7x135 feet, which were used to grow carnations, in order to meet the increasing demand for cut flowers. In the spring of 1922 a greenhouse, 34x100 feet, was built, which is devoted entirely to the growing of carnations.

At the present time there are eight houses, with a total of about 20,000 square feet of glass. The firm has now 4,000 carnation plants, 20,000 geraniums and 3,000 bulbs, which include lilies, tulips and daffodils. There are also 10,000 chrysanthemums, together with several thousand miscellaneous plants.

Beacon, N. Y.—Benjamin Hammond has issued the certificates of commendation to members of the Beacon Home Garden Brigade who have maintained gardens of merit during the past summer. By means of this organization, which has grown surprisingly since its inception, Mr. Hammond has effected a decided improvement in the home grounds in his town.

FOLEY

LIKE THE SUN— the Foleys are always at it

Sometimes clouds hide the sun from your sight. But you don't worry. You know it's right there working for you all the time. You know you can depend on it 365 days in the year.

So, too, with the Foleys.

You may not see them for a time; but you know they're working for you and the trade all the time. You can depend on that.

In spite of the fire that destroyed their factory a few months ago, the Foleys have made complete delivery on every contract then on hand, including what we believe to be the largest single order for greenhouses placed this year. We furnished the Cook & Neubert Co., Schaaf Road, Brooklyn Station, Cleveland, O., fourteen complete houses, each 30 x 420 feet. These houses have been completed, planted and making returns to their well pleased owners for several months. This looks like REAL service, and we have been booking new contracts and making deliveries regularly.

That's simply the Foley way.

But NOW with the model factory completed the Foleys will beat their own record.

Look on the Foley page next week, and you'll see just where this model factory is located. And remember, "Foley" as of old stands for

Telephone: Forest Park 1418

Wm. Finck, the sweet pea grower of Bound Brook, N. J., built one of our large iron frame houses in 1920 and another this spring. Both have boarded sides.

Are Boarded Sides Coming Back?

There are other things than pendulums that have a way of swinging back and forth.

For example, take the question of boarded sides on greenhouses.

Ten or twelve years ago, when cement was low, labor cost less and lumber likewise, cement side walls were the cheapest.

But since the war has jumped the price on all three of these items, the pendulum swings back again and cypress sides are a little cheaper than concrete.

Furthermore, some growers are beginning to question the actual lastingness of concrete sides.

Several have found evidences of their going to pieces that haven't made them exactly happy.

In the old days when side benches were used regardless of the width of the house, boarded sides were more subject to decay. The side walk has improved both the quality of the stock and the life of the construction.

They have been doing some looking around and find houses 25 years old with the cypress sides still in good shape.

Of course the baseboards do rot out, but the way we construct them, they can be easily replaced without in any way disturbing the siding.

Don't think, however, that we are coming out flat-footed and recommending wood sides. We are simply pointing to the swing in its direction.

The height of sides and width of houses also show some interesting tendencies which we would like to tell you about.

You know we go anywhere for business, or to talk business.

A glimpse of some of the vines in J. Lewis & Sons' house at Hamilton, Ontario. It is their first growing in a greenhouse.

Of Interest To Canadians Who Are Thinking Of Growing Greenhouse Flowers or Tomatoes

There is money in both. Good money. In the last few years, growing has been reduced to such a science, and greenhouses have reached such perfection that there are very few lines of business in which a corresponding investment will yield as large returns.

Looking over both Canada and The States, it is a noticeable fact that the majority of growers who have not only built up a range of houses, but a steadily increasing bank balance as well, are those whose houses have been built enduringly.

It is the exception these days that a grower starts with a cheap house figuring he can cover so much more land with it.

With our Number Two Full Iron Frame Construction selling for the same price as the Semi-Iron, it does seem like a mistake to put your money in anything else.

Average yields per square foot with roses, carnations, or tomatoes and cukes we will be glad to give you, along with any other facts concerning the greenhouse itself, you may desire.

Let us hear from you.

"COLORADO GROWN PLANTS BEAT THEM ALL"

The Denver Wholesale Florists' Co.

DENVER, COLO.

Only Wholesaler between the Mississippi River and Pacific Coast
carrying a full line of Florists' Supplies.

ATTENTION!

A great many florists do not realize the advantage of buying from The Denver Wholesale Florists' Co. They, of course, know that this company consists of an association of growers, and may think that the same conditions prevail here as in other large markets, where the growers are far enough away from the shipping centers that the flowers first have to be shipped to the commission merchant, then reshipped to the customers around the country, which means extra handling and more or less delay.

Our growers around Denver are all located near enough to our place, where the goods are shipped from, so the flowers can be cut in the morning (every florist realizing that the morning is the time to cut the flowers for them to be at their best and keep longest), brought in in a few minutes, placed in our cooling boxes, and shipped out in the afternoon of the same day.

These conditions enable us to send our customers flowers that are at least twenty-four hours fresher than would be otherwise possible, giving all the advantages of shipping direct from the grower, and at the same time all the additional advantages that would be derived from buying of a concern that handles a full line of everything, which is next to impossible for any individual grower who does shipping. Besides, being centrally located, we are close enough to the express office to fill hurry-up orders and get them out on short notice.

GERANIUMS

We have a few thousand fine plants of MARVEL left. We consider this the best dark red geranium for bedding. Grows stronger than Nutt and is equally free flowering.

$30.00 per 1000 while they last.

Come and see the seedling mums and the new carnations. You will enjoy a few hours here and probably profit by it, too.

Have you ordered your SUPER SUPREME? We can still accept orders for January delivery. It is just like Enchantress Supreme, from which it sported, except that the color is more pleasing. You will drop the parent in favor of Super Supreme, once you get enough stock of it.

FOR THANKSGIVING DAY, NOVEMBER 30th

We offer thousands of CHOICE MUMS, pink, white and yellow, in all grades from small to extra large.

We Solicit Your Orders For This Holiday

For years we have made a specialty of COMMERCIAL MUMS for midseason and late blooming. We know how to grow them to secure the maximum quality, the best that nature has from every plant, in stem, foliage and blossom.

Customers who are not already established on our books will please furnish bank references, unless shipments are preferred C. O. D.

OUR REFERENCES ARE:

Columbus National Bank, First State Bank, Merchants & Farmers Bank, all of this city.

SURE THING, we will have late MUMS and plenty of them, all through December, for THE HOLIDAYS, and for part of January, too.

You Who Look For Something Better!

Commonwealth is better than existing roses. Montgomery's dark pink seedling will please you. We have confidence in Commonwealth and have shown our faith by placing plants of this new rose with the following firms for trial. These men have our full permission to tell the truth. We have not asked them to be charitable as regards any faults that the rose may have. We have placed the rose with these growers that the story of Commonwealth may be the story of honest endeavor to give the rose growers of America something better than we have had before. See Commonwealth with your nearest neighbor; or, better still, come to Cromwell and see it here. These men are growing it:

ANNIE LAURIE

A Flesh Pink Sport of Ophelia with a gold base extending a third of the way up the petals.

This Brilliant Sport of Ophelia, grown by the late Frank X. Stuppy for the past five years, will be disseminated in the early Spring of 1923.

It is a wonderful improvement over its parent, having a much better color of a deeper shade and being more productive.

The flower will average forty-six petals and open full without showing center. The plant is a vigorous grower, with the same foliage as its parent and disease-resistant.

CRAIG QUALITY

"Every day in every way we are growing better and better"—Coue

We take this opportunity to advise our many friends and customers that we have prepared a much larger and finer stock of Craig Specialties for immediate or future delivery. Any grower having room would do well at this time to stock up on Craig Quality Crotons, Dracaenas, Arecas, Cyclamen, Ferns, Pandanus. We can make up attractive collections of assorted stock for the retail store man. Would suggest that you place your orders at once and we will ship at any time you state. All orders will have prompt and careful attention.

CROTONS

The Croton, with its highly colored foliage, is indispensable during fall and winter. We have the largest and most complete collection of Crotons in the world, carrying at the present time for fall sales over 50,000 in 100 varieties, all of the very highest quality and brilliantly colored.

Immediate Delivery

4-inch pots, strong plants, $12 per doz., $75 per 100.
5-inch pots, strong plants, $15 and $18 per dozen.
6-inch pots, strong plants, $24 and $30 per dozen.

10-inch pots, strong plants, $7.50 and $10 each.
12 and 14-inch pots, specimen plants, $15, $20 and $25 each.

DRACAENAS

There is no variety of foliage plant so attractive as the highly colored Dracaena. The small and medium sizes can be used to great advantage in making up the popular Christmas baskets, while the large specimens have always been in great demand for decorative purposes. We are now growing more Dracaenas, in greater variety, than any firm in the country.

DRACAENA GODSEFFIANA

Green and white leaf, very hardy, fine for baskets.
2½-inch pots, $20 per 100; 3-inch pots, $35 per 100; 4-inch pots, $60 per 100.

DRACAENA WARNECKII (NEW)

Silver and green leaf. Very durable.
8-inch pots, $30 per dozen; 7-inch pots, $3.50 each.

FANCY DRACAENAS

We are offering a collection of the new and rare Dracaenas. Very handsome for home decoration or for fancy combination baskets.

4-inch pots, $9 per dozen.
5-inch pots, $15 per dozen.
6-inch pots, $18 and $24 per dozen.

DRACAENA MASSANGIANA

The variety with the golden stripe down the center of the leaf. The best of all Dracaenas for the house. We have an exceptionally large stock, well colored and of the very highest quality.

4-inch pots, heavy, $12 per dozen, $100 per 100.
5-inch pots, heavy, $5 and $6 each.
6-inch pots, heavy, $2 and $2.50 each.
10-inch pots, heavy, $7.50 each.

DRACAENA FRAGRANS

Plain green leaf.
4-inch pots, $9 per dozen.
6-inch pots, $24 per dozen.
8-inch pots, $4, $5 and $6 each.
10-inch pots, $7.50 each.

DRACAENA LORD WOLSELEY

One of the very best varieties for Easter and Christmas, being bright red in color. An excellent Christmas variety.

2-inch pots, $20 per 100.
3-inch pots, $35 per 100.
4-inch pots, $60 per 100.
5-inch pots, $15 per dozen.

DRACAENA KELLERIANA (NEW)

One of the finest foliage plants for combination baskets or boxes.
2½-inch pots, $20 per 100.
3-inch pots, $35 per 100.
4-inch pots, $60 per 100.
5-inch pots, $5 each, made up, very handsome.

DRACAENA TERMINALIS

Exceptionally well colored.
2½-inch pots, $20 per 100.
3-inch pots, $35 per 100.
4-inch pots, $60 per 100.
5-inch pots, $15 per dozen.

DRACAENA LINDENII

Same type as Massangiana, but with the golden stripes on the outer edges of the leaf.

4-inch pots, $12 per dozen, $100 per 100.
6-inch pots, $2 and $2.50 each.
8-inch pots, $4 and $5 each.

DRACAENA LONGII

4-inch pots, $3 each; 6-inch pots, $5 each.

DRACAENA INDIVISA

5½-inch pots, $6 per dozen; 7-inch pots, $12 per dozen.

BEGONIAS

BEGONIAS GLORY OF CINCINNATI AND MELIOR

These varieties are endorsed by all the leading retail florists. They will hold the flowers much better than Gloire de Lorraine.
4-inch pots, $12 per dozen, $75 per 100 (heavy).
5-inch pots, $125 per 100 (heavy).
6-inch pots, $24 per dozen (heavy).

BEGONIA KONKURENT

A greatly improved Begonia Cincinnati. This variety is a German introduction, and we have tried it for three years. It makes a much better shaped plant than Cincinnati and is free flowering.
4-inch pots, $75 per 100; 5-inch pots, $125 per 100; 6-inch pots, very heavy, $24 per dozen.

NEPHROLEPIS

We are the largest growers of Nephrolepis Ferns in the country. In fact, we are headquarters for them.

NEPHROLEPIS NORWOOD

The most beautiful form of Nephrolepis to date; graceful, compact and symmetrical, a vigorous, healthy grower. All growers are invited to inspect it at our Norwood Greenhouses. Strong plants.
2½-inch pots, $2 per dozen, $12 per 100, $100 per 1000.
4-inch pots, $6 per dozen, $45 per 100.

Orders filled strictly in rotation.

NEPHROLEPIS VERONA

Makes a good plant in all sizes. Much finer frond than any created sort outside of N. Smithii. The fronds are carried on a heavy, wiry stem. We consider it one of the best of the newer introductions.
2½-inch pots, $10 per 100, $90 per 1000; 4-inch pots, $40 per 100; 6-inch pots, $12 per dozen, $90 per 100.

NEPHROLEPIS ELEGANTISSIMA

COMPACTA

A dwarf, compact form of Nephrolepis Elegantissima, each plant making an ideal shape.
4-inch pots, $5 per dozen, $35 per 100.
6-inch pots, $12 per dozen, $90 per 100.

NEPHROLEPIS TEDDY JUNIOR

Fine young plants from 2½-inch pots, $10 per 100, $90 per 1000.
6-inch pots, heavy, $12 and $15 per dozen.
8-inch pots, $24 per dozen.
11-inch tubs, $4, $5 and $6 each.

NEPHROLEPIS HARRISII OR ROOSEVELT

6-inch pots, $12 per dozen; 8-inch pots, $2 and $2.50 each; 11-inch tubs, $5 and $6 each.

NEPHROLEPIS SCOTTII

2½-inch pots, $10 per 100, $90 per 1000.
4-inch pots, $35 per 100.
6-inch pots, $12 per dozen, $90 per 100.
8-inch pots, $24 and $30 per dozen.

PALMS

ARECA LUTESCENS

Perfect plants with rich, dark green foliage. Our stock is grown cool and hard. It is in splendid condition and will surely give satisfaction. Large sizes are very scarce this year. We have the largest stock in all sizes in the country.

7-inch pots, made up, $5 and $6 each.
8-inch pots, made up, $7.50 and $10 each.
10-inch tubs, made up, $12.50 each, 5½ to 6 feet tall.
11-inch tubs, made up, $15 each.
13-inch tubs, $25 each.

TERMS

CASH WITH ORDER: Kindly send sufficient to cover the entire bill. We do not make shipments C. O. D. unless remittance has been made on account to guarantee acceptance. This does not apply to regular customers. REMITTANCE: Remittances should be made by money order or New York drafts. If money is sent, letter should be registered. All prices quoted in this list are strictly net. SHIPPING INSTRUCTIONS: Give your name, post office, county and state and the name of your nearest express office to which shipment is to be made. We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment and are at the purchaser's risk while in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier, and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery. CORRESPONDENCE: We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. ERRORS: Keep a copy of your order. ST. LOUIS HOLDS. BIG FALL SHOW

Combined with an array of the "queen of autumn" larger than in recent exhibitions of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, the fall flower display assembled by the St. Louis trade at the Coliseum this week forms the biggest and most finished autumn show in several years.

THE WAR deprived St. Louis of the national flower show projected for that city, but the florists of the metropolis, feeling the need of an exhibition to stir public interest in flowers, have put on at the Coliseum there this week a show which for size and finish is indeed of national caliber. What the St. Louis trade has done with little more than chrysanthemums to exhibit stimulates the imagination as to what might be accomplished in their city in the spring of the year, with a larger variety of flowers and plants available. Of course, the Chrysanthemum Society of America—or some of its members—is responsible for a large part of the show in bulk, and such men as Charles H. Totty, Charles W. Johnson, Earl H. Mann, E. D. Smith, W. A. Rowe and others deserve due recognition for the quantity of excellent blooms they have put on the exhibition floor at great expense to themselves and their firms. It is doubtful if so many blooms of the queen of autumn have been assembled in an exhibition hall before. The weather has been unseasonably warm, and those who have put the best stock on the floor say it would have been better had cooler weather given its help. Not that any but the most expert would criticise the quality of the stock, for it is most of it fine and none poor—some of the big blooms just lack that last bit of finish in development, that is all.

The Coliseum at St. Louis is a big building. Little space is given to apples this week, though the Missouri State Horticultural Society is holding its apple show in one end of the hall. Retailers' booths line both side walls; never has the showing of this branch of the trade been finer or in better numbers. The park department and that able institution, Shaw's Garden, have been behind the exhibition—a sturdy support. They provided the oak trees that mask the pillars on the sides of the hall and the evergreens that line the front of the Coliseum; they provided the dracænas that, with oak foliage, fill the pillared urns that line the main aisle; they provided foliage plants to fill the spots where such material is needed in a flower show; they contributed the three large beds of mums in pots that greet visitors on entering the hall. George H. Pring, superintendent of Shaw's Garden, is superintendent of the show, and a most capable one. Ernest Strehle, superintendent of St. Louis parks, has given staunch support. The St. Louis florists of all branches have coöperated perfectly under Chairman Ammann, who has himself been on the job every minute. It is this team work that has put over a splendid show.

As one enters the hall he sees before him the three groups of mum plants referred to above. To right and left are the retailers' booths. Overhead is a green canopy, dotted by the chandeliers covered with oak foliage and Spanish moss. Beyond the three groups of mums are the rows of cut chrysanthemums vased for competition. Beyond these, in turn, are groups of foliage plants and of flowering plants, some entered for competition, some not. Farther back are the retailers' displays for competition and at the rear the apple show. This is almost hidden by the landscape planting of L. Baumann at the foot of a tower of apples. This planting is a natural-looking arrangement of evergreens that won much admiration and praise. To left and right are the miniature landscape gardens entered for competition. These are home grounds planted in miniature and they win keen interest from the public. Down the right aisle are flowering plants, including fine begonias and cyclamens from J. A. Peterson & Sons.

For Exhibition Only.

Outside of the competitive exhibits, considered elsewhere, there were a number of most interesting vases and groups for display only.

Three large vases staged by Baur & Steinkamp were admired. One contained forty second-year seedlings of large-flowered mums, a few of the best from the firm's large assortment. The assortment which won first prize for the best vase of mixed pompons, by the way, contained no fewer than fifty pompon seedlings. A fine lot of Glorious filled a vase, and another held a bright array of Nugget, the yellow baby pompon which will be sent out next spring.

Shaw's Gardens filled half of one of the long exhibition tables with vases containing single blooms or sprays of named varieties, including all types of chrysanthemums. There were about 150 varieties.

Several groups were contributed by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., of pot mums and cut pompons, anemones and singles.

Four vases, of Chieftain, White Chieftain, Richmond and Nellie Klaris, showed the fine stock grown by A. Washburn & Sons, Bloomington, Ill.

A plot of 100 square feet was filled with foliage plants and geraniums from greenhouses of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co.

Six pots of Nertera depressa, called Irish moss, were shown by the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. Lantana Craigii grown in standard form was also displayed by this company.

A seedling coleus, of white and green leaf, was shown by Browne, whose establishment is on the outskirts of St.

Louis. He had also good peppers, cherries and "chenille plants."

The large white hybrid water lily of George H. Pring, named for Mrs. Pring, occupied a place in the planting of L. Baumann. It received the S. A. F. medal for a recent introduction of merit. More about this anon.

Painted lotus pods and other prepared materials made up the display of the Bergman Decorating Co., Chicago.

Fruit trees, balled and ready for transplanting, were shown by Henry Pasteau, who makes a specialty, according to his literature, of "moderne horticulture française." The Pasteau nursery is at Webster Groves, Mo.

Retailers' Exhibits.

Down either side of the exhibition hall, as said before, were the retailers' booths. These were more numerous than at any previous show where these have been a feature. The artistic merit was higher, in general, as well. The arrangements were changed from day to day in some cases. On the opening day the booths appeared as follows:

Chrysanthemums, tied with yellow chiffon, were draped from the background of Julius E. Schaeffer's booth. Urn-like baskets held large blooms. An ivory-finished Rice writing desk with lamp stood in one corner.

A blue-glazed vase filled with yellow pompons, orange calendulas, pink carnations and red berries of the bitter-sweet made a striking note of color in the display of Mullanphy Florists. Pots of mums of odd coloring added to the unusual effect.

One of the Rice store display stands, a double-deck basket, was a commanding feature in the booth of Fred H. Weber; it was filled below with yellow single mums and above with large-flowered yellow and deep bronze blooms. Handsome baskets of roses and a gazing globe amid valley, violets and adiantum were other notable objects.

A stone bench bearing two specimens of Sansevieria Laurentii occupied a corner in the booth of Grimm & Gorly, a quiet touch in the foreground of what seemed a wall of flowers. Glass tubes on a trellis of asparagus held cut blooms.

Pottery, velvet drapes and furniture added effectively to the arrangement of the mums and other flowers in Fred C. Weber's booth. As a visitor said, there was "class" to it.

A background of purple satin and a drape of golden satin across table, chair and floor made the booth of Joseph Wittek striking. Bronze mums matched the satin and a vase of white anemone mums gave a note of striking contrast.

A bower of palms and cibotiums for the bride was made by Sanders, a white kneeling stool occupying the center. White mums added appropriate grace.

Baskets and pots of chrysanthemums, in forms attractive to customers, showed visitors the art of Paul T. Heil. The combinations of color were well done.

A basket arrangement of mums was flanked by decorative objects in the booth of the Bergstermann Floral Co. The arrangement of foliage plants as a background was effective.

Yellow mums, used in various ways, ornamented the booth of Windler's Flowers, kentias and ferns adding the necessary green.

Begonias, cyclamens and mums in pots covered with colored mats were the unusual contents of the Bentzen Floral Co. booth. Ferns and dracenas added the green necessary. Canaries sang at either side.

Two standard bay trees flanked the booth of the Koenig Floral Co., which was filled with potted mums, almost as a garden bed might seem. The public liked to look at the solid mass of many-colored blooms.

A huge basket of yellow and bronze mums set in a box of dark green velvet with a frame of gilt and white made a most effective picture in the booth of W. H. Kruse.

Vases and baskets of mums of many colors made Steidle's booth a point of interest, so lavish was the effect.

Dark autumn-tinted mums in the Ayres-Tubbesing booth, with natural-colored reed furniture, were simply and pleasingly arranged.

White and light yellow mums furnished the color note in F. W. Bruenig's display. They were in baskets of various shapes and sizes. Odd basket pieces stood on a draped table holding a lamp.

Vases and baskets of cut yellow mums amid ferns and against a background of colored foliage made a combination attractive in its simplicity of coloring in the booth of the Rosery. Blue wicker furniture was used in the display.

The booth of Haun & Menges, East St. Louis, contained two large baskets of yellow mums and oak leaves, with kentias and other foliage plants in the back center.

Jensen, Inc., the new firm established four months ago by Arthur G. Jensen, son of L. P. Jensen, of Shaw's Garden, had a neat, though simple booth. Oak leaves covered the framework; ferns and kentias formed a background. Roses and mums filled baskets artistically.

The fine flowering and foliage plants in the booth of the Waldbart Floral Co. included a tubbed specimen of Otaheite orange over three feet high, fascinating to the public. Baskets of primulas, handsome large baskets of mums showed this firm's method of artistic adornment.

Hill's Vase of Roy That Won Prize for Best Fifty Blooms at St. Louis.

View from Entrance of Hall Toward the Apple Tower at the St. Louis Show on Opening Day.

In the booth of H. W. Newman potted mums of various hues formed most of the display, while a big basket of white mums and pink roses stood on a table in the center.

Bright yellow mums in a gold vase formed the center of the booth of the Flower Shop, of which F. J. Herrmann is the proprietor. Small baskets of roses, foliage plants, etc., occupied tables. Red and green lights overhead in the foliage lent an unusual effect.

The booth of William Schray & Sons was a mass of foliage plants and potted mums, mainly the former.

A purple and gold canopy formed a rich background for a vase of fine blooms of the new rose, Annie Laurie, from the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo.

Aquaria, provided with fish and plants, and canaries in their cages formed the exhibit of the St. Louis Seed Co.

The Western Union Telegraph Co. showed how a message, first transcribed from the original on a stencil machine, the paper tape from which automatically sent the message over the wire, was typed by a typewriter at the receiving end directly from the wire. A list of local members of the F. T. D. and a map of the United States attracted the public's attention, and girls demonstrated how flowers might be sent by wire.

Trade Exhibits.

The trade exhibits were in a corridor under the seats that rose on every side of the exhibition hall. Here were seen the following displays on the opening day of the show:

Plants and supplies were combined in the exhibit of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago. A lattice of oak leaves overhead lent an effective setting. Metallic wreaths, the American Legion piece, baskets, prepared foliages and other staple lines were shown. Christmas table decorations were prominent, as were the American crepe wreaths, used at Yuletide in place of chenille ones. Dyed grasses were artistic and colorful. Kentias, dracaenas, ficus, adiantums, cyclamens, cherries and begonias from Morton Grove were specimens of the quality of stock produced there. A. A. Martial was with the exhibit. Marshall N. Tyler, manager of the supplies department, attended part of the week.

A reception room in a most convenient location was provided by the Lord & Burnham Co. Views of the new range of the St. Louis Rose Co. were shown, as well as some other construction work of the company. M. C. Wright, managing director, was down from Chicago.

The many tasteful designs and colors of baskets sold by the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, were shown by the numerous samples in its booth. Large mum baskets and ferneries were conspicuous. Steel wire plant stands and urns were a feature; these are so strong they will bear the weight of a man, and a big man at that. Staple lines of supplies were exhibited, particularly those for the Christmas holiday. W. A. Jacob, manager of the basket department, was present, with William Trillow.

Comfortable chairs filled the space of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago. A section of side wall showed the new gutter, which received a certificate of merit from the S. A. F. Mum plants from the Agmco houses of W. A. Rowe provided decorations. President McKee was present.

Foliage plants of its usual excellent quality were shown by the J. W. Davis Co., Terre Haute, Ind. A few large cyclamens and some cherries and peppers nicely timed for Christmas gave a touch of color. The ferns, crotons, dracaenas, small kentias and poinsettias, the last just coming into bud, provided evidence of the growing skill of C. G. Anderson, manager of the Davis plant department, who was present.

Paper boxes for florists were exhibited by the Duro Paper Products Co., Chicago, specimens of those used by leading florists being shown. George A. Way was the firm's representative.

Light green two-tone baskets of all styles for cut flowers and plants formed the pleasing display of the Raedlein Basket Co., Chicago. A few samples showed the other colors available. Dewey Humason and Elmer Kasang were present.

Novelties as well as standard weaves in ribbons and chiffons, of the Elco brand, were shown by the M. H. Levine Co., New York. M. H. Levine was present.

Gladiolus and narcissus bulbs, and florists' supplies of staple kinds, were shown by Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago.

Specimens of apples of leading varieties were exhibited by Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., Louisiana, Mo.

Bulbs of forcing varieties and florists' supplies of standard kinds were exhibited by the American Bulb Co., Chicago.

Red clay pots were shown by the St. Louis Pottery & Mfg. Co., St. Louis.

Bulbs, from Holland, France and Japan; insecticides of the Nicotine Mfg. Co. and staple florists' supplies, such as frieze, metallic wreaths and ruseus, were in the space of the St. Louis Seed Co.

Baskets of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., in the various attractive two-tone and metallic hues, were put on display by A. F. Longren.

The insecticide preparations of the Hall Tobacco Chemical Co., St. Louis, were displayed in their neat containers.

The Brunswick-Kroeschell Co., Chicago, provided a place to rest for visitors. Fred Lautenschlager met friends affably.

The Chrysanthemum Awards.

The judges—A. T. Hey, Maywood, Ill.; John Moritz, of the park department, St. Louis, and Prof. Arno H. Nehrling, of Cornell University—had more than they could do to cover the chrysanthemum classes the opening day and were compelled to leave the plants for consideration the following morning. No way has yet been devised to Christmas table decorations were prominent, as were the American crepe wreaths, used at Yuletide in place of chenille ones. Dyed grasses were artistic and colorful. Kentias, dracaenas, ficus, adiantums, cyclamens, cherries and begonias from Morton Grove were specimens of the quality of stock produced there. A. A. Martial was with the exhibit. Marshall N. Tyler, manager of the supplies department, attended part of the week.

A reception room in a most convenient location was provided by the Lord & Burnham Co. Views of the new range of the St. Louis Rose Co. were shown, as well as some other construction work of the company. M. C. Wright, managing director, was down from Chicago.

The many tasteful designs and colors of baskets sold by the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, were shown by the numerous samples in its booth. Large mum baskets and ferneries were conspicuous. Steel wire plant stands and urns were a feature; these are so strong they will bear the weight of a man, and a big man at that. Staple lines of supplies were exhibited, particularly those for the Christmas holiday. W. A. Jacob, manager of the basket department, was present, with William Trillow.

Comfortable chairs filled the space of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago. A section of side wall showed the new gutter, which received a certificate of merit from the S. A. F. Mum plants from the Agneco houses of W. A. Rowe provided decorations. President McKee was present.

Foliage plants of its usual excellent quality were shown by the J. W. Davis Co., Terre Haute, Ind. A few large cyclamens and some cherries and peppers nicely timed for Christmas gave a touch of color. The ferns, crotons, dracaenas, small kentias and poinsettias, the last just coming into bud, provided evidence of the growing skill of C. G. Anderson, manager of the Davis plant department, who was present.

Paper boxes for florists were exhibited by the Duro Paper Products Co., Chicago, specimens of those used by leading florists being shown. George A. Way was the firm's representative.

Light green two-tone baskets of all styles for cut flowers and plants formed the pleasing display of the Raedlein Basket Co., Chicago. A few samples showed the other colors available. Dewey Humason and Elmer Kasang were present.

Novelties as well as standard weaves in ribbons and chiffons, of the Eleo brand, were shown by the M. H. Levine Co., New York. M. H. Levine was present.

Gladiolus and narcissus bulbs, and florists' supplies of staple kinds, were shown by Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago.

Specimens of apples of leading varieties were exhibited by Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., Louisiana, Mo.

Bulbs of forcing varieties and florists' supplies of standard kinds were exhibited by the American Bulb Co., Chicago.

Red clay pots were shown by the St. Louis Pottery & Mfg. Co., St. Louis.

Bulbs, from Holland, France and Japan; insecticides of the Nicotine Mfg. Co. and staple florists' supplies, such as frieze, metallic wreaths and ruscus, were in the space of the St. Louis Seed Co.

Baskets of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., in the various attractive two-tone and metallic hues, were put on display by A. F. Longren.

The insecticide preparations of the Hall Tobacco Chemical Co., St. Louis, were displayed in their neat containers.

The Brunswick-Kroeschell Co., Chicago, provided a place to rest for visitors. Fred Lautenschlager met friends affably.

The Chrysanthemum Awards.

The judges—A. T. Hey, Maywood, Ill.; John Moritz, of the park department, St. Louis, and Prof. Arno H. Nehrling, of Cornell University—had more than they could do to cover the chrysanthemum classes the opening day and were compelled to leave the plants for consideration the following morning. No way has yet been devised to supply the necessary vases on time for staging a chrysanthemum show, though to some it would appear an easy job if given sufficient attention beforehand. Lack of vases delayed exhibitors in putting up their entries, and the judges were in turn retarded in their work.

The awards made in the Chrysanthemum Society classes were as follows:

For the best seedling chrysanthemum not disseminated, six blooms, one variety, on long stems—E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., with New Jersey, bluish; C. S. A. silver cup.

For the best six vases of pompon chrysanthemums, six varieties, twelve sprays not less than eighteen inches long to a vase—E. D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., with Armalinda, 53-18-20, Irene, 24-4-20, Cora Peck Buhl and Ethel; C. S. A. silver cup.

Premiums Awarded Retailers.

Of prime interest was the class for the best window decoration in a retail flower store advertising the show. There were sixteen contestants for the $200 offered by H. G. Berning. The judges, who spent several hours in an automobile to cover the necessary ground, were Paul M. Paley, Little Rock, Ark.; Fred H. Lemon, Richmond, Ind., and Alex. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia. The first prize was awarded Fred C. Weber; second, Joseph Witek; third, Mullanphy Florists, at the Grand avenue store. Honorable mention was given Grimm & Gorly, F. H. Weber, F. W. H. J. Heitman, Bentzen Floral Co. and Young the Florist, at the Taylor avenue store.

The retailers' entries in the various classes of decorative arrangements to be staged from day to day were heavy. There were six entries in the table decoration class, nine in the bride's bouquet class, eight in the sun room box class, and equally numerous entries on down the list. The awards made the opening day were as follows:

PRING'S NEW NYMPHÆA.

At the S. A. F. convention at Kansas City the exhibit of George H. Pring, superintendent at Shaw's Garden, St. Louis, of the large-flowered white water lily named for Mrs. Pring won much notice from those familiar with or interested in nymphæas. It was again supply the necessary vases on time for staging a chrysanthemum show, though to some it would appear an easy job if given sufficient attention beforehand. Lack of vases delayed exhibitors in putting up their entries, and the judges were in turn retarded in their work.

The awards made in the Chrysanthemum Society classes were as follows:

For the best seedling chrysanthemum not disseminated, six blooms, one variety, on long stems—E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., with New Jersey, bluish; C. S. A. silver cup.

For the best six vases of pompon chrysanthemums, six varieties, twelve sprays not less than eighteen inches long to a vase—E. D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., with Armalinda, 53-18-20, Irene, 24-4-20, Cora Peck Buhl and Ethel; C. S. A. silver cup.

Twenty-five sprays pompons, one variety, white—W. A. Rowe, first, with Mariana; H. W. Buckbee, second, with White Doty.

Twenty-five sprays pompons, one variety yellow—W. A. Rowe, first; H. W. Buckbee, second, with Golden Climax.

Twenty-five sprays pompons, one variety, pink—H. W. Buckbee, first, with Lillian Doty; W. A. Rowe, second.

Twenty-five sprays pompons, one variety, any other color—E. G. Hill Co., first, with Flora; H. W. Buckbee, second, with Acto; W. A. Rowe, third, with Pauline Wilcox.

Twenty-five sprays, single, one variety, pink—W. A. Rowe, first, with Ivan Grant; Henry Rohrbach, St. Louis, Mo., third.

Twenty-five sprays, single, one variety, any other color—Sanders Nursery Co., third.

Twenty-five sprays, anemone, one variety, white—W. A. Rowe, first.

Twenty-five sprays, anemone, one variety, yellow—E. G. Hill Co., first, with Chief; W. A. Rowe, second, with Elizabeth.

Vase of mixed pompons, singles and anemones, not less than 150 sprays nor more than 200 sprays, arranged for effect—Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., first; C. H. Totty Co., second; W. A. Rowe, third.

Pot Plant Awards.

A few of the awards in the pot plant classes were made on Tuesday, the rest the following day. Those made on the opening day were as follows:

Collection of geraniums, twelve distinct varieties, not less than 6-inch pots—F. J. Fillmore, third.

Collection of geraniums, twelve plants, four distinct varieties, not less than 6-inch pots—F. J. Fillmore, second.

Six Boston ferns, not less than 8-inch pots—Hembreiker & Cole, Springfield, Ill., first; W. H. Kruse, second.

One Boston fern, not less than 10-inch pot—F. J. Fillmore, first; W. H. Kruse, second.

One Boston fern sport, not less than 10-inch pot—W. H. Kruse, second.

In the class for landscape gardeners calling for a plot not to exceed 100 square feet laid out with miniature home grounds, the exhibit to include a dwelling house, and only natural material for the landscape effect, L. Baumann received first prize, and Grossart & Giebel, second.

Premiums Awarded Retailers.

Of prime interest was the class for the best window decoration in a retail flower store advertising the show. There were sixteen contestants for the $200 offered by H. G. Berning. The judges, who spent several hours in an automobile to cover the necessary ground, were Paul M. Paley, Little Rock, Ark.; Fred H. Lemon, Richmond, Ind., and Alex. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia. The first prize was awarded Fred C. Weber; second, Joseph Witek; third, Mullanphy Florists, at the Grand avenue store. Honorable mention was given Grimm & Gorly, F. H. Weber, F. W. H. J. Heitman, Bentzen Floral Co. and Young the Florist, at the Taylor avenue store.

The retailers' entries in the various classes of decorative arrangements to be staged from day to day were heavy. There were six entries in the table decoration class, nine in the bride's bouquet class, eight in the sun room box class, and equally numerous entries on down the list. The awards made the opening day were as follows:

Table decorations of chrysanthemums, arranged for six, accessories permitted; table, silver and linens to be furnished by exhibitor—Joseph Witek, St. Louis, first; Sanders Nursery, second; Grimm & Gorly, third.

Most artistic bridal bouquet, any flowers permissible—Grimm & Gorly, first; Joseph Witek, second; Flower Shop, third.

Most artistic standing sun room box of assorted plants—F. H. Weber, first; F. C. Weber, second; Mullanphy Florists, third.

Most artistic basket of assorted plants—F. H. Weber, first; Mullanphy Florists, second; F. C. Weber, third.

Second Day's Awards.

The awards made Wednesday, November 8, were as follows:

Dozen specimen cut chrysanthemums, one variety, large-flowering type, any color, grown by St. Louis county growers—W. A. Rowe, first.

Chrysanthemum plant, large-flowering type, white—Wm. Schray & Sons, second.

Chrysanthemum plant, large-flowering type, pink—W. A. Rowe, first; Wm. Schray & Sons, second.

Pompon chrysanthemum plant—Wm. Schray & Sons, first.

Group of chrysanthemum plants arranged for effect, any varieties permissible, to occupy not less than 100 square feet—Bourdier Floral Co., first; W. H. Kruse, second; Sanders Nursery Co., third.

Six cyclamens, no restriction as to size of pot—J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati, O., first; W. H. Kruse, second; Westover Nursery Co., Clayton, Mo., third.

Eight plants, Mellor begonias—J. A. Peterson & Sons, first; W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., second.

Eight plants, Glory of Cincinnati begonia—J. A. Peterson & Sons, first.

Eight plants, any other begonia—W. C. Smith

Nymphaea Mrs. G. H. Pring as Compared with N. Gracilis from Mexico.

Looking Across Middle of Hall at the Flower Show at St. Louis, with Plant Groups on the Right.

Wholesale Floral Co., first; John Steidle, Clayton, Mo., second; Westover Nursery Co., third.

Twelve plants, Jerusalem cherries, not less than 6-inch pots—Wm. Schray & Sons, first; Westover Nursery Co., second; Bourdet Floral Co., third.

Twelve plants, celestial peppers, not less than 6-inch pots—Theo. Browne, second.

Twelve plants of bird's-eye peppers, not less than 6-inch pots—Wm. Schray & Sons, second.

Collection of twelve geraniums, four distinct varieties, not less than 6-inch pots—F. J. Fillmore, third.

Specimen geranium—F. J. Fillmore, second.

In the retailers' classes the second day awards were as follows:

Most artistic corsage bouquet, any flowers permissible—Windler's Flowers, first; Grimm & Gorly, second; Tom Carr, honorable mention.

Basket of chrysanthemums in assortment, arranged for effect, accessories permitted—Joseph Wittek, first; Windler's Flowers, second; F. H. Weber, third.

The awards on carnations, which were staged November 8, were as follows:

One hundred Laddie—W. A. Rowe, first.

One hundred white—W. A. Rowe, first, with White Enchantress; M. F. Widmer, second, with Matchless; Philip J. Goebel, third, with White Enchantress.

One hundred light pink—W. A. Rowe, first, with Enchantress Supreme; Philip J. Goebel, second, with Enchantress Supreme.

One hundred dark pink—Hartje & Elder, Indianapolis, Ind., first, with Winsome; W. A. Rowe, second, with Valentine; Philip J. Goebel, third, with Valentine.

One hundred red—W. A. Rowe, first; Philip J. Goebel, second, both with Nebraska.

One hundred any other color—W. A. Rowe, first, with Maine Sunshine.

Fifty Laddie—W. A. Rowe, first.

Fifty white—W. A. Rowe, first, with White Enchantress; A. Jablonsky, Olivette, Mo., second, with White Wonder; M. F. Widmer, third, with White Wonder.

Fifty light pink—M. F. Widmer, first; W. A. Rowe, second; Philip J. Goebel, third, all with Enchantress Supreme.

Fifty dark pink—Hartje & Elder, first, with Winsome; W. A. Rowe, second, with Valentine; Philip J. Goebel, third, with Valentine.

Fifty red—W. A. Rowe, first; Philip J. Goebel, second, both with Nebraska.

Fifty yellow—W. A. Rowe, first, with Maine Sunshine.

Fifty any other color—W. A. Rowe, first, with Illinois.

Twenty-five Laddie—W. A. Rowe, first.

Twenty-five white—Philip J. Goebel, first, with White Enchantress; W. A. Rowe, second, with seedling No. 100; Woodlawn Gardens, Edwardsville, Ill., third, with White Enchantress.

Twenty-five light pink—Woodlawn Gardens, first; A. Jablonsky, second; Philip J. Goebel, third, all with Enchantress Supreme.

Twenty-five dark pink—Woodlawn Gardens, first, with Rosalia; Hartje & Elder, second, with Winsome; A. & H. Woerner, Clayton, Mo., third.

Twenty-five red—Woodlawn Gardens, first, with Edna; Philip J. Goebel, second, with Nebraska.

Twenty-five yellow—W. A. Rowe, first; A. Jablonsky, second; both with Maine Sunshine.

Twenty-five any other color—W. A. Rowe, first, with Illinois.

Certificates of merit were given W. A. Rowe, for twenty-five seedling No. 100, white; Hartje & Elder, for Winsome, dark pink, and A. Jablonsky, for Olivette.

For the best vase of 100 blooms, two varieties, arranged for effect, accessories and greens permitted, W. A. Rowe took first place, with Laddie and seedling No. 100; O. C. May, second, with Enchantress varieties, and Philip J. Goebel, third, with Enchantress and Enchantress Supreme.

Hard-working Committees.

The St. Louis trade worked hard to make the exhibition at the Coliseum a success, and credit is due them all from the management down. J. F. Ammann won glory as a show manager. He was ably supported by H. G. Berning, vice-chairman of the executive council; W. A. Rowe, treasurer; J. J. Beneke, secretary, and George H. Pring, superintendent of exhibits.

The ladies were well taken care of by Mrs. F. W. Bruenig and her committee. They went to the Orpheum theater Wednesday afternoon as guests of the St. Louis women.

The members of the various committees are as follows:

Finance—H. G. Berning, chairman; L. A. Hoerr, Frank A. Windler, W. C. Smith, W. A. Rowe, N. A. Kingsley.

Premium—W. A. Rowe, chairman; L. Jules Bourdet, G. H. Pring, W. J. Pilcher, E. Schray, Jos. Wittek, F. H. Weber.

Publicity—Frank A. Windler, chairman; V. J. Gorly, L. A. Hoerr, W. A. Rowe, J. F. Ammann, O. G. Koenig, Geo. F. Jordan.

Guarantee—A. H. Hummert, chairman; R. Hoerr, D. S. Geddis, F. X. Gorly, W. J. Pilcher, Theo. Miller, M. Ude, Geo. Deutschmann.

Patrons—L. A. Hoerr, chairman; Dr. Geo. T. Moore, M. F. Watts.

Reception—F. J. Fillmore, chairman; W. Weber, Carl Beyer, Edwin Denker, Joseph Hauser, A. S. Cerny, Pierre Schneider, C. E. De Weyer, F. C. Weber, A. Jablonsky, John Steidle, F. C. Bruenig, Chas. Kuehn, Jr., M. F. Widmer.

Trade display—W. J. Pilcher, chairman; Paul Reden, J. S. Carter, F. W. Pape, D. S. Geddis, F. X. Gorly, R. Tubbesing.

Special premium—D. S. Geddis, chairman; A. H. Hummert, F. X. Gorly, R. Hoerr, Frank A. Windler, Phil Goebel, Geo. H. Angermueller.

Entertainment—John S. Carter, chairman.

Admission—Carl Beyer, chairman; Walter Weber, F. J. Fillmore, J. Held, A. S. Cerny, Albert Senger.

Program—J. J. Windler, chairman; F. H. Meinhardt, Geo. Kuehn, O. C. May, J. J. Bentzen, Joe Deutschmann.

Auditing—A. W. Gumz, chairman; W. H. Osseek, O. Ruff, Harry Wagner, W. H. Kruse, Henry Blixen.

Growers and nurserymen—Frank A. Weber, chairman; H. W. Endres, Geo. Moeller, C. C. Sanders, L. F. Dintleman.

Retail display—A. Hoffmann, Sr., chairman; Julius Schaeffer, W. H. Kruse, Fred Herrmann, Mrs. T. Diemer.

Special exhibits—Geo. H. Pring, chairman; Hugo Schaff, John Moritz, Paul Kohl, Arthur Jensen.

Exhibition and hall—Wm. C. Smith, chairman; W. J. Pilcher, Paul Heil, D. S. Geddis, F. X. Gorly.

Decoration—Wm. H. Kruse, chairman; A.

Meyer, Jr., G. Pieser, M. Seeger, F. X. Gorly, O. Ruff, Chas. Haun, John Moritz, E. H. Harvey, Wm. Patton, H. C. Lauscher, Adolph Steidle, Edward Guntly.

Ladies' reception—Mrs. Fred W. Bruenig, chairman; Mrs. H. G. Berning, Mrs. Fred C. Weber, Jr., Mrs. Oscar Ruff, Mrs. O. G. Koenig, Mrs. Edward Guntly.

Fruit display—H. C. Irish, chairman; Frank Weber, T. C. Carr, George Jordan, J. W. Stinson.

Those Present.

Few of the visitors registered in the secretary's office at the Coliseum, and any list is therefore incomplete. The following contains only those noted on the opening day of the show:

PRING'S NEW NYMPHÆA.

At the S. A. F. convention at Kansas City the exhibit of George H. Pring, superintendent at Shaw's Garden, St. Louis, of the large-flowered white water lily named for Mrs. Pring won much notice from those familiar with or interested in nymphæas. It was again displayed this week at St. Louis, the blooms, not usually held so late, being in good shape. The judges awarded it the S. A. F. medal for new introductions. The illustration on page 32 shows a bloom of the new hybrid in comparison with the white species, N. gracilis, from Mexico. The following account of the variety appears in the October issue of the Missouri Botanical Garden bulletin:

"According to commercial growers, there is an increasing demand by the public for a tropical white day-blooming lily of large size. Up to the present time all tropical day-blooming water lilies have ranged in color from pink to blue, with one exception, the species Nymphæa gracilis. The African species, N. ovalifolia, of recent introduction, has white flowers shaded with blue and pink at the apex of the petals. In 1919 experiments were started at the garden with the object of producing the much-needed albino hybrid. Stock of Nymphæa Mrs. Edwards Whitaker was selected as a desirable parent, in view of the pale campanula-blue flowers bleaching to pure white with age, a factor transfused through its parent, N. ovalifolia. The seed parent was between N. gracilis, of Mexico, and N. ovalifolia. Hybrids from N. gracilis in cultivation have not improved the offspring in size to the same degree as N. ovalifolia, nor has the white proved a recessive character in the second or third generations. In fact, experiments at the garden with gracilis hybrids did not produce type gracilis or revert back to it. Nymphæa ovalifolia crosses so far have brought forth type ovalifolia in the second generation. Nymphæa ovalifolia was therefore selected as the other parent. Reciprocal crosses were made between N. Mrs. Edwards Whitaker and ovalifolia, producing varieties like the parent Mrs. Edwards Whitaker. Nymphæa ovalifolia x Whitaker gave the desired result, producing both albino and Whitaker varieties. The best-flowered seedling showing Whitaker-shaped petals with white as the dominant factor was selected as the type flower, the foliage likewise showing Whitaker influence. This was carefully self-pollinated during 1920, the seedlings bringing forth albino flowers the next flowering season. In 1921 the finest plant was again selected and self-pollinated, producing the same type of flowers the following season. The desired hybrid was obtained by selection during three years, thus proving that the white coloration is fixed, provided, of course, that all foreign pollen is excluded.

"It having been proved that the flowers had finally reached a stage of development superior to the white-flowered N. gracilis, specimen flowers were submitted to the Society of American Florists in convention at Kansas City, August 15, 1922, and the lily was awarded honorable mention. Charles Tricker, water lily specialist of Arlington, N. J., visited the garden after the convention, in the capacity of official judge, to report on the condition of the entire plant as growing in the pool. He stated that 'the new hybrid presents the biggest one jump in the development of a new water lily to date.' The size of the flowers varies from eight to ten inches in diameter."

ciation. Yet I come with a message and to try, briefly, to call your attention to your faults and backsliding from the true and successful path of business in these trying times.

"No man or set of men, in any business or trade or profession, have always been successful, have always had conditions such as to see profits roll in daily and monthly, without some setback. It takes times and conditions such as we now have to get the best results from any business. Today conditions among the flower growers make each of us stop and think, and realize that we must put strictly business methods into our business, or we shall be lost.

"The first thing that a successful man must have is 'pep.' A slow-moving, snail-like individual cannot succeed even as a scissors grinder, because the sight of such an individual does not encourage confidence. 'Up and coming' should be our slogan in these trying times.

No Cause for Complaint.

"Besides being full of life, one must be an optimist; in other words, not become disgruntled when things don't go right. It seems to me that every grower should learn a lesson from life that would never permit him to complain and become discouraged. God, the producer of everything that has life, causes, as you know, yearly millions and millions of the most beautiful and lovely flowers to be planted, grow and mature along the roadways, in the nooks and crannies, in vale and on mountain, only to die and wither without being seen by one admiring person; and still the great Ruler of our universe goes on and on, without complaining, without shirking.

"How can we honestly complain? Look around, fellows, at other businesses! Land, in the fertile corn belt where I live, sold during the war for $300 per acre; now it is worth only $125 per acre. Take corn and oats and wheat; take anything. The farmer, the merchant, the manufacturer, all have suffered loss far more than we growers have suffered. A few have lost money during the last year, but that is not the result of the times, but the result of poor business methods somewhere along the line. Many of us have made money during the last year; true, not so much as we formerly did; but we made money, and today I am producing flowers at a far less cost than I did during the war. Economy is being practiced, and we are getting down to strictly business principles.

"If the florists and their business are to succeed, we must see that our business renders some service, some honorable and honest service; otherwise we shall fail. Ours is a most honorable business, but we must make it more honorable by seeing that our production costs are cut to the lowest, so that we can sell flowers at smaller cost with a profit to us, in order that the poor, as well as the rich, may buy and give and thus spread sunshine. I like the Rotary slogan, 'He profits most who serves best.' Let's adopt it in our business."

Mr. Amling then went into the need of more coöperation between the grower, the wholesaler and the retailer. The three, he said, must work hand in hand, boosting and advertising.

GROWERS' MEETING

ST. LOUIS GROWERS MEET.

Hold Annual Election.

The annual meeting of the St. Louis district of the National Flower Growers' Association was held at the Coliseum, November 7, the opening day of the flower show at St. Louis. W. A. Rowe, W. J. Pilcher and C. E. De Wever were the entertainment committee for the occasion and made visitors welcome.

In the afternoon, at 4 o'clock, the executive and other committees met. In the evening at 8 o'clock the meeting for hearing annual reports and electing officers was held. The officers chosen for the ensuing year are:

President—Walter A. Amling, Pana, Ill.

First vice-president—Iles Cole, Springfield, Ill.

Second vice-president—Frank A. Washburn, Bloomington, Ill.

Executive committee—L. J. Burdett, W. J. Pilcher, J. F. Ammann, W. A. Rowe, C. E. De Wever and Henry Blixen.

The secretary and treasurer will be selected by the executive committee at its next meeting, at Pana, Ill., the third Tuesday in January. The present incumbents of these offices, J. J. Beneke and W. A. Rowe respectively, will in all likelihood be continued.

On the membership committee Iles

Cole was chosen for Illinois and W. A. Rowe, for Missouri.

The July meeting of the association will be held at Springfield, Ill.

President Amling's Address.

Walter A. Amling opened his address as president with one of his appropriate stories.

"I feel," he said, "like the missionary who was called to the South Sea islands. This young man boarded a ship, headed to those far-away cannibal islands, there to make Christians and God-fearing men and women out of the heathens. A storm came, the ship was dashed against the rocks and sank. The young disciple assembled some boards, made a raft, and after two days' drifting came near a little island. Tired, he immediately lay down beneath the spreading foliage of the nearest palm tree. He imagined the island inhabited by fierce, man-eating tribes, but he was compelled to sleep. After a few hours he was awakened by the sound of voices. As he listened, he heard one of the number say, 'Who the hell dealt these cards?' Immediately he raised his hands toward heaven and said, 'Thank God! I am among Christian people.'"

"I know that I am among Christian people," proceeded Mr. Amling; "people that I love, when I am at a meeting of the National Flower Growers' Asso-

MUM MEN MEET

MUM SOCIETY MEETS.

At St. Louis.

The annual meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America was held at St. Louis Wednesday evening, November 8. On this occasion the reports of the officers were heard and discussed, suggestions for the promotion of the organization were considered, and the election of officers for the ensuing year was held.

President Mann's Address.

Earl H. Mann, president of the society, said in his address:

"I have felt deeply the honor of being elected president of this society, and throughout the year have had constantly an earnest desire for its best interest and the hope that, by combining the knowledge and the experience of the entire membership, we might find ways and means not only to hold it up to the fullest height of its past achievement, but to surpass this height, notwithstanding the fact that during the recent war period every branch of floriculture has undergone a severe test and strain, the chrysanthemum not excepted.

"This society's flower is absolutely supreme in its season. Even the acknowledged queen of flowers grants it right of way, though not quite graciously, till Thanksgiving is past and the forces of the invader retire for another year. American flower buyers are quite as glad to welcome it in October as rose growers are to see its departure by December 1, and the American people will not be content to see it displaced.

"No man can grow chrysanthemums, or handle them over the counter, without doing so with enthusiasm; the stout stem, the unlimited variety of color, the wonderful keeping qualities, and the unusual decorative effects obtainable make their appeal to him.

Making Them Pay.

"Ever since I became acquainted with flower growing, the mum has been a prime favorite with me, and to see it retain its high rank is my hope. And then come the doleful words, 'Does it pay? Can it be made to pay?' Sentiment cannot hold it in place, but hard-headed commercial growers must think it out, and by careful selection of varieties, every economy possible in culture and handling, skill that will practically eliminate culls, working to a studied plan from beginning to end, these surely can put it on a profitable basis.

"One of the dangers to the trade, seemingly, is the tendency to cut down too soon the present lines of popular flowers that are threatened with low profit, without desperate effort first to put them on a profit-bearing basis; it is too easy to say, 'Let George grow them,' when problems like this come up.

"New varieties are a great incentive to this effort; have you seen Majestic and Colonel Piper and Golden Glory? Have you got acquainted with Angelo and Muskoka and Adelphia, the new type of Smith's? And Prof. Dorner's fine seedlings, raised at Champaign? And Pierson's bronze pompons? And the outstanding seedlings raised in the Department of Agriculture in Washington? These are what keep up the interest. All honor to Totty and Smith, Pierson and Dorner, Baur & Steinkamp and our own Secretary Johnson, as well as E. G. Hill, who is as enthusiastic today as ever in the production of new varieties.

"The federal horticultural board's prohibition of the importation of plants has really stimulated our present-day mum growers in their work of cross-fertilizing, and with good results.

"Another attractive and rather recent development is found in the class of pompons which have lent themselves to disbudding, with a result that has been both pleasing and popular. Their novel beauty must be seen to be appreciated.

ciated; they are in heavy demand when well done.

Thanks to Experiment Stations.

"The thanks of all mum growers are due the national and state experiment stations for their painstaking study of plant diseases and harmful insects and for the information and methods of control so freely given to the florist. They have saved time and serious loss in hundreds of cases. We all appreciate fully their efforts in our behalf. Most of their findings have been published in our society reports, and it is recommended that the practice be continued so that they may be within ready reach of every grower.

"A great deal has been said regarding California mums and their effect on the central west markets. However, I think the majority of chrysanthemum growers will quite agree with me that in no wise has their presence been a menace to the market, as prices have been higher this season than in any previous year, and good, fresh home-grown stock has been in demand, while at times the market has been glutted with western grown stock. So let us not worry about the invasion of our markets by the western stock, but endeavor to raise the standard of quality to a point where the market will seek the home-grown flowers.

Membership.

"We are none of us satisfied with the growth of membership in the C. S. A., and it is recommended that active measures be taken to interest every grower possible, as every one of them, directly or indirectly, is benefited by the work of this society, and in return should be identified with it. The dues are so moderate as to be no hindrance. Let me recommend the appointment of state vice-presidents, whose duty it shall be to stimulate new interest and especially to increase the membership to at least double its present size by November, 1923. Let us urge our state vice-presidents to do their utmost to this end, and each of us volunteer our assistance; this work must be done by all of us pulling together, not by a few.

"We cannot find words to express our appreciation of the work of the local committee in setting up such a wonderful show, so very complete in every detail; we realize the hard work done, and thank them sincerely. We greatly enjoy the cordial welcome extended to us."

Secretary's Report.

Secretary C. W. Johnson presented the following report:

"The twentieth annual meeting of the society was held at the Auditorium hotel, Chicago, November 16, 1921, in conjunction with the fall flower show of the Chicago Florists. The meeting and exhibition were among the best of recent years, the exhibits of cut blooms being of the highest standard, with a fine lot of entries in every class. The local committees were on hand at all times to assist the exhibitors in the arrangement of their exhibits, as well as to make their visit most pleasant and profitable.

"The number of new chrysanthemums submitted to the examining committees to be scored for the society's certificate of merit was an increase over the previous year, as the review of the committees' work in the annual report will show.

"Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., registered the following varieties of pompons: Lucia, Snow Crest, Lucretia, Autumn Glints, Pink Daisy, Luella and Crystal White. The fee of $5 was paid for each variety. This is commendable on the part of the firm of Baur & Steinkamp, and it would be a great help to the society if the example were followed by other raisers of new varieties.

"The invitation of the St. Louis florists to hold the 1922 meeting in St. Louis in connection with a fall show being accepted, your secretary accordingly made a solicitation of special premiums and, thanks to those who contributed to same, we have a creditable list of premiums, which should be well competed for.

"The arrangement for this annual meeting and exhibition has been left chiefly in the hands of our vice-president, W. A. Rowe, who has worked hard to make every preparation for a successful meeting and exhibition.

"The proceedings of the nineteenth and twentieth annual meetings in combined form have been gotten out by the secretary and mailed to every member.

"The reports of the several committees were sent to the trade papers by the secretary, together with other notices of the society, and, as heretofore, they have generously published all notices sent to them during the year, for which we are greatly indebted.

"Your secretary again wishes to acknowledge the kindness of Elmer D. Smith in furnishing him with a complete list of varieties disseminated in 1921, which appears in the annual report."

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

Examining Committees.

The committees appointed by the Chrysanthemum Society of America to examine new varieties of chrysanthemums have submitted reports of the season as follows:

At Chicago, November 1, Cora Peck Buhl, golden yellow, button pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 36; form, 18; stem and foliage, 18; fullness, 18; total, 90.

KILLING SOW BUGS.

I should like to know if you can tell me what to do to kill sow bugs. I have a great many and they are eating the leaves of my new carnation plants badly. All rubbish and weeds have been removed from under the benches and from the walks. It is my contention that the bugs came from the manure used for mulch last year. I have used, and am now using, Paris green and white sugar in the proportion of one pound of Paris green to five pounds of sugar. The bugs get fat on arsenate of lead.

L. S.—N. Y.

The accepted remedy for the sow bug or wood louse is a mixture of one quart of corn meal with sufficient brown sugar to sweeten it, adding two tablespoonfuls of Paris green. The whole should be moistened with water and scattered in the places frequented by these sow bugs. This works successfully in the great majority of cases. Have you tried Paris green in this formula?

OBITUARY

William Schrader.

William Schrader, of Johnstown, Pa., who had been engaged in the florists' business for twenty-one years in that city, died October 29, at his home along the Scalp Level pike in Stonycreek township. He was 56 years of age.

Mr. Schrader was born in Germany October 11, 1866, and came to Johnstown at the age of 16. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Schrader. His parents died in Germany. William Schrader engaged in the florists' business with the late William Schmidt about twenty-one years ago, and three years later dissolved the partnership. Since then he had conducted a business in Stonycreek township. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lena Thom Schrader, and the following children, all at home: Agnes, Herbert, Clara, Anna, Gertrude, Walter and Helen Schrader. Mr. and Mrs. Schrader were married a week before the Johnstown flood by the Reverend Lichtenberg, who perished in the great catastrophe.

William Schrader, Jr., died in France while serving in the United States army during the world war.

John Condon.

John Condon, a well known florist of Brooklyn, N. Y., died at his home, 139 Lincoln place, that city, Saturday, November 4. He was 77 years of age and had been active in business since 1870, at Greenwood cemetery.

During the old Brooklyn municipal days, the deceased served on the board of education and, during several administrations, on the Shore Drive parkway commission. Mr. Condon was a member of Orion lodge of the F. & A. M. The funeral services were held Monday, November 6, with interment private.

Charles J. Chism.

Charles J. Chism, for many years prominently identified with the nursery business in Monroe county, N. Y., died Wednesday, November 1, at his home, at 1190 Park avenue, Rochester. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Mary Chism; four sons, Arthur and Samuel Chism, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Carl and Charles Chism, of Rochester; three daughters, Mrs. W. J. Butler and Miss Florence Chism, of Rochester, and Mrs. W. Briggs, of Los Angeles.

Mr. Chism was born about seventy-five years ago in the province of Quebec. When a young man he came to this country, settling in Brighton, where he became engaged in the nursery business. He became an extensive importer of rare shrubs and flowers, and an authority on many phases of nursery culture. While still engaged in business, Mr. Chism was appointed postmaster of Brighton during the second term of President Cleveland. He served for five years and during his tenure of office the Brighton post office was rated by federal inspectors as being in the highest state of efficiency. Mr. Chism sold out his business when the land he owned and leased in Brighton for his nursery business became valuable for building purposes.

For some time he lived in retirement, but later he became associated with the nursery firm of Jacob Thomann & Sons, of Rochester.

He was an active member of the Blessed Sacrament church parish since its organization twenty years ago. He was a member of the Holy Name Society, and at the time of his death was a trustee of the church. H. J. H.

Lincoln Dunbar.

Lincoln Dunbar, for several years head gardener on the estate of C. Moulton Stone, at Barrington, R. I., died at his home on Maple street in that town Tuesday, October 24, of heart disease. He was 66 years old. He had not been in good health for some time, but continued at his work. He decided not to go to work the morning of his death, but about 10 a. m. he arose to go into an adjoining room; on the way he reeled and fell and death came before a physician could be summoned.

Mr. Dunbar was a native of Bristol, R. I., son of Robert and Ruth Dunbar, and was one of a family of thirteen children. For a number of years he had been engaged as gardener on various estates in the vicinity of Barrington, Bristol and Warren, R. I. He is survived by his widow. W. H. M.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

Troy, N. Y.—Joseph P. Gettings, who recently entered the bankruptcy court, has assets of $198, consisting of equipment.

Newark, N. J.—Charles Penek, administrator of the estate of Chris Penek, has charged Peter Penek with wrongfully claiming to have been a partner of the late Chris Penek in the Rosery Floral Co., at 167 Market street. George Penek, of Summit, a brother of Peter and Charles, has appealed to the chancery court for relief. Vice-chancellor Church has directed Charles and Peter Penek and others in interest to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed to take over the Rosery Floral Co.; also, why Charles Penek should not account to the estate of Chris Penek for the value of the lease of the Market street store, which he is alleged to have given up. It is stated in the bill of complaint that Chris Penek died February 20, 1919, survived by his brothers, George, Charles and Peter; a half brother, named Frank Penek, and his parents. The mother died March 1, 1920. With the consent of the surviving heirs, Charles was appointed administrator of the estate, which amounted to about $27,000, the florists' firm being the greatest asset.

FLOWERING CLIMBERS POPULAR.

That the trade anticipates a good demand for flowering climbers is evidenced by recent good sales of these plants. One and 2-year-old plants are finding a ready market, and a reader of The Review sold 20,000 antigonons in an unusually short space of time, at prices ranging from $6 to $10 per hundred. Like this:

The antigonon advertisement sold 20,000 plants; best results I ever had from any advertisement in a paper.—H. C. Locke, New Braunfels, Tex., October 25, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

WISCONSIN FLORISTS ELECT

BADGERS IN ANNUAL MEETING.

Elect Officers.

James Taylor, of Oshkosh, Wis., former vice-president, was elected president of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association at the annual business meeting and convention, held in the trustees' room of the public museum, at Milwaukee, Thursday afternoon, November 2.

P. N. Obertin, of Kenosha, was elected vice-president and Henry R. Welke and William Zimmermann, of Milwaukee, were reelected secretary and treasurer, respectively. Lewis Turner, of Kenosha, and John Rindfleisch, of Beloit, continued on the board of directors.

An amendment to the constitution was passed making the retiring president automatically serve on the board of directors for one year, in order that the experience gained during the year and the knowledge of the unfinished business would not be lost. Fred Rentschler, of Madison, retiring president, became a member of the board, and George Vatter, of Marinette, retired.

Manitowoc in '23.

Discussion of the advisability of having two meetings a year, one in the fall and one in the summer, was taken up, and it was voted to extend the time of the fall meeting to three days and the summer meeting to two days. The invitation of the Manitowoc florists for the 1923 summer meeting was accepted.

Following the business session a meeting of members of the F. T. D. was held, with A. R. Leidiger, of Milwaukee, in charge. A resolution was passed urging the organization of all the county florists in the state into separate bodies in order to expedite and perfect the telegraph delivery system.

The convention was opened Thursday morning, November 2, with a reception and registration of members at the museum. The two floors of the rotunda were elaborately decorated with chrysanthemums, roses and all varieties of cut flowers, artistically placed in groups around set tables. The balcony was covered with autumn leaves and branches.

In the absence of President Fred Rentschler, Vice-president James Taylor officiated. Many interesting discussions came up at this meeting, one of them being on "Schools for Designing and the Making-up of Baskets and Bouquets." This was an interesting subject and was passed over to the board of directors for action. There was also a discussion on "The Advantages of an Ice Machine vs. Ice," and one on "The Best Method of Advertising for Florists in Smaller Cities."

Banquet Big Success.

A banquet was held Thursday evening, at 7 p. m., for all the members of the association and the ladies, which was attended by about 150 in the trade. The entertainment committee put on a wonderful program and the entertainment features were a big success. William Zimmermann was master of ceremonies. There was plenty of entertainment between the speeches, which were followed by a dance; this lasted until midnight.

Make Tour on Friday.

Friday, November 3, all the visiting florists, as guests of the wholesale florists here, took a drive around to the establishments of the Holton & Hunkel Co., C. C. Pollworth Co. and the Cudahy Floral Co. These places, at this time, are in their prime condition.

At the place of the Holton & Hunkel Co., the visitors enjoyed the large and fine stock of cyclamen plants, as well as the chrysanthemums and roses.

Also, at the establishment of the C. C. Pollworth Co., the roses, carnations and chrysanthemums were coming in in fine shape, as well as poinsettias and cyclamens.

The Cudahy Floral Co., which grows roses exclusively, was found in excellent condition, and a big crop for the coming season is promised.

A chicken dinner was served the visiting florists on tour at Hilgen Spring park, Cedarburg, Wis., under the auspices of the three wholesale dealers in Milwaukee.

The Milwaukee Florists' Club staged a flower show in connection with the state association's meeting, and the visiting members enjoyed this much. A great variety of plants was shown. All this made the visiting florists' trip to the convention worth while; in fact, all the visitors, when leaving for home, commented on the fact that they were glad they came and spent two days, which, they feel, will be profitable to them in the future.

Among Those Present.

More than 150 enthusiastic members of the trade attended this annual meeting. From out of town were noted the following:

Amerpohl, Edward H., Janesville, Wis.
Benz, Henry, Racine, Wis.
Binx, Rudolph A., Racine, Wis.
Blondey, G. O., New London, Wis.
Boelter, J. H., Appleton, Wis.
Brown, Andrew, and wife, Ripon, Wis.
Brueggemann, A. R., North Milwaukee, Wis.
Buchholz, W., Oshkosh, Wis.
Christensen, H. C., Oshkosh, Wis.
Cloute, Herbert, Fort Atkinson, Wis.
Cloute, Tommie, Fort Atkinson, Wis.
Craneheld, Frederick, Madison, Wis.
Davis, Ward B., Oshkosh, Wis.
Eberhardt, Ernst, Cedarburg, Wis.

James E. Taylor.

(President-elect of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association.)

meeting and exhibition has been left chiefly in the hands of our vice-president, W. A. Rowe, who has worked hard to make every preparation for a successful meeting and exhibition.

"The proceedings of the nineteenth and twentieth annual meetings in combined form have been gotten out by the secretary and mailed to every member.

"The reports of the several committees were sent to the trade papers by the secretary, together with other notices of the society, and, as heretofore, they have generously published all notices sent to them during the year, for which we are greatly indebted.

"Your secretary again wishes to acknowledge the kindness of Elmer D. Smith in furnishing him with a complete list of varieties disseminated in 1921, which appears in the annual report."

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

Examining Committees.

The committees appointed by the Chrysanthemum Society of America to examine new varieties of chrysanthemums have submitted reports of the season as follows:

At Chicago, November 1, Cora Peck Buhl, golden yellow, button pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 36; form, 18; stem and foliage, 18; fullness, 18; total, 90.

MILWAUKEE'S FLOWER SHOW.

Thirty Thousand See It.

About 30,000 people attended the flower show last week, which was a free exhibition put on at the Milwaukee public library building. While the space allotted was not sufficiently large to take care of the exhibition in proper shape, yet there was quite an interesting display in great variety.

Many of the made-up baskets and table decorations were attractive and interesting to the public. As this show was purely for educational and publicity purposes, it was a great success.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. displayed Nagirroe, Richmond, Elberon, Improved Chieftain, Alice Day, White Gem, William Turner and Yellow Turner chrysanthemums; also, a collection of pompons and seedlings; Premier, Columbia, Golden Ophelia, Milady, Butterfly, Angelus and Commonwealth roses. In carnations the firm displayed Edna, Mrs. C. W. Ward, White Delight, Harvester and Laddie.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. displayed in roses Ophelia, Premier and Columbia. The company also displayed cyclamen plants, chrysanthemum plants and pompons. Valley, Cleveland cherries and orange plants were also displayed.

H. Locker & Sons displayed pompons, hanging baskets, begonias, sweet peas and carnations.

The Heitman-Oestreicher Co. displayed Richmond chrysanthemums, and carnations.

H. Schwebke & Son displayed snapdragons.

O. Sylvester, of Oconomowoc, Wis., displayed chrysanthemums and carnations.

Thomas Griebler & Sons displayed pansies, pot chrysanthemums and rubrum lilies.

Riebs Bros. displayed a collection of pompons and carnations.

Preuss & Son displayed chrysanthemums, carnations and basket of flowers.

E. Haasch displayed chrysanthemum plants.

Gustave Kellner displayed a collection of foliage plants.

The park board displayed ferns and palms.

The Cudahy Floral Co. displayed Premier, Butterfly and Columbia roses.

The Edlefsen Floral Co. displayed two baskets of flowers and two vases of chrysanthemums.

Other Exhibits.

Kroseberg the Florist displayed a basket of flowers.

Gimbel Bros. displayed two baskets of flowers and two specimen chrysanthemum plants.

Denver, Colo.—The annual flower show of Denver is to be held this year in the Auditorium building November 15 to 17. A handsome silver loving cup will be given to the grower who displays the twelve largest and best chrysanthemums at the show. Many other prizes will be awarded in order to enliven competition. Adam Kohankie, superintendent of Washington park, is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

IOWA MEETING

BUCKEYES TO MEET.

At Council Bluffs.

The twentieth annual convention of the Society of Iowa Florists will be held at the Auditorium, Council Bluffs, Ia., November 16, in conjunction with the fourth Mid-west Horticultural Exposition, under the auspices of the Iowa State Horticultural Society, with the Council Bluffs Chamber of Commerce coöperating, November 13 to 18.

The trade is hereby notified that the one and one-half rate for railroad fare, certificate plan, has been secured from practically all points in the country to Council Bluffs, Ia. In order to secure this rate, buy a one-way ticket between November 9 and 15 inclusive from your station direct to Council Bluffs. When buying your ticket ask the ticket agent for a certificate stating that you desire to buy a ticket to Council Bluffs to attend any one of the conventions which are included in the group meeting in the Auditorium November 13 to 18. If it is impossible to secure a certificate from your local agent, buy a local ticket to the nearest point where a certificate and through ticket can be secured. Sign the certificate in the presence of the agent. The certificate should be stamped on the day on which the ticket is purchased.

Immediately upon your arrival at Council Bluffs present your certificate to R. S. Herrick, who will have the same validated and returned to you.

This will enable you to buy your ticket to your home from Council Bluffs over the same route which you came, for one-half fare, the return date limit being November 22.

Florists' Program.

The program for the convention of the Society of Iowa Florists, which includes the joint meeting of the Nebraska and Iowa florists, is as follows:

THURSDAY A. M.

Registration of visiting florists at the Wilcox Flower Shop, 530 Broadway, Council Bluffs, Ia.
 Tour of Council Bluffs greenhouses.

THURSDAY P. M.

President's address of welcome, by Blaine C. Wilcox, Council Bluffs.

"Greenhouse Soil Sterilization," by T. W. Lafferty, Ames, Ia.

Chrysanthemum Culture," by John Reardon, Ames, Ia.

Treasurer's report, by James L. Denmead, Marshalltown, Ia.

Secretary's report, by R. S. Herrick, Des Moines, Ia.

General discussion of any subject of importance to the florist.

Election of officers.

Florists' banquet, Grand hotel, 6 p. m.

Premiums will be awarded in the cut flower and plant section amounting to about $1,800 in cash.

The officers for the year 1922 of the Society of Iowa Florists are as follows: President, Blaine C. Wilcox, Council Bluffs; vice-president, Roy H. Kemble, Ottumwa, Ia.; treasurer, James L. Denmead, Marshalltown, Ia.; secretary, R. S. Herrick, Des Moines, Ia. The board of directors includes H. J. Watson, Reinbeck, Ia.; A. Smith, Boone, Ia.; Homer Richey, Albia, Ia.; O. B. Stevens, Shenandoah, Ia.

EASTERN EXHIBITIONS

ALBANY FLOWER SHOW.

Opened November 1.

The third annual flower show, given under the auspices of the Albany Florists' Club in the Vincentian Institute hall, opened promptly Wednesday evening, November 1, with a large attendance. The decorative committee working with Chairman W. W. Hannell received much praise for the fine showing made.

The floral booths contributed to the general effect, each occupant vying with the others for the best artistic decoration. The booth holders were as follows: Arkay Florists, Danker, Flowerdale, Fred Henkes, Holmes Bros., J. P. and M. Trivison, Rosery Flower Shop, all of Albany; A. D. Carpenter, Cohoes, N. Y.; Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, N. Y.; Western Union Telegraph Co., Albany branch.

Danker's nursery department had a fine collection of conifers, artistically grouped. The setting of Fred Henkes, a hunter's cabin with the accompanying collection of birds and game, was admittedly in a class by itself.

The Albany Cut Flower Exchange exhibited florists' supplies in a conspicuous place. Manager Thomas Tracey explained the latest contrivance in connection with work on floral blankets. There were also many novelties for the holidays seen here.

R. G. Slicker, local representative of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, had a full line of sample baskets, many of which were lent to the several exhibitors, and much appreciated.

From a Distance

F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., showed a collection of famous ferns and also some roses.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., sent the new rose, Commonwealth, which was much admired and a valued contribution.

James H. Snyder staged a grand lot of Rhinebeck-grown Marie Louise violets.

Joseph Traudt, Canajoharie, N. Y., showed the only vase of Chrysanthemum Enguehard on display. It was fine. Also worthy of special mention was a specimen of Cattleya labiata, with a spike carrying thirty-five blooms.

Fred Goldring, Slingerlands, N. Y., staged Nephrolepis Norwood and Teddy, Jr. He also displayed some White Chieftain and William Turner mums of good quality, together with other plants.

Valentin Burgevin's Sons, Kingston, N. Y., exhibited a fine specimen of Yellow Turner mums. It was the largest plant in the show and received much notice.

W. W. Hannell, Watervliet, N. Y., staged a miscellaneous group of heather, oranges and pot-grown mums arranged with Nephrolepis Teddy, Jr., on the center floor, together with a special display of cyclamens.

Among the most conspicuous entries in the chrysanthemum list were Mari-gold and Orange Queen, from Danker's, grown two blooms on the stem; Oconto and Richmond, from W. W. Hannell; and Richmond and Sun Glow, from Sunnyside Greenhouses, Schenectady. The new roses, blooms of Angelus, from Danker's, and Commonwealth, from A. N. Pierson, Inc., were inspected interestedly.

Gros Colman and Barbarossa grapes from the Dean Sage estate, Albany, N. Y., Thomas L. Talbot superintendent, made a good showing.

A superb collection of vegetables grown by William Marver, gardener to W. H. Sage, Albany, was admired.

"Like a fairy garden!" exclaimed an enthusiast to Prof. E. A. White, of Cornell University, while making the rounds of the show. The worthy dean admitted the inspiration when later he successfully by him. The new King houses are planted with carnations in low concrete beds. Aviator, Miss Theo, Mrs. Goeben, Ruth Baur, Matchless, Benora, Maine Sunshine, are flourishing. W. M.

FALL EXHIBITION IN BOSTON.

Lack of Specimen Plants.

At one time the annual chrysanthemum show in Boston was a great event and attracted large crowds of visitors. The days of specimen plants seem to be over here. At one time there used to be as many as five entries of twelve specimen bush plants. On the present occasion only one small trained plant was shown. Big blooms, which used to fill an entire hall, are also a steadily dwindling quantity and few private estates now grow them, while many of the commercial establishments find the small varieties more profitable. A few years ago it was decided to drop the name chrysanthemum show in favor of fall exhibition, and, while a good and well varied exhibition was staged, it failed to attract any considerable attendance as in former years.

Half of the floor space in the main hall was occupied with a garden arrangement of chrysanthemums, palms and various foliage plants. A large circular bed was in the center, with a tall palm as a center piece. Walks surrounded this and led to other beds, which were tastefully arranged, and the use of abundant colored oak foliage added greatly to the general appearance. Many standard mums were used and quantities of nice, bushy, naturally grown singles, pompons and anemones, in addition to disbudded varieties, made the whole exhibit a pleasing one. This fine display was from L. D. Towle, Newton, Mass., for whom Harold Graham is superintendent. The same exhibitor staged a fine group of choice orchids arranged with foliage plants. Some of the best varieties were Brassocattleyas Carmen and Thorntonii, Læliocattleyas Britannia alba, St. George, Nella and Delight; also some fine incidiums, cypripediums and other varieties. Mr. Towle also had a nice table of fine-foliaged plants.

Many Exhibit.

E. S. Webster, Chestnut Hill, Mass., for whom Peter Arnott is superintendent, had a splendid group of flowering and foliage plants, which received first prize. The higher portions were filled with palms and chrysanthemums, while nearer the front were large quantities of the English winter-flowering begonias, arranged in groups or beds. Specially fine were two beds of Exquisite, also quantities of Emily Clibran, Pink Perfection, optima and other first-class sorts, all beautifully grown.

The Harvard Botanical Garden, of which Joseph Reardon is superintendent, had a table of interesting plants, including Begonia peltata and B. smaragdina, Salvia involucrata and the pretty dwarf Lantana Sellowiana.

delivered an illustrated lecture on "Flower Growing in England" to a large and appreciative audience.

By mutual agreement, competition was confined to private growers. The exhibits of W. H. Sage, R. T. Reynolds and Henry Sage received, in addition to premiums, high commendation for excellent culture. A collection of mum blooms of enormous size was received from Edward Jenkins and A. Heermans, of Lenox, Mass. They arrived the second day of the show and were the center of attraction.

Ethan A. Coon, of Rhinebeck, staged bunches of Violet Marie Louise, deep in color and rich in fragrance. R. E. Loeben, Gloversville, gave an informal talk on growing Indian azaleas, of which he has about 50,000—in various stages from the cutting bed to plants 3 years old, in 5-inch and 6-inch pots, of leading sorts, grown in soil obtained from pine woods in the Adirondacks. Ericas and metrosideros are also grown Ernest B. Dane, Chestnut Hill, for whom Donald McKenzie is superintendent, had a splendidly arranged group on the platform of the lecture hall, including orchids and fine foliage plants. Masses of Oncidium varicosum Rogersii, Cattleya labiata and cyrtipediums were quite striking. Among the cyrtipediums was one grand specimen, carrying twenty-six flowers, of C. insigne Sanderæ, as well as numerous smaller plants of this and such fine sorts as Maudiae, Olivia, E. B. Dane, Harefield Hall and others. A silver medal was awarded to the fine Brassocattleya Admiral Jellicoe, and a first-class certificate to Læliocattleya Alex. Cattleyas Moira, fabia alba and fabia, Vanda Sanderiana, phalaenopsis, epidendrums and many other fine things were included in this excellent first-prize group.

L. C. Seagrove, superintendent to Mrs. R. M. Saltonstall, Chestnut Hill, had the best six specimens of winter-flowering begonias, all being of the large-flowered type. James Marlborough, superintendent to Thomas E. Proctor, Topsfield, had wonderful specimens over four feet across of Begonia Emily Clibran and Orange King, also a fine plant of the newer variety, Sunrise. These were the finest winter-flowering begonias ever shown in Boston. It was noted that not a solitary plant of Melior, Cincinnati or Lorraine was shown. They would have been quite outclassed by the larger and showier English type.

Other Winners.

For twenty-five specimen blooms, L. D. Towle won with large, well finished blooms of Mrs. J. Gibson, Odessa, H. E. Converse, W. Woodmason, Yellow Pockett, Silver King, Mrs. Partridge, Nerissa, Arlista, Lady Hopetoun, Yellow Turner, Mary Mason, C. H. Totty, Vermont, Louise Pockett, Nagiroc, Thomas Lunt, Miss Ruth Twombly, Pres. J. Everitt, W. R. Church, Bob Pulling, Reginald Vallis, Mrs. H. J. Jones and William Turner.

For twelve Japanese varieties Iris-thorpe Farm, Shrewsbury, Mass., where Allen Jenkins is superintendent, was first with A. C. Pulling, Yellow Turner, F. S. Quittenton, Mrs. Gilbert Drabble, Ramapo, Mrs. H. Stevens, Chrysolora, Wells' Late Pink and William Turner. The same exhibitor had the best twelve bunches of pompons, showing Hilda Canning, New York, Mariana, Skibo, Golden Climax, Romaine Warren, Mary and November Gold.

Cromwell Gardens showed bunches of pompons November Gold, Pauline Wilcox, New York and Louise Davenport, awarded a certificate of merit. George F. Stewart, superintendent to Arthur Lyman, had a fine table of chrysanthemums which were undisbudded. Allen Jenkins also filled a large table with pompons and large disbudded flowers. Alfred E. T. Rogers, superintendent to W. H. Moore, Prides Crossing, showed a collection of charming seedlings with loose flowers, some in pots, others cut. John L. Smith, superintendent to A. W. Preston, Swampscott, had a big specimen of Polypodium Mandaianum. Excellent specimen chrysanthemums came from Miss L. W. Case, Weston, J. P. Dorgan, gardener, and from Walter H. Golby, Jamaica Plain, superintendent to Mrs. Edward A. Clark. The latter showed splendid Columbia roses, as did L. D. Towle. For twenty-five carnations L. D. Towle won with Laddie. The new rose Commonwealth attracted much favorable notice and was awarded a certificate of merit.

A fine specimen of Oncidium varicosum Rogersii was shown by Henry Stewart, carrying a dozen spikes.

Fruits and vegetables filled the lecture hall. The fruit display was the finest seen in some years. Hillcrest Gardens, Weston, won two silver cups offered by Albert C. Burrage for the best groups of fruits and vegetables arranged for effect, each covering fifty square feet. George F. Stewart had the best greenhouse grapes. Not a solitary retailer made a display on this occasion.

Totty Speaks.

C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., lectured on hardy chrysanthemums and their culture November 4 and 5, in connection with the fall show. He emphasized the necessity of good drainage for these plants and advised a coating of leaves as a winter protection, condemning stable manure as a covering. In sections where winters are quite severe he said it would pay to lift some stock plants and carry them over in a coldframe. Even if no plants wintered, he said, many growers now prefer to spend a few dollars annually on some of these hardy varieties, as they give so much pleasure late in the season, when all other outdoor flowers have passed.

Mr. Totty suggested the following as good, hardy varieties: Among pompons, Anna Moran and Julia DeWitt, as bronzes; White Doty, Mariana and Snowbird, as whites; Zenobia, Connie Dick, Sidney Mitchell and Clara Jamieson, yellows. Other desirable varieties he recommended are: Rena, of a purplish color; Sara Townsend, bronze; Bronze Doty. He said all of the Doty family are excellent hardy varieties.

Among singles he recommended Mrs. William Harrison, Mrs. William Buckingham, Bronze Buckingham, Ida Skiff, Countess of Egmont, Sunshine, of a fine gold amber color, Roupel Beauty, Portia and Mrs. Clifford Brigham. The Japanese anemones, he said, are also proving to be good hardy varieties.

Of older varieties he suggested the following: Normandie, Yellow Advance, Seven Oaks, Cranfordia, Horace Baltet, A. Barham, Smith's Advance, Petite Jeanne and Firelight. A good rose-pink-colored pompon, he said, is Mrs. Robinson and as a single pink Charlotte Lake is hard to surpass. Pinching on hardy chrysanthemums, Mr. Totty said, should be discontinued after July 1.

Mr. Totty had sprays of nearly all the varieties referred to and at the close of the lectures many in the audience came forward to examine them and ask for additional information, showing the keen interest taken by the general public in hardy chrysanthemums. Mr. Totty considers the Doty family among the hardiest and best of pompons and the Buckinghams as standing high among singles.

SHOW AT TARRYTOWN.

Weather Made to Order.

The twenty-fourth annual exhibition of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society was held in Music hall, Tarrytown, N. Y.,

November 1 to 3. The weather was ideal and made to order for the opening day, the chrysanthemums harmonizing with the autumn foliage. The exhibit, while not so large as in former years, was of superior quality.

The hall was a bower of flowers, beginning with the beautiful setting on the stage of an exhibit of palms and flowering plants by William B. Thompson, of Yonkers, continuing in beauty to the rear of the hall, with roses, chrysanthemums and other flowers and decorative plants.

In the front of the stage was a beautiful exhibit by F. R. Pierson, of roses, including a particularly fine vase of Francis Scott Key roses, chrysanthemums, ferns and palms, which received honorable mention.

A silver medal was awarded to an elegant vase of Rose Hill's America exhibited by Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., and a cultural certificate to a fine vase of Rose Commonwealth exhibited by A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn.

Other Prize-Winners.

Among other prize-winners were W. W. Robertson, gardener to E. E. Smathers; P. Venezia, gardener to H. H. Rogers; Alex. Anderson, gardener to H. Sidenberg; J. W. Smith, gardener to Mrs. F. E. Lewis; A. Strachan, gardener to W. B. Thompson; D. S. Miller, gardener to J. I. Blair; J. W. Dowlen, gardener to S. M. Lehman; John MacIntyre, gardener to R. C. Colt; Charles Luthven, gardener to Eugene Meyer, Jr.; Harry Jones, gardener to R. A. Strong; Frank Honeyman, gardener to Hugh H. Hill; Jack Willie, gardener to Edward Holbrook; C. A. Mackay, gardener to S. Untermeyer; A. G. Williams, gardener to J. I. Straus; William Will, gardener to Clarence Whitman; James McDonald, gardener to Stanley McCormick; A. D. Hutcheson, gardener to Dr. C. C. Brace; Charles L. Fisher, gardener to H. E. Rogers; A. E. Townsend, gardener to H. L. Van Praag; Edward Kane, gardener to E. P. King; John Watts, gardener to J. S. Halle; Robert Mason, gardener to S. Fish; Charles Scott, gardener to M. Taylor; W. J. Sealey, gardener to Charles Mallory; William Carey, gardener to S. Untermeyer; Thomas Neville, gardener to S. Untermeyer; William Ellings, gardener to G. F. Baker, and Thomas Curley, gardener to S. Fish.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Believing that the time set for receiving invitations for the holding of the next national flower show, Monday, November 6, possibly would not allow sufficient time for a proper consideration of the project, George Asmus, chairman of the national flower show committee, after further communication with his committee members and other officials, has postponed the meetings of the committee called for that day in Cleveland and the next day in St. Louis, until such time as will insure properly considered invitations being before the committee. All cities able to house a national flower show are urged to give the matter of the necessary invitation to the society attention without delay, and file a formal proposition with the secretary, with full particulars as to size and scope of hall, and special inducements, if any, which may be offered under the circumstances. John Young, Sec'y.

MAYWOOD HOLDS OPEN HOUSE

FLORISTS' COLONY ENTERTAINS.

Chicago Trade's Biggest Gathering.

The largest assemblage of members of the trade which has ever gathered in Chicago or vicinity celebrated the field day of the Chicago Florists' Club at Maywood, Thursday, November 2. About 500 persons spent the afternoon in the inspection of the thirteen greenhouse establishments in that locality, and later viewed a flower show and enjoyed refreshments and entertainment at the establishment of the A. F. Amling Co.

When the Maywood Associated Growers invited the trade to visit that greenhouse center, it was expected that the turn-out would be a large one, but the size of the attendance, and the enjoyable reception the visitors met, were beyond anticipations. At noon, November 2, automobiles began to arrive, and they found established along the road all the way from the business district in Maywood, guides posted to point the way to the various greenhouses.

The central point of attraction was the office of the A. F. Amling Co., which is situated within a stone's throw of six other ranges. In this office everybody was asked to register, and the signatures had reached nearly 500 when night came. A rose was pinned on each visitor with the compliments of the A. F. Amling Co., and a combination metal corkscrew, bottle opener and key ring was presented each man by representatives of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., while boxes of Mrs. Snyder's chocolates were given the ladies by the Brunswick-Kroeschell Co. Why this company felt that it was its occasion to treat may be explained by Fred Lautenschlager's remark that, of the 1,460,000 square feet of glass recently estimated as included in the Maywood district, over half (870,000 square feet) is heated by Kroeschell boilers—high-pressure steam, low-pressure steam and hot water; over 1,530 horsepower boiler capacity is used for this purpose.

Having tasted this preliminary hospitality, guests started on their tour of inspection.

Seeing the Sights.

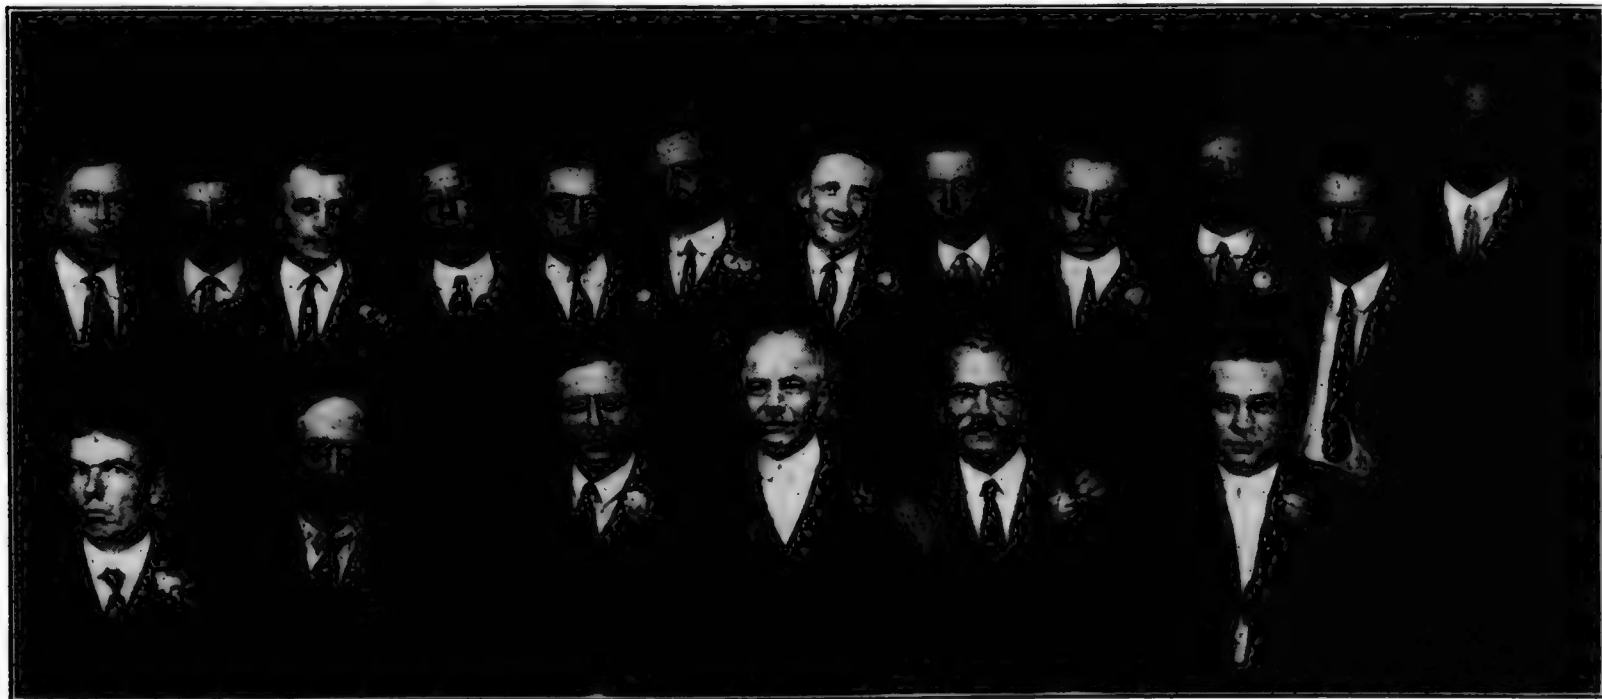

The establishment of the A. F. Amling Co. is one of the largest in the vicinity of the Chicago market. It comprises 600,000 feet of glass and contains 260,000 rose plants. The establishment is devoted entirely to the production of roses for cut flowers and large quantities of the standard commercial varieties are grown. A sign proclaimed that here the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. received its start, an order for houses 44x550 feet being its first. The range is heated by the Agmco vacuum heating system. This establishment was one of the first among growers to install an ice machine; the 2-ton Kroeschell machine installed February 17, 1919, is operated by a 5-horsepower motor and cools 3,163 cubic feet. What is said to be the largest boiler installation ever made in any one range at one time is that of four 300-horsepower Kroeschell high-pressure fire and water tube steam boilers here. Among the interesting sights in this range were the benches of the firm's rose, Silver Wedding. This rose is top-budded on plants of Columbia. It is a sport of Ophelia and has a similar flower, but its foliage is a soft buff in color, quite attractive as a novelty in retail stores. The other variety raised by this firm recently, Maiden's Blush, also received notice, because of its peculiar coloring.

More Roses.

Not far from this range is that of the Premier Rose Gardens, which contains 300,000 feet of glass. Paul Weiss was there to pour "cider" for the guests, and Superintendent Andrew Benson proudly showed visitors the excellent crops of roses coming on. Arrows guided the guests through the four big Lord & Burnham houses, each 70x400 feet. Their trip was rewarded by cigars at the far end, where M. C. Wright, assisted by Messrs. Woodward, Patrick and Connell, received friends. Almost all the glass at this range is devoted to the rose which gives it its name, but some splendid Milady, Columbia and Butterfly are produced in addition. The Dayton coal feeders on the boilers attracted visitors' attention. These stokers, made by the Automatic Furnace Co., Dayton, O., have been found quite successful at this range.

Not far away the range of the Weiss & Meyer Co. exhibited further fine crops of Premier. This variety and Butterfly are the only ones grown there. The big Lord & Burnham house presented a sight long to be remembered by those who saw it. To one standing on the benches, the plants in the eastern half looked as level as if trimmed with a lawn mower. These had had two pinches in preparation for the Christmas crop, and the plants appeared to be timed just right for the holiday. Each of the 7,500 plants in this half of the house contained five to eight breaks, and an estimate of the crop of long-stemmed roses it would provide the Christmas market would conservatively be 35,000. The west half of the house contained an November 1 to 3. The weather was ideal and made to order for the opening day, the chrysanthemums harmonizing with the autumn foliage. The exhibit, while not so large as in former years, was of superior quality.

The hall was a bower of flowers, beginning with the beautiful setting on the stage of an exhibit of palms and flowering plants by William B. Thompson, of Yonkers, continuing in beauty to the rear of the hall, with roses, chrysanthemums and other flowers and decorative plants.

In the front of the stage was a beautiful exhibit by F. R. Pierson, of roses, including a particularly fine vase of Francis Scott Key roses, chrysanthemums, ferns and palms, which received honorable mention.

A silver medal was awarded to an elegant vase of Rose Hill's America exhibited by Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., and a cultural certificate to a fine vase of Rose Commonwealth exhibited by A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn.

Other Prize-Winners.

Among other prize-winners were W. W. Robertson, gardener to E. E. Smathers; P. Venezia, gardener to H. H. Rogers; Alex. Anderson, gardener to H. Sidenberg; J. W. Smith, gardener to Mrs. F. E. Lewis; A. Strachan, gardener to W. B. Thompson; D. S. Miller, gardener to J. I. Blair; J. W. Dowlen, gardener to S. M. Lehman; John MacIntyre, gardener to R. C. Colt; Charles Luthven, gardener to Eugene Meyer, Jr.; Harry Jones, gardener to R. A. Strong; Frank Honeyman, gardener to Hugh H. Hill; Jack Willie, gardener to Edward Holbrook; C. A. Mackay, gardener to S. Untermeyer; A. G. Williams, gardener to J. I. Straus; William Will, gardener to Clarence Whitman; James McDonald, gardener to Stanley McCormick; A. D. Hutcheson, gardener to Dr. C. C. Brace; Charles L. Fisher, gardener to H. E. Rogers; A. E. Townsend, gardener to H. L. Van Praag; Edward Kane, gardener to E. P. King; John Watts, gardener to J. S. Halle; Robert Mason, gardener to S. Fish; Charles Scott, gardener to M. Taylor; W. J. Sealey, gardener to Charles Mallory; William Carey, gardener to S. Untermeyer; Thomas Neville, gardener to S. Untermeyer; William Ellings, gardener to G. F. Baker, and Thomas Curley, gardener to S. Fish.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Believing that the time set for receiving invitations for the holding of the next national flower show, Monday, November 6, possibly would not allow sufficient time for a proper consideration of the project, George Asmus, chairman of the national flower show committee, after further communication with his committee members and other officials, has postponed the meetings of the committee called for that day in Cleveland and the next day in St. Louis, until such time as will insure properly considered invitations being before the committee. All cities able to house a national flower show are urged to give the matter of the necessary invitation to the society attention without delay, and file a formal proposition with the secretary, with full particulars as to size and scope of hall, and special inducements, if any, which may be offered under the circumstances. John Young, Sec'y.

MAYWOOD HOLDS OPEN HOUSE

FLORISTS' COLONY ENTERTAINS.

Chicago Trade's Biggest Gathering.

The largest assemblage of members of the trade which has ever gathered in Chicago or vicinity celebrated the field day of the Chicago Florists' Club at Maywood, Thursday, November 2. About 500 persons spent the afternoon in the inspection of the thirteen greenhouse establishments in that locality, and later viewed a flower show and enjoyed refreshments and entertainment at the establishment of the A. F. Amling Co.

When the Maywood Associated Growers invited the trade to visit that greenhouse center, it was expected that the turn-out would be a large one, but the size of the attendance, and the enjoyable reception the visitors met, were beyond anticipations. At noon, November 2, automobiles began to arrive, and they found established along the road all the way from the business district in Maywood, guides posted to point the way to the various greenhouses.

The central point of attraction was the office of the A. F. Amling Co., which is situated within a stone's throw of six other ranges. In this office everybody was asked to register, and the signatures had reached nearly 500 when night came. A rose was pinned on each visitor with the compliments of the A. F. Amling Co., and a combination metal corkscrew, bottle opener and key ring was presented each man by representatives of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., while boxes of Mrs. Snyder's chocolates were given the ladies by the Brunswick-Kroeschell Co. Why this company felt that it was its occasion to treat may be explained by Fred Lautenschlager's remark that, of the 1,460,000 square feet of glass recently estimated as included in the Maywood district, over half (870,000 square feet) is heated by Kroeschell boilers—high-pressure steam, low-pressure steam and hot water; over 1,530 horsepower boiler capacity is used for this purpose.

Having tasted this preliminary hospitality, guests started on their tour of inspection.

Seeing the Sights.

The establishment of the A. F. Amling Co. is one of the largest in the vicinity of the Chicago market. It comprises 600,000 feet of glass and contains 260,000 rose plants. The establishment is devoted entirely to the production of roses for cut flowers and large quantities of the standard commercial varieties are grown. A sign proclaimed that here the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. received its start, an order for houses 41x550 feet being its first. The range is heated by the Agmeo vacuum heating system. This establishment was one of the first among growers to install an ice machine; the 2-ton Kroeschell machine installed February 17, 1919, is operated by a 5-horsepower motor and cools 3,163 cubic feet. What is said to be the largest boiler installation ever made in any one range at one time is that of four 300-horsepower Kroeschell high-pressure fire and water tube steam boilers here. Among the interesting sights in this range were the benches of the firm's rose, Silver Wedding. This rose is top-budded on plants of Columbia. It is a sport of Ophelia and has a similar flower, but its foliage is a soft buff in color, quite attractive as a novelty in retail stores. The other variety raised by this firm recently, Maiden's Blush, also received notice, because of its peculiar coloring.

More Roses.

Not far from this range is that of the Premier Rose Gardens, which contains 300,000 feet of glass. Paul Weiss was there to pour "eider" for the guests, and Superintendent Andrew Benson proudly showed visitors the excellent crops of roses coming on. Arrows guided the guests through the four big Lord & Burnham houses, each 70x400 feet. Their trip was rewarded by cigars at the far end, where M. C. Wright, assisted by Messrs. Woodward, Patrick and Connell, received friends. Almost all the glass at this range is devoted to the rose which gives it its name, but some splendid Milady, Columbia and Butterfly are produced in addition. The Dayton coal feeders on the boilers attracted visitors' attention. These stokers, made by the Automatic Furnace Co., Dayton, O., have been found quite successful at this range.

Not far away the range of the Weiss & Meyer Co. exhibited further fine crops of Premier. This variety and Butterfly are the only ones grown there. The big Lord & Burnham house presented a sight long to be remembered by those who saw it. To one standing on the benches, the plants in the eastern half looked as level as if trimmed with a lawn mower. These had had two pinches in preparation for the Christmas crop, and the plants appeared to be timed just right for the holiday. Each of the 7,500 plants in this half of the house contained five to eight breaks, and an estimate of the crop of long-stemmed roses it would provide the Christmas market would conservatively be 35,000. The west half of the house contained an equal number of plants just as even, but with only one pinch. Henry Meyer received the congratulations of visitors on this fine showing. A bed of novelties drew considerable notice. Here were Angelus, which showed up well; Joseph Hill's seedling No. 4, a handsome pink almost deep enough to be sold as a red, and Commonwealth, which showed no blooms, but the plants looked well.

At the range of F. W. Kuhlmann, 60,000 feet of glass is devoted to growing Columbia and Butterfly and a few Crusader. A dozen plants each of Medina and Commonwealth were interestingly examined.

The range of William Spandikow & Sons is small, containing 35,000 feet of glass, but the quality of the stock produced here is not to be exceeded. Mr. Spandikow is one of the few who can do Milady to perfection.

At the establishment of the Carl Hausermann Co. some of the finest Russell roses seen on the Chicago market are grown, but sweet peas form the larger part of the crop. These the visitors found in their usual good condition.

These same crops are grown by Paul Heitmann, the youngest member of the Maywood colony, who produces stock of good quality.

Chrysanthemums Prominent.

Next to roses, chrysanthemums are most important in Maywood at this season of the year. Henry Wehrman had almost his entire space of 65,000 feet given to them, a few stevias and sweet peas being the only other flowers devoted much space just now. Mr. Wehrman grows large-flowered varieties as well as pompons, the latter in sprays and also disbudded. He is especially successful with the latter, and his large stock, containing more than 100 varieties, is of great interest to mum men.

Just down the road is Hans Jepsen's range of 35,000 feet, also given up to chrysanthemums at present. Both the large commercial blooms and the pompons were in excellent shape. One bench had already been cleared of mums, and no time had been lost in planting it to sweet peas. Laddie carnations occupied one bench, where feverfew had been grown. In a lean-to at the far side of the house Iris filifolia Imperator was to be seen coming on well. A bench of the new Baur & Steinkamp commercial yellow mum, Golden Glory, attracted visitors' attention because of its splendid color and finely shaped blooms. Philip Foley and Philip Foley, Jr., assisted Mrs. Jepsen in receiving the guests. Cigars were here provided by the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co.

The Kuhlmann & Wieck Co. is a little distance away from the other establishments in Maywood, but a number of visitors made the trip over there to see the roses and sweet peas, which were in the best of shape on this occasion.

William Wichtendahl, though his range is not large, containing only 25,000 feet of glass, is reputed one of the hardest workers in the colony, and the excellence of the stock shows it. A large crop of stevia was noted here.

The small establishment of that pioneer, Hugo Luedtke, was notable for the variety of miscellaneous stock. Here is a large stock of Gomphrena globosa, popularly called "everlasting clover," because its blooms resemble the red sweet clover and may be dried for use through the winter. Cigars were provided here by the Ickes-Braun Mill Co.

The Proviso Floral Co. had Columbia roses of fine quality to show visitors. This is the old W. H. Amling range and is now run by F. W. Steinhebel.

Flower Show.

When the various greenhouse establishments had been inspected, visitors returned to the range of the A. F. Amling Co., where they saw, in a tent-like enclosure in one corner of the range, a flower show of considerable size and filled with stock unbeatable in quality.

A number of the exhibits had come from a distance. The record for traveling was made by Rose Commonwealth from A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn. It arrived in splendid condition, maintaining this variety's reputation as a keeper.

A large vase of long-stemmed America, from the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., displayed the splendid color for which this variety is well known. A vase of Amelia Gude and of the new French rose, Claudius Pernet, were also admired, as was a vase of the chrysanthemum, F. L. Roy, a commercial variety with red petals having a yellow reverse.

The older varieties introduced by Mr. Hill were exhibited in quantity by local firms. Premier Rose Gardens had some fine Premier and a few Milady. The Weiss & Meyer Co. showed good Columbia. William Spandikow & Sons exhibited Premier and Milady on long stems.

The A. F. Amling Co. put up a large vase of fifty Premier on long, stiff stems, which formed the center of a group of chrysanthemum plants from Ernest Oechslin, River Forest. This company also showed some fine White Killarney, Columbia, Butterfly, Crusader and blooms of its new variety, Maiden's Blush. The foliage of Silver Wedding, previously referred to, was worked up in a bouquet, a wreath, a corsage, a vase and as an adornment for a corsage box, showing how valuable this rose can be to the retailer.

The Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo., sent a vase of its new rose, Annie Laurie, deeper in shade than Ophelia, full-petaled and highly productive.

F. W. Kuhlmann showed Butterfly, Crusader, Commonwealth and Medina roses.

Dramm Bros., Elmhurst, had a vase of Golden Rule, a yellow variety, of which this firm bought the entire stock and which has proved popular on the Chicago market.

The Proviso Floral Co. had a vase of good Columbia.

Paul Heitmann had vases of sweet peas, including Bluebird, Snow Storm and Zvolanek's Rose.

The Carl Hausermann Co. exhibited Columbia roses and sweet peas.

The Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association sent a few of its large seedling chrysanthemums.

From Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., came blooms of Citronelle, a yellow commercial variety, to be sent out in the spring by this firm.

The only carnations on display were Aviator and Matchless, from W. F. Duntemann, Bensenville, Ill.

The Kuhlmann & Wieck Co. showed some excellent sweet peas, including the varieties Harmony, Mrs. Kerr, Snow Storm, Columbia, Melody and Bluebird.

One corner of the tent was filled by the exhibit of A. H. Schneider, Oak Park. The larger part of its bulk was furnished by a new Studebaker delivery car. Around it was a generous display of the first-class potted stock grown in the Schneider greenhouses, ranging from cherries, primulas and chrysanthemums to ferns, dracenas and kentias.

Hugo Luedtke showed some Gomphrena globosa, previously mentioned.

Queen of Autumn.

The Richmond Greenhouse Co., Richmond, Ind., appropriately exhibited a vase of Richmond chrysanthemums and also displayed a number of varieties of pompons, including Golden Feather, a large bronze, and Varsity, a yellow button.

A large group in the center of the tent was filled with chrysanthemums from the greenhouses of Hans Jepsen. In the center was a striking lot of Golden Glory. Other large-flowered varieties included Betsy Ross, white; Golden Queen, yellow; Alice Day, white; E. M. Benson, yellow; Queen Mary, white; Sargent Young, bronze; Golden Champion, yellow; Glenartney, bronze; Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, white; Private Merley Hayes, red with yellow reverse, and the more standard varieties, Richmond, Turner and Appleton.

Latest in Construction of Maywood Greenhouses Are the Four 70x400 L. & B. Houses, in Foreground, at Premier Rose Gardens.

Among spray varieties he showed Fire Bird, Lillian Doty, Mrs. H. Wickersham, Frances Huckvale, Connie Dick, Red Doty, Mrs. Harrison Craig, Mrs. Francis H. Bergen, Kitty Richards, Anna L. Moran, Hortense Malgat, Tricker and several sports.

Henry Wehrman's display of chrysanthemums filled a table that ran along one side of the enclosure. The large-flowered varieties shown were Richmond, Golden Queen, J. W. Prince and White Chieftain. Among the pompons he showed grown in spray form or disbudded were Ouray, Mrs. Chester Robinson, Zelia, Thelma, Angelo, Cometo, Juliana, White Midget, Bronze Cap, Illona, Varsity, October Gold, La Purite, Paulina Wilcox, Adelaide, Miramar, Vasco, Button Rose, Anna L. Moran, Mimico, Mrs. H. Harrison, Baby Doll, Bright Eyes and Izola. Mr. Wehrman was present, taking orders from the many interested in his stock.

From Adrian, Mich., Elmer D. Smith & Co. sent specimens of the pompons, Ethel and Octorara, grown in pots, and cut blooms of Old Gold, Marguerite Clark, Dainty Maid, Angelo, Ethel, Cometo, Wanda, Juliana and Erma-linda, the last a new pink for 1923 dissemination.

Peter Pearson showed several vases of mums, including the red single variety, H. Marie Totty; two anemones, Mrs. Charles Cleary and Spring Hill, and the following pompons: Bright Eyes, Baby Doll, Bronze Doty, Captain Cook, Chestnut, Leliah and Buena.

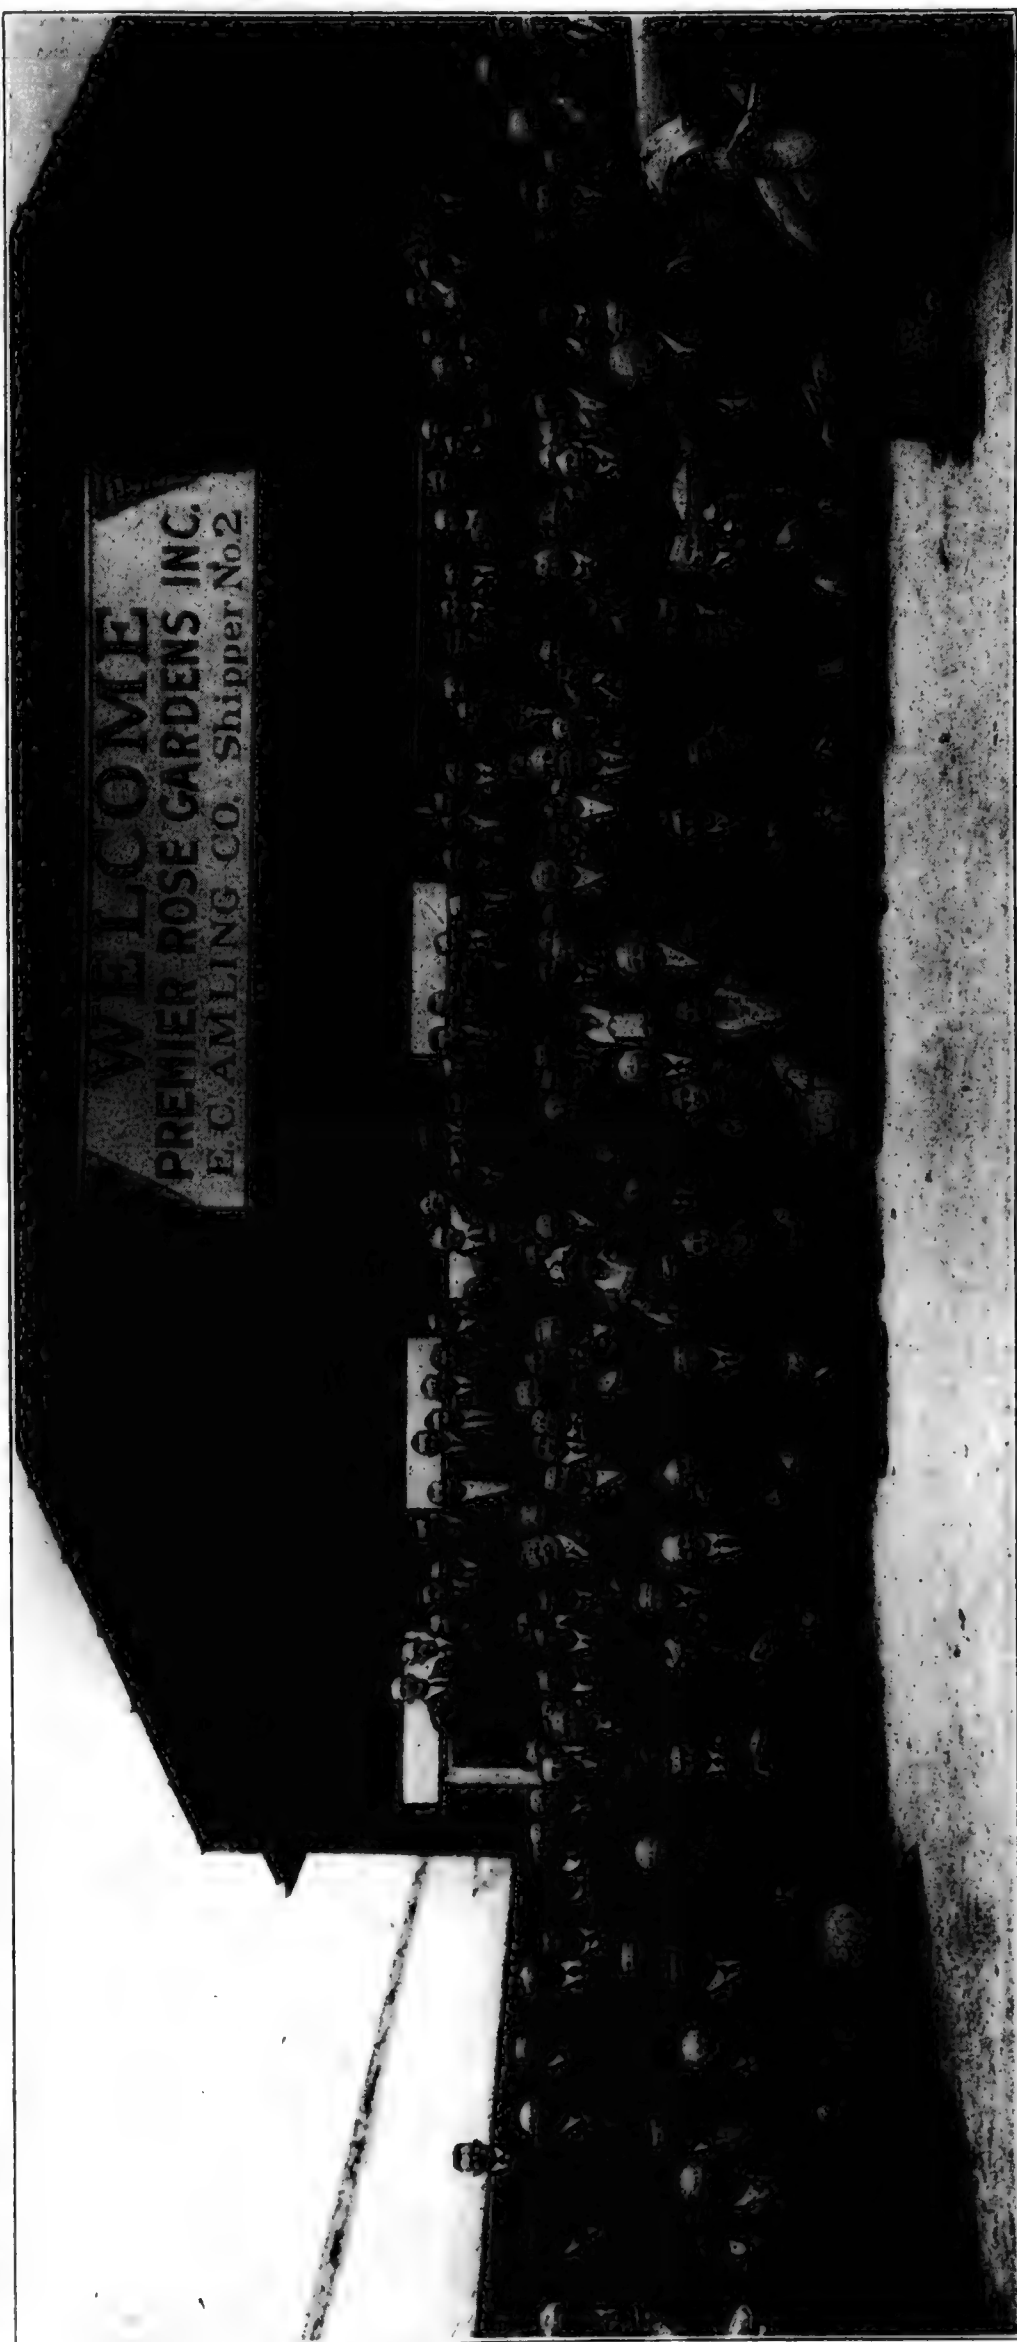

The Northwestern Pottery Co. had samples of red pots for inspection and cigars for distribution.

The Caliscope, manufactured by the American Teletherm Co., Toledo, O., was shown and explained by D. B. Noyes. This device enables a man in the boiler room to know the temperature recorded on a thermometer in any part of the greenhouses. Electrical connections are established and, by turning an indicator and pressing a button, one causes to appear on the boiler room scale the same reading as is registered by the desired thermometer even in a distant part of the range.

Meeting Called to Order.

After the exhibits of flowers had been inspected, the visitors gathered in the packing room of the A. F. Amling Co., where refreshments were served. When the appetites of the guests had been appeased, Hans Jepsen, as chairman of the Associated Maywood Growers, called the gathering to order. Then he turned the meeting over to Albert F. Amling as the patriarch of the colony. Mr. Amling conducted the proceedings with a flow of wit and humor that kept the gathering continually merry. Interspersed with selections by the capable local orchestra, short talks were made by members of the Maywood trade and some of the visitors, after Mr. Amling had given a most interesting account of the history of the Maywood colony.

In the absence of the mayor of Maywood, William G. Heidemann, president of the Maywood State bank, welcomed the visitors and related the experiences which had brought him closely in contact with florists and had raised his esteem regarding their financial ability. Another banker expressed himself similarly, W. T. Bruckner, vice-president of the Continental & Commercial National bank, Chicago.

History of Maywood Colony.

Mr. Amling related interestingly the history of the Maywood colony of florists. About thirty-five years ago, he said, the firm of Amling Bros. was established on the same spot that it occupies today. The members were the speaker, now president of the company, and Ernest C. Amling, president of the wholesale house in Chicago which bears his name and of a similar enterprise in Los Angeles, Cal., where he now resides. The beginning was made with three small houses, each 20x100 feet and four feet from the ground to the gutters, the regulation size of houses built in those days. The entire structure was home-made; that is, put up by the members of the firm from lumber bought in the local lumber yard. Only the ventilators and rafters were of cypress. The total capital of the firm was $2,500. The first crop planted consisted of roses of such varieties as Niphotos, Bon Silene and Perle, which were purchased from Mr. Stielow, of Niles Center.

The first commission man who handled the stock from the greenhouses, said Mr. Amling, was Mons Olsen. This arrangement lasted only until Thanksgiving, being ended by a difference over a shortage of 60 cents on the returns for that holiday. The firm's roses were then taken to Schiller & Mailander, on West Madison street, where August Poehlmann was then salesman.

The firm of Amling Bros. lasted about seven years, when the firm name was changed to Albert F. Amling and, after a few years more, to the Albert F. Amling Co.

Hugo Luedtke was the first florist employed by Amling Bros. Because of "a woman in the case," Mr. Amling related, Mr. Luedtke established a greenhouse of his own across the street, where he still grows novelties which relieve the monotony of roses in this district.

Henry Wehrman similarly established himself across the street, at the location he still occupies, where he grows over 100 varieties of pompons and has originated several varieties of asters and sweet peas.

The houses of William Wichtendahl, next established, are still operated by him. Formerly he grew nothing but carnations, but now, Mr. Amling lamented, he is "butting in" on roses.

Many Changes.

The establishment started by William Collatz has changed hands several times. Though Mr. Collatz grew carnations with much success in his own establishment, he went back to the Amling establishment to become superintendent of the big rose range. His houses were bought by William H. Amling, who embarked in the florists' business after having taught school in Milwaukee twenty-six years. His three sons, now in Pana, Ill., are all florists. Herbert Amling next became owner of the range. He sold it to the Proviso Floral Co.

The next place to be established was that of Carl Hausermann, Sr. This was later made a corporation, headed by Carl Hausermann, Jr., when the founder retired to live in California.

The greenhouses built by Ernst C. Amling were not long since sold to F. W. Kuhlmann, when the former moved to California, where he has again engaged in the greenhouse business.

The houses built by Walter Burhop passed into the hands of Hans Jepsen, and are now filled with his fine chrysanthemums.

The establishment built by Paul E. Weiss, where some of the best carnations in Maywood were once grown by him, has changed hands more often than any other in the colony. It was first purchased by William H. Amling, then by Walter A. Amling, then by Martin C. Amling and finally by the present owners, William Spandikow & Sons.

The establishment of the Weiss & Meyer Co. remains in the same hands that built it, Paul Weiss and Henry Meyer.

Carl Hausermann, Jr., at one time "sweet pea king" of the colony, was the next to embark in business for himself, selling out several years later to the Proviso Floral Co., when he returned to manage his father's establishment.

The next range built was that of the Weiss-Spandikow Co., now the Premier Rose Gardens. Since the erection of the four big Lord & Burnham houses, this is the second largest range in Maywood. These houses were the latest built in the colony.

Paul Heitmann put up the next range and still operates it.

Edwin Kuhlmann was the latest addition to the colony. Taking as partner Arnold Wieck, he formed the Kuhlmann & Wieck Co.

Others Who Spoke.

When Mr. Amling had completed his history of the colony and related some humorous remarks regarding the personal careers of the members, he introduced them one by one, in order that they might make a few remarks to the visitors.

Mr. Amling then called upon some of the visitors. E. G. Hill received great acclamation as the man who had originated the varieties now most largely grown in the rose ranges of Maywood. J. C. Vaughan proved he could go back farther than Mr. Amling in reminiscences, relating incidents of the Chicago fire. Others who spoke were John Michelsen, Walter A. Amling, August Poehlmann, Peter Bohlander, H. N. Bruns, Peter Pearson, Philip Foley and F. R. Kilner.

A telegram was read from Clifford Pruner and Dr. B. W. Murphy, from Oklahoma City, extending best wishes to the meeting and regretting their absence. Regrets were also received from John Young, Joseph Hill and J. F. Ammann. Wallace R. Pierson regretted that his campaign for senator necessitated his remaining at home, but sent an exhibit of Rose Commonwealth.

CHICAGO CLUB'S MEETING.

At Maywood.

After the festivities presided over by A. F. Amling had been concluded, the meeting in the packing shed of the A. F. Amling Co., Maywood, November 2, was turned over to President Joseph Kohout, who promptly called to order the regular monthly meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club.

After the minutes of the October meeting had been read and approved, the following applications for membership were accepted by unanimous vote:

Raymond E. Miller, 1225 North Ashland avenue, Chicago, representative of Florists' Credit Association.

L. C. Schwake, 609 Parson avenue, Des Plaines, florist.

Louis Finnerman, 166 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.

Martin Schoepfle, 933 Belmont avenue, Chicago, retail florist.

Gus Swenson, River Forest, Ill., grower.

Edward C. Blanko, 5220 Norwood Park avenue, Chicago, vice-president of the Northwestern Pottery Co.

F. R. Crane, Jr., 3211 South Wood street, Chicago, heating engineer.

Frank M. Styshal, 1202 Broadway, Melrose Park, grower.

Leonard C. Koehler, 160 North Wabash avenue, Chicago, of Joseph Foerster Co.

W. F. Schneider, Box 16, Elmhurst, grower.

Henry Voltmann, Elmhurst, grower.

Arthur Blome, 1361 North Clark street, Chicago, retail florist.

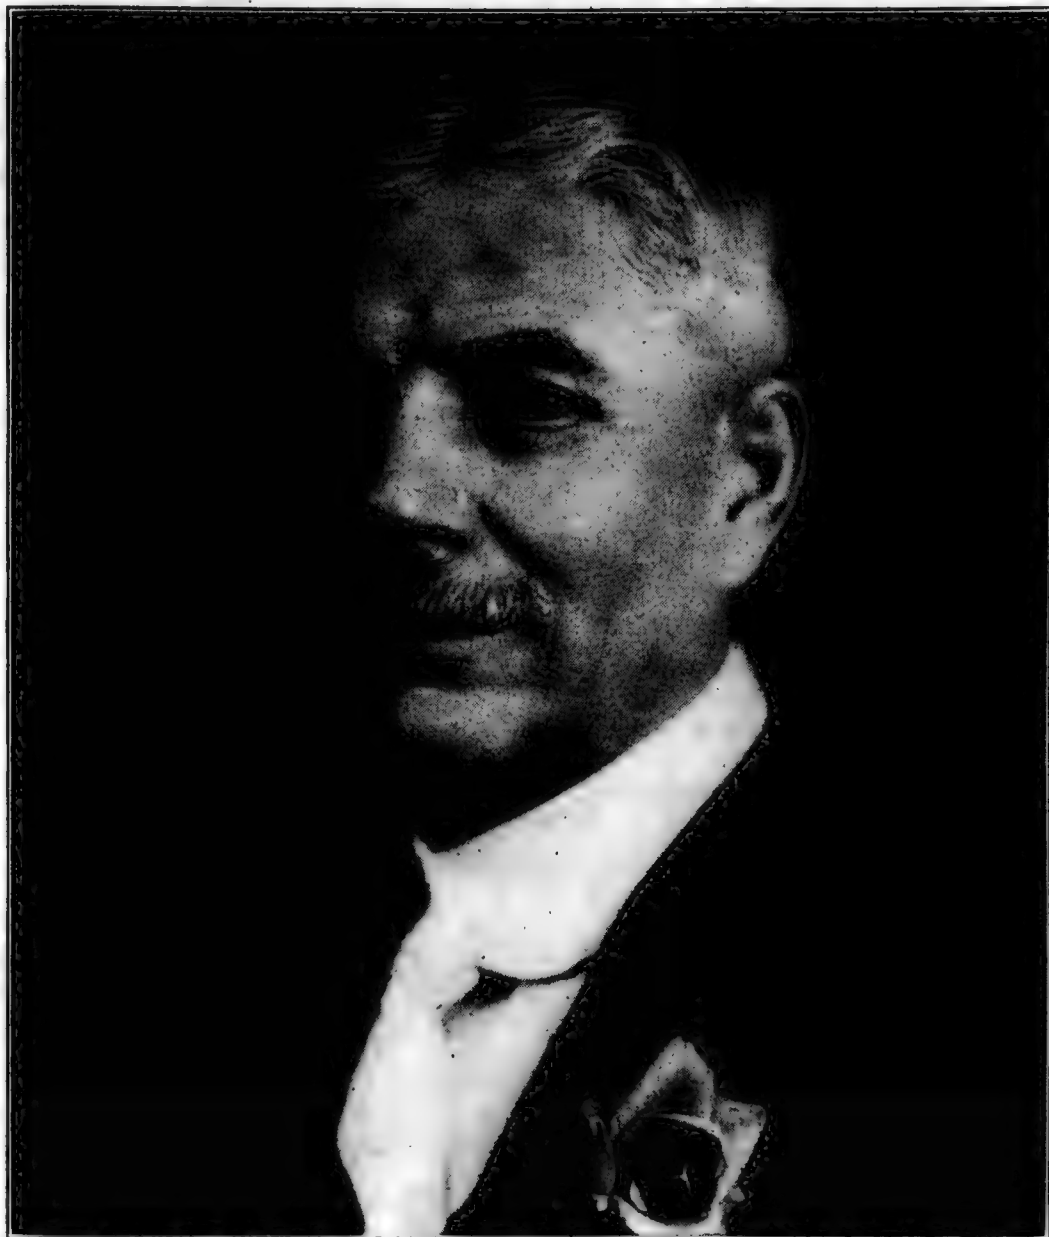

L. E. Hooper, 19 South La Salle street, Chicago.

The secretary made a special drive for life members and succeeded in obtaining twelve. These are Frank Schramm, Crystal Lake; Charles McCauley, Geneva; Fred Stielow, Niles Center; Peter Pearson, Chicago; John Michelson, Chicago; L. Hoechner, Chicago; Rudolph Ellsworth, Downers Grove; A. F. Amling, Maywood; Paul Weiss, Maywood; Geo. J. Ball, Glen Ellyn; William Collatz, Maywood; Hans Jepsen, Maywood.

Morton Grove Next Month.

August Poehlmann extended an invitation to the Chicago Florists' Club and to all other members of the trade to visit the greenhouses of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, December 9. This invitation was accepted with great pleasure by the club's officers on behalf of the trade.

Joseph Kohout called attention to the Chrysanthemum Society's meeting at Albert F. Amling.

St. Louis and the show in that city the following week. In behalf of the Uptown flower show committee, Robert Windler, chairman, reported the exhibit a good one, and the committee was discharged with special thanks.

President Kohout expressed his thanks to the members for the support given him during his administration, when he called for the nomination of officers for the ensuing year.

For president, F. Lautenschlager nominated J. C. Michelsen, and T. E. Waters nominated A. T. Pyfer.

For vice-president, T. E. Waters nominated August Lange.

For secretary, Walter A. Amling nominated F. Lautenschlager.

For treasurer, Walter A. Amling nominated A. H. Schneider, and Hans Jepsen nominated Rudolph Ellsworth.

For trustee for three years, Andrew Benson nominated William Collatz, and T. E. Waters nominated Joseph Kohout.

Treasurer Schneider submitted a report covering the finances of the organization.

E. G. Hill addressed the meeting and urged that every rose grower become a member of the American Rose Society.

Peter Pearson moved that the Chicago Florists' Club extend a rising vote of thanks to the Maywood florists for the reception tendered all visitors, and Hans Jepsen, chairman of the Maywood Associated Growers, immediately responded on behalf of the Maywood growers, expressing their appreciation at the gathering of the trade on this occasion.

Walter Amling, president of the St. Louis district organization of the National Flower Growers' Association, called attention to the mum show in St. Louis. Hans Jepsen spoke regarding the flower show in Minneapolis and urged growers to make exhibits.

Plan Flower Show.

President Kohout called particular attention to the club's activities in connection with flower shows and emphatically declared that the Chicago Florists' Club should promote a show in the near future. F. Lautenschlager mentioned that this is the time for Chicago florists to make preparations for a spring show. Peter Pearson, Hans Jepsen, Walter Amling and several others stated their belief that now is the right time to commence operations of this sort. Walter Amling made a motion that a committee be appointed immediately to investigate the feasibility of holding a show and report at the next meeting. President Kohout appointed the following on the committee: Herman Schiller, chairman; Peter Pearson, F. Lautenschlager.

Springfield, Mass.—Mark Aitken, of 372 Main street, furnished the decorations for the Bertrand-Stapleton wedding recently. The features of the decorations were mums and autumn foliage.

dent of the Continental & Commercial National bank, Chicago.

History of Maywood Colony.

Mr. Amling related interestingly the history of the Maywood colony of florists. About thirty-five years ago, he said, the firm of Amling Bros. was established on the same spot that it occupies today. The members were the speaker, now president of the company, and Ernest C. Amling, president of the wholesale house in Chicago which bears his name and of a similar enterprise in Los Angeles, Cal., where he now resides. The beginning was made with three small houses, each 20x100 feet and four feet from the ground to the gutters, the regulation size of houses built in those days. The entire structure was home-made; that is, put up by the members of the firm from lumber bought in the local lumber yard. Only the ventilators and rafters were of cypress. The total capital of the firm was $2,500. The first crop planted consisted of roses of such varieties as Niphotos, Bon Silene and Perle, which were purchased from Mr. Stielow, of Niles Center.

The first commission man who handled the stock from the greenhouses, said Mr. Amling, was Mons Olsen. This arrangement lasted only until Thanksgiving, being ended by a difference over a shortage of 60 cents on the returns for that holiday. The firm's roses were then taken to Schiller & Mailander, on West Madison street, where August Poehlmann was then salesman.

The firm of Amling Bros. lasted about seven years, when the firm name was changed to Albert F. Amling and, after a few years more, to the Albert F. Amling Co.

Hugo Luedtke was the first florist employed by Amling Bros. Because of "a woman in the case," Mr. Amling related, Mr. Luedtke established a greenhouse of his own across the street, where he still grows novelties which relieve the monotony of roses in this district.

Henry Wehrman similarly established himself across the street, at the location he still occupies, where he grows over 100 varieties of pompons and has originated several varieties of asters and sweet peas.

The houses of William Wichtendahl, next established, are still operated by him. Formerly he grew nothing but carnations, but now, Mr. Amling lamented, he is "butting in" on roses.

Many Changes.

The establishment started by William Collatz has changed hands several times. Though Mr. Collatz grew carnations with much success in his own establishment, he went back to the Amling establishment to become superintendent of the big rose range. His houses were bought by William H. Amling, who embarked in the florists' business after having taught school in Milwaukee twenty-six years. His three sons, now in Pana, Ill., are all florists. Herbert Amling next became owner of the range. He sold it to the Proviso Floral Co.

The next place to be established was that of Carl Hausermann, Sr. This was later made a corporation, headed by Carl Hausermann, Jr., when the founder retired to live in California.

The greenhouses built by Ernst C. Amling were not long since sold to F. W. Kuhlmann, when the former moved to California, where he has again engaged in the greenhouse business.

The houses built by Walter Burhop passed into the hands of Hans Jepsen, and are now filled with his fine chrysanthemums.

The establishment built by Paul E. Weiss, where some of the best carnations in Maywood were once grown by him, has changed hands more often than any other in the colony. It was first purchased by William H. Amling, then by Walter A. Amling, then by Martin C. Amling and finally by the present owners, William Spandikow & Sons.

The establishment of the Weiss & Meyer Co. remains in the same hands that built it, Paul Weiss and Henry Meyer.

Carl Hausermann, Jr., at one time "sweet pea king" of the colony, was the next to embark in business for himself, selling out several years later to the Proviso Floral Co., when he returned to manage his father's establishment.

The next range built was that of the Weiss-Spandikow Co., now the Premier Rose Gardens. Since the erection of the four big Lord & Burnham houses, this is the second largest range in Maywood. These houses were the latest built in the colony.

Paul Heitmann put up the next range and still operates it.

Edwin Kuhlmann was the latest addition to the colony. Taking as partner Arnold Wieck, he formed the Kuhlmann & Wieck Co.

Others Who Spoke.

When Mr. Amling had completed his history of the colony and related some humorous remarks regarding the personal careers of the members, he introduced them one by one, in order that they might make a few remarks to the visitors.

Mr. Amling then called upon some of the visitors. E. G. Hill received great acclamation as the man who had originated the varieties now most largely grown in the rose ranges of Maywood. J. C. Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

KEEP your right eye on Bright Eyes, a "different" pompon, coming out soon.

THE rate of output of soft coal is now about equal to that of 1918 and higher than in 1921, but lower than in 1919 and 1920.

THE real test is whether or not customers come back. If they do, the business will grow; if they don't, there's something wrong.

FOR the All Saints' day trade New Orleans retailers received three solid carloads of big chrysanthemums from San Francisco, approximately 45,000 blooms, practically all Turners.

JOHN COOK, Nestor of the Baltimoreans and famous rosarian, originator of Francis Scott Key and many other varieties, will celebrate his eighty-ninth birthday anniversary next Thursday, November 16.

THE banks have again run up the danger signal; they are cautioning borrowers against overextension. The bankers' view is that the business revival this autumn has been too rapid to be permanent.

THIS is not a "hick" trade. Yet what must some people think when they see in florists' advertising such errors in spelling as "ruskis" and "statica," to mention a couple in a circular recently received?

THE practice is not universal of making the customer pay the cost of the telegram when an order is sent by wire. You don't need to look up the cost to the penny. Ask him for even money, sufficient to pay the telegraph company's bill.

CARL CROPP calls attention to Gomphrena Haageana, the orange everlasting clover, as something which will make flower buyers step up and take notice. Though it is reputed difficult to grow, the difficulty is only in obtaining germination. Stratify it.

ONE of the mistakes we all are prone to make time after time is to fail to be explicit. We forget other people are not so well acquainted with our business as we are ourselves, and we do not tell them, in our letters and our advertising, as much as they need to know. Note the way the big mail-order houses do it—they tell all the little details of their proposition and they surely get results.

IN every line of business the story is the same: It is necessary to give more or better for the money or customers stay away.

E. G. HILL says that bookings on the new rose, America, now total 350,000 plants. His firm has 25,000 plants from which to propagate.

LOOK over the Classified section of The Review. Perhaps you have stock not offered there? Then you see your chance for quick cash sale.

THE coal industry overreached itself in the strike of 1922. Nothing else could have given such an impetus to trials of oil and gas as a substitute for coal.

UPON returning from a trip through the east, F. Lautenschlager comments on the strides made in heating plants built by growers there. Chimneys and equipment are as adequate and up-to-the-minute as in modern factories.

THOSE who use the S. A. F. membership list for mailing purposes overlook the fact that membership in that organization is individual. In many cases from two to a dozen partners or employees of the same concern are members and addressing them all involves a heavy waste of printed matter and postage.

WHEN trade visitors carry away copies of The Review from fellow florists' establishments, it is a hardship on the latter and no testimonial as to the integrity of the former. But it indicates how much some persons want this paper. To avoid missing an issue, many florists have it sent to their residences, to be read of an evening.

NOT enough effort is made to advertise florists' telegraph delivery service to the public. Few, even among the most intelligent class, know enough of it to call it to mind at the time an order might properly be placed. Perhaps the F. T. D. could prepare copy that might be used in their respective localities, in newspapers and folders, by members of the association.

EVERY now and then we hear of some florist who, having made money in the business directly under his eye, has sunk it through investment in some enterprise to which he could not give personal attention. Usually such men are retailers; growers are most likely to invest profits in additional glass. There is an old saying about the shoemaker sticking to his last, which would fit most other men. Because a man is successful as a florist is no sign he will be successful at some other line; if he goes as a partner in a business he cannot be active in, the chance of loss is still greater. More's the pity, because there are so many safe investments, like tax-free government bonds, that don't need watching.

ARMISTICE DAY.

President Harding announced November 7 that Saturday morning, November 11, accompanied by the Secretaries of War and Navy and a military and naval escort, he would go to Arlington cemetery and lay a wreath on the grave of America's unknown dead. This will probably serve as a precedent for the future observance of Armistice day. It is the desire of the administration that fitting notice be taken of this day each year, an observance florists will gladly aid.

GOING UP.

Glass went up in price last week, about ten per cent. This is the second increase in three months, at an unusual time of year for an advance in glass.

Steel manufacturers notified customers of a raise in prices November 1.

Express companies have asked the interstate commerce commission for higher rates.

Thank the stars, the coal market is soft!

CASH OR C. O. D.

When a shipper deals with a large number of widely scattered customers who quite possibly may order only once a year, or even less frequently, a carefully thought out system is necessary if one is to obtain the best results.

Let it be said at the beginning that no system invariably produces the desired result. If a shipper requires cash in advance on every order, the result will be that many orders will be lost. On the other hand, if credit is given to unknown buyers, the percentage of loss through inability to collect will unquestionably be large. Cash or C. O. D. from unknown correspondents is the safer rule, but some shippers apply it thoughtlessly. Unless an understanding is had before shipment, some buyers will refuse to accept the C. O. D., and the shipper will be left with plants on his hands at a distant point, which amounts practically to the loss of the shipment and the transportation charges on it.

Where a buyer expects immediate action on receipt of his order he should so state and send cash or references, or order shipment C. O. D. If he fails to do so, it is a sign for caution. Where an order contains neither cash, references nor instructions to ship C. O. D., the seller is presumed to take enough time to determine whether or not he cares to place the account on his books. Assuming that he does not wish to open an account, he will be wise to communicate with his customer before he ships C. O. D. A letter along the following lines is suggested:

Dear Sir: Thanks for your order of blank date, which has been duly entered.

Our records fail to disclose the conditions under which we may have filled previous orders from you. We therefore are under the necessity of requesting you to furnish us with trade references or such other information as will enable us to open an account.

If it was your intention that your order be shipped C. O. D., your reply to that effect will receive immediate attention. Your order will amount to blank dollars. An early response will enable us to make prompt shipment.

Shippers should beware of the man who doesn't want to send cash and who objects to C. O. D. He may be first-class, but take time to find out. While some perfectly responsible, square-dealing men object to cash or C. O. D., on the other hand there are several men in the trade who make it a practice to promise immediate payment to avoid C. O. D. and who seem never to have the slightest intention of making their word good. Watch out for them.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

A. F. H., Ia.—No.

W. A. B., Ill.—Begonia albo-picta.

O. F. S., Ia.—Send better specimens of smallest-leaved plant and of one with small terminal white flower. Other plant is Selaginella caesia.

S. G. & S., O.—Will do well in 4-inch; if they become potbound, shift to 6-inch.

BOSTON.The Market.

A big change has come over the market. It was not, of course, unexpected, but was unwelcome just the same. Prices began to recede November 1 and by November 4 had started on a real toboggan. Elections, now happily over, have been blamed for the decline, but these drops come each year at this season and are to be expected when the mum avalanche arrives. However, business so far has been far ahead of what we have had for some years.

Chrysanthemums are more abundant and lower in price, but they seem less plentiful than a year ago. Single-stemmed flowers of such varieties as Bonnaffon, Rager, Chieftain and other seasonable varieties vary in value from $1 to $4 per dozen. A few strictly fancy grades go a trifle higher. Pompons and singles are easier, the bulk cleaning up at 50 cents to 75 cents per bunch. The demand for these latter continues large.

Roses are in heavy oversupply and flowers which a couple of weeks ago sold readily at $8 to $10 per hundred go begging at $1 to $2. All varieties have joined in the decline, but Columbia and Butterfly seem somewhat more resistant than other sorts. Carnations have dropped in sympathy with other flowers and street fakers are for the first time in months handling large numbers of them. Violets and sweet peas are weaker.

Lilies are not much in evidence. There are small lots of calendulas and snapdragons, which sell well. Valley is more abundant and moderate in price. Some fine Bouvardia Humboldtii is coming in. Cattleyas continue in good supply and there are a fair number of cypripediums and other orchids. Some good nerines continue to come in. Demand for asparagus is less active; perhaps because so much autumn foliage is now being used.

Various Notes.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club will hold a field day with the Halifax Gardens Co., Halifax, Mass., Saturday, November 18. Members planning to go by train should take one leaving the South Station for Halifax at 12:39 p. m. The greenhouses are not over a minute's walk from the depot. Those going per automobile should go over the Plymouth route, via East Milton, Quincy, Weymouth, Hanover and Pembroke. A lunch will be served at 3:30 o'clock and Dr. Bernard A. Field, of Plymouth, will give a short talk on dextro-germs for stimulating plant life.

At the next club meeting, November 21, officers will be nominated. It will be orchid night and George W. Butterworth will talk on cymbidiums, George Lydiard on dendrobiums, George I'Anson on East Indian orchids other than phalaenopsis, and Donald McKenzie on odontoglossums and odontiodas. There will be some fine orchids on exhibition.

The committee in charge of the reconstruction of the Cyclorama building for the new wholesale flower market is steadily on the job and expects to have the market ready for occupancy before the lease expires on the old market. The result of the recent election of directors seems to have given general satisfaction.

Visitors last week included Charles

H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; Thomas Pegler, Lewiston, Me., and J. B. Morrison, representing Wilson's Plant Oil, Springfield, N. J.

The Budlong Rose Co., Auburn, R. I., is an extensive grower of high-grade roses and handles a considerable number of varieties. The company is growing these sorts this season: My Maryland, Ward, Double White Killarney, Milady, Premier, Columbia, Dunlop, Pilgrim, Ophelia, Golden Ophelia, Mme. Butterfly and Mlle. Cecile Brunner. The company also handles large shipments of fine chrysanthemums, now principally Bonnaffon, Rager and Chieftain.

Thomas Roland has decided to install oil heaters in his extensive ranges of greenhouses at Revere and Nahant, Mass. Quite a number of growers are now committing themselves to oil and suggestions were made to have the new flower market heated with this medium, but it would not be considered at present.

Robert Cameron, George F. Stewart and W. N. Craig are among those visiting New York this week to see the two chrysanthemum shows in progress at the American Institute and Museum of Natural History.

The annual election of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will occur November 18, when a president, vice-president and a part of the trustee board will be chosen.

The new wholesale store of Welch's, Inc., at 95 Summer street, is closed and advertised "To Let." It had only been occupied a few weeks. W. N. C.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.The Market.

The warm fall we have been experiencing has caused stock to accumulate rapidly on the market. Chrysanthemums of all seasonable varieties are on hand. Only extra select stock has been moving, and this at sacrifice prices. Big mums range from $1.50 to $3 per dozen; a few bring $4 to $5 per dozen. Pompons are bringing from 50 cents to $1 per bunch.

Roses in all popular varieties and in all lengths are available. The prices range from $2 to $15 per hundred and in large quantities they can be had at reduced prices.

The quality and quantity of carnations has greatly improved, but the demand has been poor, due to the excessive amount of other stock.

A few Easter lilies are in the market. Limited numbers of calla lilies are to be had, along with a few sweet peas.

Also to be seen are orchids and valley, along with some calendulas and mignonette.

Green goods are abundant. Potted plants that are offered include chrysanthemum plants, begonias, cherries and primroses.

Hoosiers Hold Meeting.

The November meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held November 1 at the establishment of Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis. It has been the custom for the last few years to hold the November meeting at this place, in order to see the wonderful display of standard and seedling chrysanthemums. They were especially fine this year and all colors and sizes were to be seen.

Seedling carnations attracted a great deal of attention also. These were in good condition.

A business meeting followed the trip through the range. President Hitz presided.

One of the main topics for discussion was the proposal of an invitation to the Chrysanthemum Society of America to hold its next meeting at Indianapolis. This was carried, and the invitation was taken by a group of the association meetings to the chrysanthemum society, at St. Louis.

It was decided to encourage the city greenhouses to grow some show chrysanthemum stock this coming year, and to cooperate with the state association in the event that the large show is held here next fall. In case the latter does not materialize, a show for the city will be encouraged.

An invitation from the Terre Haute members requesting the next meeting to be held in their city was read. This was accepted and the president urged a large attendance, because of the great opportunity for sight-seeing in the various establishments there.

The plans for the January meeting were discussed. Being so well pleased with the exhibit staged there last year, the Indianapolis public library extended an invitation to the association to hold its large annual meeting with them again this year. There will be another exhibit this year and, it is hoped, even much larger and better than last year's. The president appointed the following committee to take charge: E. E. Temperley, chairman; William Horn and E. C. Grande.

The purchasing of the moving picture film of the last national flower show was decided upon. A proof film was shown and proved to be attractive. This will be used for advertising by the association.

After adjournment a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served by the hosts.

Various Notes.

A. F. J. Baur and Edward Larsen have gone to St. Louis, taking an exhibit of mums, including some of their own seedlings.

H. W. Rieman and John Hartje have also gone to attend the chrysanthemum show. E. E. T.

CHICAGO.The Market.

About the close of last week the market hit a slump. It seemed that everybody had chrysanthemums of his own, or was using some nearby supply, and demand for all kinds of flowers fell off. Shipping trade was greatly curtailed. Up to that time conditions had been excellent for the time of year. Prices were not high, it is true, but growers were well satisfied because of the large volume of business. They were getting a better average than a year ago, because the demand was sufficient to keep stock moving without the sacrifice necessary when iceboxes overflow.

The chrysanthemum now occupies the center of the stage. There are some who think the production is not so great as last year, but it is equal to all present demands, to say the least. Bonnaffon is being cut locally and in a few days will constitute the bulk of the receipts, as it is the best seller in its season. The greater part of the demand is for medium-sized flowers, but the big, fancy blooms sell well. The slowest sale is for the lowest quality. The single-stem pompons and anemones meet with much favor. There are bunch mums in infinite variety and nearly all types are selling well at moderate prices. Pink, yellow and white, in the order mentioned, seem to have the call.

The rose growers have aimed to skip the chrysanthemum season and production, therefore, is light. Most of the growers have been aiming at a crop to start just before Thanksgiving, and recent weather conditions, bright and warm, have aroused the fear that they will be too early. The present supply of the longer grades is equal to the demand, while the call for shorter roses exceeds the supply, a condition which probably will continue for the rest of the season. The quality of most of the roses now coming to market is excellent. Premier predominates; there are probably as many of it as of all other varieties put together. The reduction in the planting of Columbia this year has resulted in an improvement in the returns to growers who retained it.

Until the pompons are gone, there will be enough carnations for all who want them. Calla lilies are selling well, because of the small supply of giganteums. Only a few growers are sending in giganteums. They complain that there is no chance to make a profit on them because the cold storage bulbs are throwing only one to two flowers.

A few excellent sweet peas are seen and sell well, but most of the stock is of low grade and has slow sale. Good violets also are in demand, while poor

There is nothing new in green goods. Boxwood, having just arrived, is selling well. The continued advance in the price of flat ferns has had the usual effect of checking the demand, retailers becoming more careful of them as they rise in price. The eastern shippers say the supply is the smallest in years. Boxwood is coming forward slowly.

Red berries have appeared in considerable quantity and word comes from the Michigan shippers that the crop is normal again this year. Last year there were not more than one-fifth of the usual quantity and the florist whose holly was sans berries had to use artificial ones. The red berries so far received have been of excellent quality.

markets and low prices may be found in the weather bureau's report on meteorological conditions in October. The mean temperature at Chicago was $2\frac{1}{2}$ degrees above normal, but the difference which most affected flower production was in sunshine. Of a possible 343 hours and six minutes of sun we had 244 hours and thirty minutes. This was seventy-one per cent of the possible duration. Usually November gives fifty-nine per cent.

Pushing Once More.

There was a time when Chicago retail florists were large users of space in the daily papers, but they rather got out of the habit during the war and its aftermath. Last season they left the publicity principally to the Allied Florists'

Association. Now they are at it again.

November 1 the Fleischman Floral Co. advertised a special sale of roses in the Tribune, using 400 lines, costing $200, to advertise a cash and carry sale of roses at $1.50 per dozen.

November 3 A. Lange had 200 lines, George Wienhoeber used 230 lines and Henry Wittbold & Son used 185 lines.

Not only does the space increase, but the quality of the advertising steadily improves.

Various Notes.

At the next meeting of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago, to be held at the Hotel Randolph November 16, exhibits of chrysanthemums and carnations will be staged by Baur & Steinkamp and Hartje & Elder, also of Indianapolis, will show their gold medal carnation, Winsome. A full report on the activity of the Allied Florists' Association will be given, says President Peter Pearson, and all growers should be present to learn just what is being done in the publicity campaign which they are supporting. Plans for a spring show will be discussed.

A. H. Budlong has his second Single Six. It is a coupe.

George Mohn was at New Orleans for All Saints' day.

After a leisurely drive H. B. Kennicott reached Clearwater, Fla., in good shape. He will be home again in a few days, leaving Mrs. Kennicott, the car and the Boston terriers in the south for the winter.

A select little party was made up at the last minute to attend the meeting of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association at Milwaukee, November 2. It consisted of George C. Weiland, A. Miller and Paul R. Klingsporn.

"It makes a lot of difference how a thing is said; well written ads get read; rightly worded, they inspire action; it's worth the effort," says B. F. Ellis.

M. C. Wright gives as an indication of the trade's current activity the fact that the Lord & Burnham Co. has done more business to date in 1922 than in the same period in any previous year in the company's seventy years of existence. He assists in the explanation of the fact by stating that the company last January made a drastic reduction in prices to induce such business. The officers' wisdom in preferring a large volume at rock-bottom prices, with small profits, to less business at a higher level was rewarded by heavy orders from the trade.

Schupp was able to spend a short time at the store of J. A. Budlong Co. November 7.

Members of the trade, candidates for public office, were successful in the election November 7. Henry Zender, president of Peter Reinberg, Inc., was elected clerk of the Probate court and Joseph A. Mendel, well known retailer on the southwest side, was elected to membership in the board of county commissioners, a position he held some years ago. This was on the early returns.

Driving 197 miles in five hours in a Buick roadster, Roland Poehlmann and his cousin were on time at Urbana for the Illinois-Northwestern game November 4. Their return to the city was more leisurely.

Marshall N. Tyler has been in the lycopodium district this week.

Peter Pearson spent a couple of days at Indianapolis and Richmond this week.

Max L. Cohen recently completed the extensive redecoration of his store, the Jackson Floral Shop, at 746 East Sixty-third street. A few months ago he went east and found many suggestions in the arrangement and decorations of the New York florists' shops. His new interior is in exceptionally good taste, with the woodwork and fixtures in ivory finish and an arrangement of paneled mirrors extending all around the store.

J. C. Nielsen has changed his business address to 1623 East Seventy-eighth street.

last week on one of his frequent buying trips. He says the Michigan automobile towns have completely recovered from their depression and that the flower business is sharing in the general prosperity.

A. H. Sweigart, of the Okmulgee Nursery & Landscape Co., Okmulgee, Okla., recently was a visitor and while here placed an order with the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co. for two greenhouses, each 43x200. These houses require sashbars twenty-four feet long, which are being furnished without splicing. This will be one of the first orders put through the new Forest Park factory of the Foley concern.

C. A. Briggs, of the Briggs Floral Co., Monterey, Cal., has been in town for several days on his way east to visit his old home in Massachusetts. After having spent many years in the newspaper business, Mr. Briggs now gives his attention to gladiolus growing, a business started by Mrs. Briggs and their son. Seven years ago they began with an investment of $8.50 in the purchase of 100 bulbs of Mrs. Frank Pendleton, originator's stock. They never have bought any Pendleton since the original purchase, but are this year marketing a million and a half bulbs of that variety. Mr. Briggs says the Monterey peninsula is especially adapted to gladiolus growing. Last year they had three acres in bulbs. This year so many

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Although last week included Halloween in one month and All Saints' day in another, it was "nothing wonderful." The volume of business was probably a little larger than for the corresponding week of 1921, but the market is depressed. That is perfectly natural. The chrysanthemum is nearly at its height and the chrysanthemum alone would suffice; add the other flowers, and the market is certain to be depressed, despite a healthy demand.

Chrysanthemums are the strength of the market. Some exhibition Turner, yellow and white, and some fancy pinks and bronzes brought $9 a dozen in a number of sales. Whittier is in and Rager, in addition to the varieties given last week. The general quality of the stock is good; prices range from $4 per dozen down to $1.50 and $1 per dozen. Pompons are getting more abundant.

The carnation market is not so strong as it was a week ago. The prices of violets are the same, but the average returns will be lower. Sweet peas are more abundant, and some fine stock is offered.

It is curious that roses are the weakest part of the market. Two weeks ago they were the strongest flowers on the list. This change is due to increased production and to the autumn queen. Some of the roses are bringing fair prices. The balance are sold cheaply to the buyer who will use a lot "as is."

Oncidiums and cypripediums, plain and fancy, have strengthened the rather poor supply of orchids.

There is an excellent assortment of foliage. Boxwood sprays have come.

The Rose Smash.

It will seem funny to the growers that their roses, which were so valuable in mid-October, were of no account last week. They will wonder why, when they had nothing, efforts were made to get what little they had, and, when they had something, it was just the other way around. Of course, we all know that the flower market changes more suddenly than the stock market, but why? Those who study the market closely admit that while certain causes produce certain effects, it is often extremely difficult to judge correctly in advance. This time it so chanced that frost killed the outdoor stock just as the indoor, the crops under glass, came into bloom. Perhaps the following incident may be of interest:

Frank M. Ross, who has four stores in the city, saw what was coming. He concluded that the market would take the chrysanthemums at good prices and that a good many carnations were poor, so he centered his attention on the rose. He let it be known that he could use a lot of roses, if the price was right. The offers of the wholesalers were at first declined; they were too high. Then the stock came in faster and faster; perishable stock must be sold. It accumulated; there were not enough orders. The wholesalers became frantic in their anxiety to sell. Then Mr. Ross let it be known that he would give $20 per thousand for all varieties,

Mums - Roses - Carnations of the Highest Grade

This week will bring out a larger supply of MUMS. The Best of the Mums are still to come. Our growers have planted heavily of the mid-season and late varieties. Our biggest supply of Mums we will have during November. All the best commercial varieties we can supply you.

In POMPONS we have now a larger supply of indoor grown varieties, in yellow, bronze, pink and white.

The supply of ROSES is increasing again. We now have more of the medium and long Roses, most of them showing exceptionally good quality.

CARNATIONS—We have several large Carnation growers who cut and ship every day in the week. Their flowers are never held on the plants, and they are not held in water. Carnations of that kind should give satisfaction.

Those are the Carnations that we select for our out-of-town orders. We give you the very best that our growers produce.

weakened. Mr. Ross instantly ran a spread in the daily papers, "Roses 75 cents a dozen." Immediately the whole market was in an uproar. The buyers forgot that production must be profitable or it will cease; they only saw that Ross was selling below the price they were paying and they hammered the price of roses unmercifully. The salesmen had a miserable time, and the market was demoralized throughout the entire week.

she was a girl, forty years ago, to come to America. When she returned to visit her native town of Neuenstein last summer she received a wonderful welcome. Mrs. Claus was seen in her attractive flower shop, at Germantown avenue and Tioga street, behind a windowful of pretty little baskets of chrysanthemums, and talked of her reception. Mrs. Claus said that when she reached the town of her birth, a great concourse of people met her.

They were headed by the mayor of the town and the priest. The school children sang "Home, Sweet Home" in German and she received great quantities of flowers. Mrs. Claus attributed this remarkable reception to the fact that she had remembered the poor of Neuenstein during the war and at Christmas. She was greatly affected by the warmth of the demonstration given in her honor. Mrs. Claus has a large oil painting of Neuenstein hanging over her door in her workshop.

Murray Hill.

C. U. Liggit returned to this city November 4 from a visit to the rose growers of Madison, N. J. He was especially interested in his call on L. B. Coddington, at Murray Hill. Mr. Coddington is now grading for a new range of glass, his second unit. Each unit is complete by itself in every respect.

The new range will consist of six greenhouses, each to be 61x500 feet. Just think of it, over 100,000 rose plants! Mr. Coddington now grows Columbia. He has 100,000 Premier, Ophelia, Butterfly, Francis Scott Key and single White Killarney.

Key is treated as Kaiserin has been treated—rested in winter—and handled in that way it has proved profitable. Mr. Coddington is not entirely satisfied with single White Killarney; he may grow Angelus.

Mr. Liggit was impressed by the magnitude of this operation. When visiting the New York market on his way home, he noted with satisfaction that at 10 a. m. the market was bare. There were no roses left; only a few chrysanthemums and pompons.

The Inauguration Dinner.

It was a happy thought that Edward Reid should be seated in the Florists' Club's presidential chair by a dinner at the Adelphia before the November meeting, November 7. Other guests of honor were Professor C. A. Weigel, of Washington, D. C.; Professor J. G. Sanders and W. A. McKubbin, of Harrisburg, Pa., and the ladies at the meeting afterwards.

Professor Weigel gave an address on greenhouse insects with illustrations and Professor J. G. Sanders and W. A. McKubbin told of their state experiment station at Willow Grove.

Exhibits of choice plants from the Robert Craig Co. and William K. Harris were shown, as well as American Legion roses from Edward Towill. More than fifty attended the dinner.

At the Academy.

The ninety-fourth annual exhibition of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was opened in the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, Tuesday morning, November 7. Promptly at 10 o'clock President James Boyd stepped upon a little cloth-covered stool in the center of the hall and introduced the mayor of Philadelphia, J. Hampton Moore. Mr. Moore made an excellent address on the value of flowers in our cities, that seemed especially appropriate. Mr. Moore stood in the midst of a magnificent exhibition; around him were many of the men and women who had helped to make it.

It is a wonderful show that marks a step forward in horticulture in the Quaker City. This is due to two things, the ladies and the return to pre-war conditions or something approaching them.

The active assistance of the ladies is a tremendous help. The Garden Club of America has offered prizes for artistic arrangements of chrysanthemums, for table decorations and for miniature gardens. They have thrown their influence into the scale. Their classes are well filled, and the interest in them is evident even at this early hour.

The return to pre-war conditions is evident in the general quality of fine stock. It has had care, and skilled care at that. Perhaps this is most clearly shown in the specimen chrysanthemums, which have received an amount of attention that is simply amazing.

Upon entering the academy one met a lady of alertness seated in the vestibule behind a table of programs, which sold for a quarter for the benefit of the welfare movement. On the first page

"Two Years' Operation Without a Single Repair!"

—writes the T. J. Noll Floral Co.,
Kansas City, Mo.

"The cost of operation is less than one-third the cost of ice, to say nothing about the saving in space taken up by an ice chamber. A 6-inch space is allowed for hanging the coils on the back of the ice box. The Lipman only covers the pipes with frost and does not form any ice, so that there is only a small amount of drip. Our box is 7x8x30 feet and our machine is operated by a 2-horsepower motor. This machine holds the box at 46 degrees in any kind of weather at a cost of from $15 to $25 per month. Being strictly automatic, the machine needs no attention except oiling occasionally."

How to make a bigger net profit on flowers—

Stop using ice—it's too expensive and unreliable. Change to the dependable, crisp cold of Lipman Automatic refrigeration—bathe your blossoms in a current of brisk air that keeps them perfectly fresh for months. No more big ice bills—no losses from wilted flowers—and the Lipman pays for itself and earns a 50% profit over the use of ice! A postcard request brings a Lipman Refrigerating Engineer to see how much your net profit can be increased.

of the program was found the name of Philadelphia's leading florist all alone in his glory.

The academy was most beautifully decorated with stately bays in tubs and evergreens, to mask the line dividing the floor from the seats. In the circle above were Japanese lanterns and gar-lands of wild smilax and oak leaves, all in Habermehl's best style.

The central group in the hall, under a flood of electric light, was a bower of lilies and ferns—Easter lilies and Lilium rubrum and valley, arranged with ferns with masterly skill. The crowning feature of the group, which added dignity, was a background of Areca lutescens, flanked on either side by groups of fine Cibotium Shiedeii, six specimens in each group. Near by was a choice collection of orchids, cut and plants. Both groups were grown and arranged by William Kleinheinz, of Lynwood Hall. Near by, John H. Dodds, gardener to John Wanamaker, had a group that included some of his rare Beaucarnea recurvata, that he has grown for fourteen years, and a highly colored Pandanus Veitchii of immense size.

The group of Henry A. Dreer, largely made up of highly colored crotons, with berried plants and ferns, was well grown and well arranged.

Philip Freud has evidently decided that a sunken garden is best for the Michell exhibit, for he has repeated and improved upon last year's display. The improvement consists in a central bed of chrysanthemums, in planting the sunk beds in solid colors of pompons, and in the use of evergreens. The grass is, of course, good. The railing and the Geisha girls add a realistic touch to the scene.

T. Newton Kulp has his much advertised 600-bloom specimen chrysanthemum plant on display. It is a marvel, even should the number of blooms have grown in the telling.

Chrysanthemums, one bloom to a pot, were well done in well known standard varieties. Standard plants of heliotrope covered with flowers were much admired. Their fragrance was, of course, their special attraction.

The cut chrysanthemums—Japanese, single, semi-double, cap and pompon—filled the lobby. All were well done.

The table decorations upstairs are being arranged. One has a center of Ophelia roses, with sweet peas, oncidiums and Bouvardia Humboldtii. The delicate tints harmonized with the dainty silverware. Near by is a richer combination, of Hadley, Pilgrim and Butterfly roses, while further on is an economy table decoration, with the cost of each article itemized, total $3.68.

The Meehan gardens are complete. Everything from cottage to croquet set is there, and all true to reality.

The exhibits of outdoor pompons and bittersweets are little less striking, but not less interesting.

Hosea Waterer put up some good bulbs, and the tree surgeon hung out his shingle.

It is time for the judging to begin and for The Review to go to press.

Richard Rothe will speak on "Several Essentials in Floriculture" before the Germantown Horticultural Society in the Vernon park library Monday evening, November 13, at 8 p. m. The chrysanthemum show will open at 4 p. m.

The Leo Niessen Co. announced the arrival of fancy and insigne cypripediums and oncidiums.

Charles H. Grakelow will be the guest of honor at the dinner dance to be given by H. Bayersdorfer & Co. to their employees, at the Mercantile Club Saturday evening, November 11. The Campbell cup will be presented to the champion Bayersdorfer team on this festive occasion.

Joseph M. Kennedy notes the arrival of choice sweet peas at the Philadelphia Growers' Cut Flower Market.

The sudden death of Thomas DeWitt Cuyler, financier and railroad chief, caused the cancellation of a notable dinner decoration by Edward T. Stokesbury for the Farmers' Club, at the White Marsh hall.

CULTURE OF SOLANUMS.

About last March we planted Jerusalem cherry seed in flat boxes, and about a month ago we lifted the plants and placed them in individual pots. We have about 150 of these, each about four to six inches in height. None of them has had blooms, and we are wondering what is wrong, since we expected we should have cherries on them for the holidays. Of course, we realize that if we had grown them in the field we should have attained better results; still, the plants look healthy. Did we plant them too late? Do they require a great deal of moisture? Should the soil be rich?

F. B.—Mich.

March was a suitable time to sow the solanum seed. You made a great mistake in retaining the plants in flats through the summer; the plants would be starved under such conditions. The proper treatment would be to plant the seedlings outdoors about the middle of May in soil which is not too rich. If it is too rich, the plants make a too luxuriant growth and do not fruit so heavily as when they are in poorer soil. Lift and pot the solanums early in September, endeavoring to secure some ball on each, and pot them firmly in good soil. Spray them freely until the wilting ceases.

The plants may be kept in a coldframe until the end of October; after this give them a cool, sunny house and they should be well ripened for Thanksgiving and Christmas trade. The plants should go in 5-inch and 6-inch pots, and they will fruit abundantly.

It will not pay you to retain the plants you have. They are only occupying space which can be more profitably utilized. Some growers advocate pot culture through the summer for berried solanums, but field culture has always given us far better results and nearly all successful growers adopt this method of culture. C. W.

TO GROW AFRICAN VIOLETS.

Will you advise us as to how we can best handle African violets? How much light should they have? How should they be watered? What temperature do they require? R. G. C.—Kan.

Saintpaulia ionantha, the African violet, is a native of tropical Africa. Its cultural requirements are similar to those of gloxinia. It is a member of the natural order gesneriaceae and succeeds well in a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees in winter.

Some growers partially rest Saintpaulia ionantha in summer, but, if it is kept watered, it will flower the whole year round. It needs a moderate shade and a light soil containing some leaf-mold and sand. It succeeds best in small pots three to five inches in diameter, and it must have ample drainage. It proves specially useful with us in October, November and December.

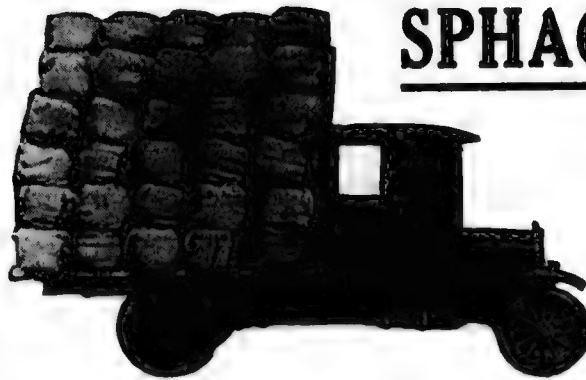

Its propagation is simple. Cut off one inch of stalk with the leaves and insert this in a good bottom heat. Every leaf will root, with careful treatment. Leaf cuttings are preferable to seedlings; the latter are much more variable in type. Avoid dampening the leaves when watering. C. W.

EARLY-FLOWERING SWEET PEAS.

What sweet peas should be planted in the fall to have them for early cut flowers in the spring? C. F. L.—Mo.

If you refer to an early outdoor crop, what are known as the late or summer-flowering Spencers should be used. The most valuable standard varieties for cut flower purposes in this class are as follows: Pink, Hercules, Hawlmark Pink, Elfrida Pearson, Margaret Atlee, Elegance and Sparkler; lavender, Orchid, Florence Nightingale and Hawlmark Lavender; white, Constance Hinton; blue, Mrs. Tom Jones and Blue Monarch; maroon, Warrior; orange, Robert Sydenham and Helen Lewis; scarlet, Vermilion Brilliant; crimson, King Edward.

If the plants are to be grown in the greenhouse, sown now they will be in

BERRY-PRODUCING PLANTS.

Do you know of a climber or other outside plant that produces berries at this time of the year or until Christmas and which is suitable for wreaths? Are there any plants of which the foliage or flowers are suitable for wreaths?

F. K.—O.

Celastrus scandens, the bittersweet, is a most attractive and useful climber, the fruits of which are excellent for wreaths and other decorative work, from October on. Severe cold does not harm the fruits. The following deciduous shrubs produce fruits which would be useful for your purpose, many of them holding their fruits until the holidays: Berberis Thunbergii and B. vulgaris; Symphoricarpos racemosus and S. vulgaris; Ligustrum vulgare, Viburnum Opulus, V. dentatum and D. Lentago, and a number of the cotoneasters. Some of the latter are almost evergreen, and horizontalis you will find especially good. A number of roses produce brilliant fruits which are most useful. R. setigera and R. rugosa are of special value late in the season. The crataegus fruit heavily, and at the present time their bright fruits are effective.

Of course, there are some evergreens of great value in design work, particularly at the holiday season. The various retinisporas, thujas, junipers, Kalmia latifolia, boxwood, leucothoe, catesbaea and Mahonia aquifolia are among the best. Where the two last-named will winter, they are especially valuable. The large, bright spring leaves of the mahonia are much like those of the English holly, turning brown in the fall. Flowering plants at this late season are nil, but in August and September you will find Buddleia magnifica of great value, while in early summer lilacs, philadelphus, deutzias, azaleas, rhododendrons and prunus are good. Later in the season the hydrangeas and Clematis paniculata are serviceable.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

A shortage in good field carnations always materializes when business begins to pick up in the fall. Just why some enterprising occidental does not go into this end of the business has not yet been explained. Beginning with Halloween and the southern demand for All Saints' day, stock shortened up with a suddenness that is surprising to everyone who has not seen the same thing happening every year since the oriental invasion of California in the carnation line.

Business has picked up materially the last few days and, notwithstanding the fact that the weather has been all that could be desired, good stock is undoubtedly scarce. There has been no "unusual" weather this season, so far. The cool nights are hardening the rose stock, and everything points to a good supply of this popular flower after the rush of mums and dahlias, which has kept the retailers well supplied with showy and salable stock at a reasonable price. First-quality stock in orchids, valley, sweet peas, gardenias and other similar flowers is always scarce at this time, the orchid men, in particular, looking for a good cattleya to come in between C. labiata and C. Trianae. Berried stock has been on the market extraordinarily early this year, the yellow-berried Crataegus Lelandii being in particularly good demand; C. pruinosa is also good, being easy to handle on account of its thornless wood; it is most attractive, with its grey-green foliage and bright red berries. A little heather is in the market already, but the color and quality will improve later.

Among the greens, good plumosus is still bringing satisfactory prices to the grower, and the "green men" who handle huckleberry, Oregon grape and similar stock have no complaint. Good adiantum is on the short side.

Various Notes.

Realizing that "unusual weather" comes a little too often in California for the comfort of growers of tender stock, Roy F. Wilcox & Co. have stocked up with a carload, about 500, of oil-burning smudge pots of an improved design, from Ohio.

The Broadway Florist opened a branch store at San Pedro, October 28. Jack d'Ortignac was in charge for Mr. Stathatos and reported that the business on the first day was well above the expectations of everyone.

V. Swenson has leased the Eagle Rock Gardens from Mrs. Garrett and is bringing in fine pompon mums to help out with his dahlia display at the Florists' Exchange. He has also a large amount of high-class bulbous stock on the place.

Miss Vettie, of Hermosa Beach, is out with a fine new delivery car.

Everyone in the trade was shocked to hear of the death of Philip L. Hestie, late of the staff of the Redondo Floral Co. He was accidentally shot while hunting ducks in San Diego county. Accompanied by his wife and brother, Philip, the deceased went to the Santa Margarita river, and while he was leaning on his own gun, the trigger was released in some unaccountable way. He was rushed to a San Diego hospital, but never regained consciousness and died shortly.

At Wright's Flower Shop business keeps up well. Mr. Wright is so much engaged outside that he is seldom seen in the store, but Harry Friend and N. Benaphyl are running the business to the "king's taste." Mr. Wright has just returned from a trip to Seattle.

H. Morgan has not been a year in business at Western avenue and Washington street, but in that time he has become one of the largest buyers of high-class stock on the market. He is always on the job from early morning at the market till late at night at the store, and such persistence, coupled with a thorough knowledge of his business, can have no other result than success.

Fred Gerkin is a busy man these days between improvements at the Rosedale Florist, on West Washington street, and his nursery at Lomita.

H. E. Graves, manager of the nursery department of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., has joined C. F. Gutting, of the Superior Dahlia Gardens, on Figueroa street, as a partner. Mr. Gutting is well known here as proprietor of the Superior Nursery Co., while Mr. Graves has been associated with the above company, Howard & Smith and other well known firms since coming to Los Angeles from Pittsburgh, Pa., where he was associated with the Zeiger Co. The new firm proposes to carry an attractive line of nursery stock in connection with the business there, and as the location is one of the best in the city and both partners experienced workers, the outlook certainly looks good.

The Art Floral Co., run by Louis Hody, late of Lorain, O., opened its doors at 248 South Broadway, October 29, with a nice line of stock. Mr. Hody came out here principally with a view to his wife's health, but evidently could not keep out of business.

The Priscilla Florist, 130 West Fifth street, is another new bidder for public favor.

F. B. Hills has been made grandfather again, his daughter, Mrs. Walter Olson, having given birth to a fine boy. Both mother and child are doing well.

Are My Plants in That Lot?

That is the question frequently asked at this time of the year by our visitors when they see a stack of crates ready for shipment. Many of our customers who had placed orders with us earlier in the season for fall delivery, were at the Nursery when their plants went out.

We have been receiving many compliments on our packing. You know we have our own mill, and make up all of our own crates. The material that is used now has been in our racks since last spring, consequently it is perfectly dry. Our crates are light, yet sturdy enough to carry through. Every pot is cleated in. If the express man turns them up-side-down, they never know the difference. Our packing gives such universal satisfaction that we sometimes think that our customers have forgotten how to kick.

By the way, have you ordered your Christmas supply of Cyclamens and Heather? At the rate orders are coming in, we will soon be sold out on 4-inch Cyclamens. Better make sure of your own supply.

Don't overlook the 4 and 5-inch Heather for Thanksgiving, at from 75c to $1.25 each. The boys are sending out some Asparagus Sprengeri plants which are of exceptional value. 3-inch, $6.00 per 100; 4-inch, $12.00 per 100.

the demand for good mums, shipped to arrive in good shape at middle-west points, seems to be unlimited. They are also making heavy shipments of violets, both from here and San Francisco.

The Dostal-Wolters Flower Shop is a busy place and one of the most attractive stores in town. Fred Dostal has a new Cadillac.

K. Kamada, of the Sun Nursery, San Pedro and Jefferson streets, recently bought the stock of a large nursery at Owensmouth, consisting principally of conifers. These are nice stock in salable sizes and are being sold rapidly.

A new delivery car has been added to the Armacost fleet of cars and trucks; it is attractive. Mr. Royston has come out with a new Cadillac since his return from the east. H. R. R.

The Market.

Light frosts last week did scarcely any damage to the outdoor stock, and the crispness in the air aided in putting violets in prime condition. Over one-half of the chrysanthemum crop has been cut, and shipping has decreased. In spite of the light rain Monday, October 30, chrysanthemums were in prime shipping condition Wednesday, November 1. Mums were plentiful. Roses became scarce, as the growers began to pinch back their stock for the holidays. The roses in the market were of good quality and brought excellent prices. There were a good many green strawflowers in the market, but scarcely enough for the heavy demand. Cut cyclamens, gillyflowers and marigolds were plentiful. Zinnias, dahlias and gladioli were gone. Lilies of the valley had become plentiful again and there were enough gardenias for all the demands, but orchids were scarce. There

Various Notes.

H. Plath has returned from a trip to the east and Europe. He was accompanied by Mrs. Plath. He is now busy preparing for the fall business.

Announcement has been made by J. Walter Schmitz, for the Schmitz Estate Co. and the Fancher Creek Nursery Co., that development of 320 acres of the Schmitz lands has been agreed upon. The work of leveling, boring wells, erecting buildings, etc., has already started. The estate is situated in Madera county.

party. N. Rossi, of G. Rossi & Co., Geary street, was also present at the reunion, which was a cordial one. Dinucci Bros. are among the strongest advocates in this city of a retail florists' association, in order to prevent sudden changes in the cost of flowers. They contend that it is bad for the trade if on the eve of a holiday, for instance, the prices of the flowers most in demand go up to double their former level. "We retail florists are the ones who have to do the explaining to the public," said Mr. Dinucci, "and it is greatly to our interest to make growers see the need for preserving more price uniformity."

J. Proietti has just built two new greenhouses at San Leandro, and is planting them to daffodils, narcissi and tulips.

J. A. Axell is taking all the Princess violets produced by one grower, who is cutting them especially for Mr. Axell. These are strongly scented violets. The Petersen Nurseries are supplying Mr. Axell with Laddie, Ward, Maine Sunshine and Benora carnations, all of which are especially fine.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is handling a great many violets, and is still doing much work in shipping chrysanthemums, both the large varieties and the smaller kinds.

R. Coombs, successor to the C. Kooyman Co., reports that the firm is unable to obtain sufficient strawflowers to fill all orders, so great is the demand. Among recent orders for fresh flowers were fifty-three wreaths for children in a religious parade.

F. C. Jaeger & Son are busy in the retail department, where they have had many calls for baskets and cut flowers.

Enomoto & Co. have just received a shipment of colored mats from Japan for the holiday trade.

Darbee's are shipping violets heavily, and General Gooch reports that the vio-

The firm expects to have chrysanthemums until Thanksgiving day.

Shellgrain & Ritter have had a good deal of funeral work recently. E. P. Ritter celebrated his fifth wedding anniversary last week, and said it with a party and flowers, at which some well known florists were guests.

L. Picetti, of the Charles C. Navlet Co., said: "The rain has been working for the bulb trade during the last week or two. The rain makes the commuters and amateur gardeners think of bulbs, and the sunshine gives them the desire to get out and garden. As a result, we have had a rush in the sale of bulbs. When they are gone, we shall have a chance to sell our berry bushes and roses."

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. have been busy with funeral work, especially one big funeral. Frank D. Pelicano has returned from Byron Hot Springs, and Frank Thatcher is visiting the valley territory. The California industries exposition, of which Angelo J. Rossi was president, closed in a blaze of success, with a record attendance. It is now proposed to build an even larger auditorium, as the Civic auditorium was barely large enough to house all the exhibits.

Joseph's is being kept busy by social affairs. The American beauty roses grown for Joseph's are increasing in size and deepening in color as the season goes on.

Manuel Russell, of Podesta & Baldocchi, with his Hawaiian dancers, won the first prize at the Halloween "kos-tume karnival," given at the Civic auditorium. During the performance thieves broke into the dressing room and stole Mr. Russell's outer garments, leaving only a short coat. His friends with cars had left, and the dancer was forced to ride home in a street car, shivering in the coat, the remainder of his attire consisting of trunks and a Hawaiian arrangement of rushes.

Brown & Kennedy have been busy with funerals. M. M.

ply of roses has been more than sufficient, although, no doubt, the production will tighten up from now on. Most of the roses received are of the mid-season quality and are of the following varieties: Premier, Columbia, Butterfly, Priscilla, Ophelia, Richmond, White Killarney and White Ophelia. American Beauty roses are being received in the market daily and are moving out fairly well. Chrysanthemums and pompons now dominate the market and are in heavy supply. From all indications, these flowers will remain this way until Thanksgiving day. Pompons, however, are just beginning to arrive in all shades. More lilies could be handled at the present time, as the stock is hardly ample to take care of the demand. Lily of the valley has also been good. Orchids have been in the market and are moving out fairly well. All outdoor stock, including dahlias, with the exception of a few hardy chrysanthemums, are now a thing of the past, as the heavy frosts which occurred several weeks ago put them all out of the market. surrounded by the great iron mills of Pittsburgh.

Among the novelty introductions of 1921 the finest blooms produced are Miss Ruth Twombly, bronze Yellow Pockett, Mrs. David Lloyd George, Philip Ricci, Vermont, William Rigby, Mrs. Gilbert Drabble, Mrs. J. Leslie Davis, Nerissa, Nagirroc, William Turner and Yellow William Turner. Among the pompon novelties was Red Doty, a wine red, with others of the Doty family in large numbers. Another striking effect was produced with a golden bank of Cosmos Klondike. Hundreds of show specimen plants, grown in 7-inch pots, with stems towering nine feet in the air, with perfect foliage and wonderful large heads, were seen. Such varieties as Vermont, Yellow Louise Pockett, White Louise Pockett, Gilbert the boys of Sewickley Heights brought their best mums to compete with other growers for the prizes of the season.

Another special event of the evening was the most interesting talk by E. J. McCallum, of the McCallum Co., who has just returned from a three months' business trip abroad, and who was requested to talk before the club on his trip.

Mum Shows.

The annual chrysanthemum shows at the Schenley park and north side conservatories opened Sunday, October 29. From the thousands of visitors one can judge the public is just as much interested as it was in former years, and well it should be, for nowhere in any city can one find better kept conservatories than those at Schenley and the north side. The superintendent, George W. Burk, and his assistants, John Jones and James Moore, deserve much credit in producing such wonderful chrysanthemums, under the most trying circumstances, for one must consider that both of these city parks and conservatories are in the center of the city, Drabble and William Rigby, all stately and aristocratically standing in their places, were on display.

Various Notes.

The A. W. Smith Co. has sent out its monthly landscape letter, subject: "Put Your House in Order," as well as a circular on bulbs for fall planting. Both of these circulars are attractive. While they say November is the eleventh hour, as well as the eleventh month, there is often much good plant-

Zvolanek's Special Surplus Sale of Early Orchid-Flowering SWEET PEA SEED

We have again harvested a record breaking crop of some of the best market varieties, which we are offering to the commercial grower and market gardener only, at far below the regular prices, as we do not want to carry them over or sell them in bulk, giving our patrons a real bargain. We want every cut flower grower to take advantage of this sale, as many varieties are only in limited quantities and will be sold only as long as they last.

All these varieties are the Winter-Flowering Spencer types and can be grown indoors or outdoors the year around. They will produce more and better flowers outdoors than the old late Spencers, because they bloom 3 to 4 weeks earlier, before the hot weather sets in. Plant after the Chrysanthemum and get a full crop for Easter. Plant in cool frames or outdoors just before the freezing begins and get a full crop in May for Decoration Day. Plant out of doors in the spring and they will bloom early in June.

ing weather during November. The old maxim, "Better late than never," is one that has been brought out prominently.

With the chrysanthemum season at its height, the windows of Mrs. E. A. Williams, Inc., and the McClements Co. are worthy of mention. Both of these florists are displaying their product in an attractive manner. H. J. H.

A new wholesale house, to be operated under the name of the Duquesne Cut Flower Exchange, at 626 Penn avenue, is to be opened by Bennie Fineberg. The new store will handle wholesale cut flowers and florists' supplies.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Towards the end of last week the cut flower market had reacted considerably, and prices went down all along the line, until Monday, November 6, when the appeared to have reached bottom. Mums came to a point where a congestion had to be lifted, to let in the flow of arrivals. In former years early varieties have been victims of congestions, but this year all the wise growers seem to have banked on the midseason and late varieties. While there is a notable absence of the big fellows, arrivals are generally of fine quality. The call mainly is for flowers of medium size, such as Bonaffon and the lesser varieties. One of the finest mums in the market is Brutus, a rich crimson with old gold center petals, but it is not particularly attractive to buyers, although, if available six weeks from now, it would be the rage. Principal among the varieties now available are Elberon, Charles Rager, William Turner, Marigold, Glenview, Brutus, Chieftain, Bonaffon and October Frost.

The demand for singles and pompons is good, and among the singles the variety Mrs. Buckingham seems to be the prime favorite.

Roses are handicapped by the movement of the mums; while the supply is not particularly heavy, the demand has fallen considerably. American Beauty has fallen off a little. Hybrid teas have gone off many points.

The supply of carnations is increasing and the quality is improving. Some really fine blooms are now to be seen, but little in the way of novelty.

Cattleyas are in good supply, but are meeting a demand which pretty well absorbs it.

The supply of white lilies is unchanged, but prices have gone back a little. Lily of the valley shows some improvement in quality, but is a little in excess of demand, and last week's prices are shaded to move arrivals. Gardenias are in small supply.

Herbaceous stock is now confined to the indoor cut, although a few pompons are coming from outdoors. The list of offerings includes pansies, delphiniums, calendulas, sweet peas, candytuft, alyssum, blue lace flowers, strawflowers and antirrhinum.

Various Notes.

John Condon, veteran florist of Brooklyn, died at his home in that borough on Saturday last. The obituary appears elsewhere in this issue.

Monday evening, November 13, the New York Florists' Club will meet in its new quarters at the Hotel Pennsylvania. At this meeting the names of those selected as candidates for office for the ensuing year will be announced by the nominating committee. There is a movement on foot to have a club dinner every meeting night, not an official affair, but a "get-together," as a large number of members come into the city for the meeting, and, necessarily, must take care of the inner man; so, why not make it a party?

Carl Engelmann, the English carnationist, who has been visiting in the United States for a few weeks, sailed for home on the Olympic, Saturday, November 4. On the same ship went John Evans, of Richmond, Ind., who intends to visit his boyhood haunts in Wales.

The Eighteenth Street Wholesale Flower Market is losing its queen this week, in the person of Grace Durkin, for many years bookkeeper for Joseph S. Fenrich. The estimable little lady was married Wednesday, November 8, and is to spend her honeymoon in Bermuda, in the atmosphere of flowers a-growing. She will be greatly missed by the marketers, and they all hope that in the joyousness of her new existence she will still give a thought to them.

Roman J. Irwin is back at his desk after his trip into the wilds of New Brunswick after moose and other big game. He reports the sport pretty good. Every member of his party, which included Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn.; E. A. Gude, of Washington, and Charles W. Scott, of New York, bagged big stuff.

C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., attended the St. Louis flower show, going to St. Louis direct from Boston, where he lectured last week.

Plantmen report business good, and Christmas stock coming along in good shape. None seems anxious to book Christmas orders, as all assert that retailers place orders early only for such items as are likely to be in short supply, and these are the kind that growers can usually move well in advance, so why carry them along for the retailers' convenience?

ORGANIZATION plans have been made for a Bluegrass Seed Cooperative Marketing Association, modeled after the plan of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Marketing Association, at Louisville, Ky. FORD, of the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, has bought the residence at the southeast corner of Green Bay road and Laurel avenue, in Lake Forest, the most fashionable of Chicago suburbs, with a frontage of 405 feet on Laurel and 483 on Green Bay, with a view of the Skokie, for a reported $50,000.

LOOK OUT FOR THIS MAN!

Last week the following letter was received by the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, from the Central State bank, of Minneapolis, Minn.:

We have been informed that you have employed as a salesman a certain Thomas Armstrong, of Willmar, Minn. Mr. Armstrong, through pretense of friendship with one of our employees, cashed a check of $50 at this bank, which was returned to us, protested account garnisheed, and we have been unable to locate Mr. Armstrong since. We wondered if you would be in a position to assist us in collecting this amount.

R. B. Howe, president of the W. W. Barnard Co., says that Thomas Armstrong, of Willmar, Minn., is entirely unknown to the firm and has not applied to the company for a position. In view of these facts, it would be advisable for any of the trade who encounter Thomas Armstrong to be on their guard.

IMPLIED WARRANTY EXISTS?

Regarding Seed's Germinating Power.

Apparently the latest decision of a court of last resort on the subject of seedsmen's liability concerning the kind and quality of seed sold to a complaining customer is that handed down by the Nebraska Supreme court in the case of Seefus vs. DeVaughn, 188 Northwestern Reporter, 235.

The plaintiff sued to recover the purchase price of corn bought by the defendant. The principal defense presented was that the corn was defective in germinating quality. On this question, the court said:

"The sample seed corn furnished by the plaintiff to the defendant was, when tested, found by the defendant to test from fifty-six to sixty per cent good germinating quality. There is testimony to show that, in order to be merchantable as seed corn, the germination must be above fifty per cent, and that the seed corn furnished under the contract, and later delivered to the McCullough Seed Co., tested below fifty per cent, and in a test of 2,200 seeds averaged only eighteen per cent.

As Viewed by Court.

"On this phase of the case, the court instructed the jury as follows:

"It is conceded or established that the corn seed in question was sold by sample, and, therefore, the defendant had the right to demand that the corn should substantially compare with the sample in quality.

"You are instructed that, in considering the question as to whether or not the corn was up to sample, the plaintiff claims that he did not guarantee of the germinating qualities of the corn, still he did not expressly refuse to make such a guaranty. The plaintiff's testimony was that nothing was said between the parties upon the subject of guaranty, in which event the law would have raised an implied warranty that the corn was in substantial accord, in all essential qualities, with the sample furnished. Where goods are sold by sample, there is an implied warranty that the bulk of the goods will be equal in kind and quality, in all material respects, to the sample. * * * And where corn is sold by description for seed which is known to the seller, and there is nothing in the contract between the parties showing a refusal, on the part of the vendor, to warrant, there is an implied warranty that the corn is fit for seeding purposes and has reasonably sufficient germinating qualities. * * *

"Plaintiff further contends that the defendant had full opportunity to inspect the bulk of the corn and, in fact, did so inspect it, and that, having had equal opportunity to judge its qualities with the plaintiff, no implied warranty would arise. Such inspection, however, did not precede the making of the contract. It appears only that when the defendant called for delivery of the corn he and his helper placed the corn in sacks for shipment, but this was after the contractual relations between the parties had been consummated. Whether or not defendant received such information from his observation of the condition of the corn as he handled it, as to have given rise to a waiver of any warranty by his accepting it in such known condition, is not in the case.

"It appears to us that the defendant was entitled to have submitted to the jury the issue of whether or not the plaintiff made an affirmative refusal to guarantee the germinating quality in the seed, and was entitled to have the jury instructed, if they should find that no such refusal was made and no agreement was made between the parties which would negative an implied warranty, that then such an implied warranty would, in law, arise, and that the plaintiff would, in that event, have the burden of showing that the bulk of the corn, for the price of which he was suing, was substantially the same as the sample in all essential particulars, including that of its germinating qualities. Such an instruction might have made a material difference in the result of the suit." S.

GLADIOLUS NOVELTIES

Mostly all of our own raising, including our new Gladiolus Maiden's Blush, of which the Florists' Review writes as follows: Gladiolus Maiden's Blush originated with J. J. Grullemans & Sons of Lisse, Holland, being one of a number of Primulinus hybrids of pronounced early flowering habit. The color of this beautiful variety is of a most attractive shade of light pink and some good judges think Maiden's Blush will become one of the most widely grown and popular varieties, when it is well known. It is said that this variety will force in the greenhouse in seven weeks.

We offer to the trade, as follows:
All ½ to 1¼ in.

| | Per 1000 |
|---|----------|
| Prim. Maiden's Blush..... | $20.00 |
| Apricot, apricot shaded orange..... | 30.00 |
| Ada, satiny white, pink blotch inside..... | 30.00 |
| Conspicuous, pale yellow, fine for table decoration.... | 30.00 |
| Golden Drop, a most remarkable variety. The flowers hang like bells on the stem, and it is without doubt a most beautiful variety for decoration. Golden yellow, shaded bronze..... | 30.00 |
| L'Or d'Australie, tall slender stems with deep golden yellow flowers..... | 30.00 |
| Orange Brilliant, a further description is not needed, the name itself is quite sufficient. On the Hague Show a basket filled obtained the Gold medal of the Bulb-growers' Association..... | 20.00 |

| | Per 1000 |
|---|----------|
| Rose Luisante. A magnificent Primulinus of the same colors as Tulip Rose Luisante, which always is in great demand. Splendid variety for shop-sale, highly recommended..... | $60.00 |
| Sunrise, light yellow, shaded orange, fringed..... | 30.00 |
| Lilac Wonder, clear bright lilac, one of the best and most beautiful Gladioli ever introduced..... | 50.00 |

experiment station, at Kingston, R. I., under the supervision of S. C. Damon, assistant in field experiments. The bulletin, which is being issued by the extension service of the college, covers not only the methods to be used in producing a weedless lawn, but gives simple and complete directions for the preparation and maintenance of lawns under varying conditions.

Mr. Damon suggests that weedless lawns can be obtained by using a mixture of Rhode Island bent and creeping bent, sowing thirty pounds of each to the acre. Because of the difficulty in procuring Rhode Island bent, he suggests an alternative mixture, which includes Rhode Island bent, eight to ten pounds per acre; velvet bent, eight to ten pounds to the acre; creeping bent, eight to ten pounds; wood meadow grass, four to six pounds; Italian rye grass, four to six pounds; red top, three to ten pounds. Clover and blue grass are purposely omitted from this mixture, as they do not grow well under conditions favorable to the elimination of weeds.

A bulletin was issued last year explaining the technicalities of the discovery. The new bulletin, however, is arranged for popular use. Copies of the bulletin may be obtained by writing to the extension service of Rhode Island State College, at Kingston, R. I.

BUYING PLANTING STOCK.

That bulb growing in America is considered practical is shown by the way buyers are taking planting stock, even in mixed varieties. These sales are mostly to the smaller buyers, of course. One reader writes he sold over 50,000 mixed Darwin tulip bulbs of planting size in a short time. Here is his letter:

Please discontinue my Classified advertisement and send me a bill in full. You did most of the work of selling $400 worth of bulbs for me.—Hugh O. Schmitt, Evansville, Ind., October 30, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED

Van Ginhoven & Co., Lisse, Holland, with American headquarters in New York, N. Y.—Special offer of gladiolus corms, in which the company specializes; eight pages, printed with large, clear type on cream-tinted paper and bound in an orange-colored cover.

Clairmont Gardens, Inc., Atlanta, Ga.—"Roses and Perennials for the South," a well printed, illustrated catalogue; sixteen pages and cover. Peonies, dahlias, irises and gladioli are among the conspicuous items. At the end is a page or more of annuals and Dutch bulbs.

Wild Bros. Nursery Co., Sarcoxie, Mo.—A condensed 8-page list, which treats peonies and irises as the specialties, but also offers selected assortments of perennials, shrubs, vines, arbovitae, maple trees and raspberry plants. Included, also, are a few varieties of boxwood and other shrubs in small sizes for lining out.

Forest Nursery Co., McMinnville, Tenn.—An 8-page wholesale list of trees, shrubs, vines, ferns and fruit-bearing plants. Both nursery-grown stock and collected forest stock are offered, mostly in small sizes, designated as cuttings, seedlings or transplanted varieties. A few varieties of evergreens, "pulled in the mountains," are included. The proprietors are Boyd Bros.

Utica Heater Co., Utica, N. Y.—"Utica-Imperial Super-Smokeless Boilers," a first-class specimen of catalogue-making; twenty large pages, about 8½x11 inches, excellently printed on a high grade of enameled paper and profusely illustrated with fine halftones. Though this catalogue is termed the "public building bulletin" and has no direct reference to commercial greenhouses, a park conservatory appears among the pictures. In construction the boilers are said to "utilize the principle of the Bunsen burner, burning the cheaper grades of soft coal without smoke." It is further stated that,

LANCASTER, PA.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club is not having a flower show this fall, but the club will visit the Reading, Pa., mum show.

The Goldbach Flower Shop had some novel advertising the last week. The firm gave tickets to the movies to those who guessed the nearest to the number of Sweetheart roses in a large receptacle. Mrs. Goldbach is also featuring some extra large white and yellow Turner mums. The entire shop has been repainted and a splendid season is anticipated.

At B. F. Barr's store, Miss Edith Diffenbach is store manager. She has been with Mr. Barr for fourteen years. Charles Durand is head salesman, designer and decorator. He was formerly with Habermehl's, of Philadelphia. The store has been remodeled and ranks with the foremost stores in the state.

A recent visitor to the county was E. C. Tipton, of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, who called on the peony consignors who ship to that house.

The firm of Suter, Bauman & Caldwell has been dissolved. Frank A. Suter has withdrawn from the firm.

C. S. Loeffler, Lititz, Pa., has sold his greenhouse establishment to Harry Girwin, formerly with the Florex Gardens, North Wales, but more recently grower for Maurice J. Brinton, Christiana, Pa.

At Elias LeFever's, on Lincoln highway, just east of Lancaster, the King Construction Co. is erecting a new steel-frame greenhouse, 44x175. Mr. LeFever was formerly located near Whitmer, but, upon selling his greenhouses to R. C. Smallwood, he moved to his present location. This new building is the nucleus of a range that is destined to be one of the show places of Lancaster county.

H. K. R.

Columbia, S. C.—Miss Blanche Williams has opened a flower shop, at 1323 Main street, and is specializing in wedding and funeral designs, as well as baskets and corsages. The new store is located in the lobby of the Ideal theater. The young lady is a woman of talent and ability as a florist.

FOR THE RETAIL FLORIST

PENN PUNCHES "PLEASE OMIT."

Consternation, momentary, let us hope, has seized the minds of many retailers who see the "please omit flowers" attitude as a profit-cutting menace. On the whole, the sentiment of "no flowers" has not made great inroads into florists' profits. On the other hand, in individual instances some method of offsetting the unhelpful attitude would be welcomed. Is there any reason in the world why the most beautiful and tender token of all should be omitted at the funeral of a loved one? Certainly not.

Why not prove that flowers are necessary? Penn the Florist, of Boston, wide-awake to the question, has already started in a subtle and persuasive way to put "please omit flowers" hors de combat. The illustration of the well worded advertisement on this page shows just what approach Penn the Florist is making. Every citizen knows that there are times when speech fails; everybody has been at a loss for words. Penn the Florist shows here how the lost words can be found in a satisfactory substitute. It is an affirmative argument to squelch a negative sentiment. This is an idea that can be widely adopted. The advertisement illustrated on this page appeared, in dimensions three times those of the reproduction, in the rotogravure section of the Boston Herald, Sunday, October 29.

AN IDEA WORTH TRYING.

Like to experiment? Why not run a special sale for those busy business men in the city who will welcome the idea of carrying home their own flowers, if they are sold at an exceedingly reasonable price? Thus, when roses are plentiful, place an advertisement in a local paper announcing a box of them at a low price to those who are willing to come and get the flowers. Make it clear in the advertisement that flowers will also be delivered at the regular price, but emphasize the fact that the special sale is really "special" to those who will "carry their own." This idea was tried by the Fleischman Floral Co., Chicago, with good results. Perhaps it would work in your town. If you've tried it successfully, let's know about it.

TALKING THROUGH AN AD.

Some people talk in stereotype. Time after time, to the utter discomfiture of their friends, these boring conversationalists repeat old bromides, such as "sky-blue eyes," "brown as a berry," "old as Methuselah," etc., etc.

Is it not the same with us who advertise? Is not our manner of expression becoming tedious and are not our listeners becoming bored with us? Do people like to read our advertisements, or are the advertisements passed over with a glance?

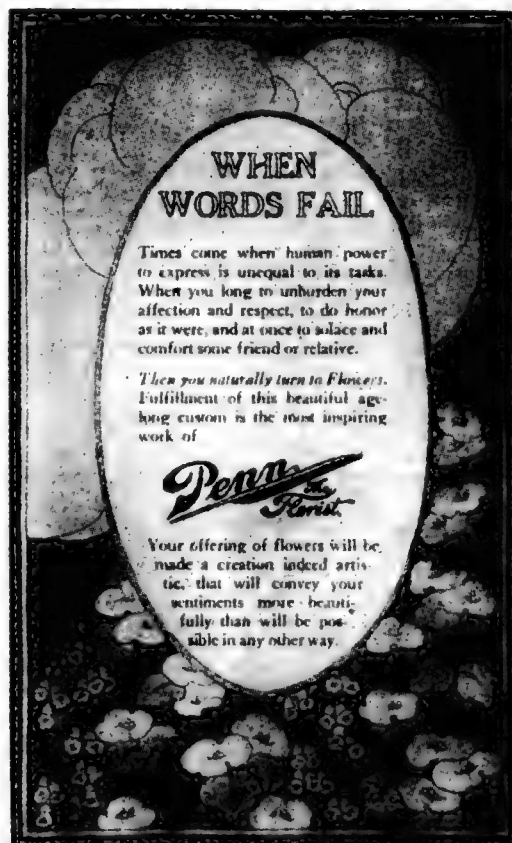

C. F. Baker & Son, who do business at Utica, N. Y., have their own ideas on advertising and they aim, it appears, to be friendly and natural in all their advertising copy. In their advertisements they carry on a regular, friendly conversation with the public. Here is an example of their advertising that appeared last August:

FLOWERS OF THE WAYSIDE.

To be had for the taking. The blue iris, the wild chicory or blue sailor, even the brown-eyed Susan and field daisies. Take up some and transplant to the home garden. The summer bouquets we offer please many people.

OVER TO BAKER'S.

And here is another example of their friendly copy; which calls attention to what is well known—the beauty of common flowers. But observe the plainness of the way it is told:

How to Advertise Funeral Flowers.

COMMON FLOWERS

Are only common to those who have plenty. The most interesting boxes of summer flowers are to be had now, plenty of flowers and wonderful blues, yellows and reds, a box full, $1.50.

OVER TO BAKER'S.

"Over to Baker's," closing each bit of copy, is a phrase that expresses the closeness of this firm of florists to their customers, something that is noteworthy of the establishment.

CLERKS AND COST PRICE.

In answer to a request by one of the readers of The Review, who would like to know if it is a good plan to have clerks know the cost price of merchandise which they must sell, I wish to go on record as saying that it is. In fifteen years of salesmanship which I have had in some of the largest establishments in Chicago, my observation has been that the clerk who is informed regarding cost prices talks more effectively, estimates the prices of orders which call for large quantities of stock more quickly, and is a better all-around salesman. Then, too, if you wish to move stock that is accumulating, it is necessary for your salesman to know where the most money is invested at that time; that is, whether it would not be better to push one variety in preference to another when a glut is on. Also, how can the fluctuating prices be explained to your clerks if they do not know the cost price and the margin of profit?

I have never been employed where cost prices were kept a secret from the clerks, and cannot imagine how it would work out. I have been employed in two of the largest shops, where it was the policy to tell the clerk the amount of profit that should be made on all stock, excepting baskets and ribbons, which are marked by one person when they are put in stock.

One florist has a novel idea in a system which requires that each salesman or order clerk write, on the back of each order that he fills, the cost price of each item, including the accessories, and sign his name; then, after the items are totaled, the amount must be a certain percentage of the price charged. At the end of the day's business these orders are inspected, and I know that this firm has obtained most efficient salesmen through this system, as it keeps an accurate record of how the stock is being sold, and the clerks do not shade the price on any sales.

This same firm keeps a record at cost price of all stock which becomes unsalable, a good practice, which is found in only a few places, as many florists dislike to have this item down in dollars and cents; it is often figured that stock thrown out is money that is gone forever.

I cannot see any advantage in keeping your clerks ignorant of your method of doing business, as they well know that the sales for the busy months must hold up the average for sales during the slack months. Big, prosperous firms have their marking code so that the clerks can sell without consulting a third party, and this method must be a success and a time-saver when business is at its best; so, why is it not suitable for florists? Herbert A. Stone.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

The Crescent City, long known as the chief American center for the observance of All Souls' day and All Saints' day, never enjoyed a larger business in flowers than was the case this year. Anticipating the increase in the demand, local growers had planted increased quantities of chrysanthemums, almost exclusively the good old white, Mrs. H. Robinson. Some years high hopes of this crop, grown outdoors or under cloth shade, are destroyed by weather conditions just as the crop is finished. This year, however, growing conditions were ideal and the crop was the most successful in the history of the trade in New Orleans. Literally hundreds of thousands of Mrs. Robinson were available and they sold excellently if not cleanly at good prices.

In spite of the large local production of white chrysanthemums, three solid carloads came from San Francisco. That readers may know just what three carloads mean, let it be stated that an express car contains 300 boxes and each box contains fifty chrysanthemums. Therefore there are 15,000 chrysanthemums in a car and the big shipments from San Francisco aggregated 45,000 flowers. There also were other smaller shipments from other cities. The San Francisco chrysanthemums were nearly all Turners and the flowers were the largest seen on this occasion. It is interesting to note that on the eve of All Saints' day some of the leading stores and largest importers were declining further orders for the big Turners at $15 per dozen, though they had an abundant supply of smaller flowers at half that price.

The white chrysanthemum is to All Saints' day what the white carnation used to be to Mothers' day. The trade got away from the white carnation as the emblematic flower for the second Sunday in May, but no effort has been made to change the popular taste for All Saints' day. The sales of carnations and roses were moderately good, but pompon chrysanthemums were practically immovable and the sales of white mums outnumbered the sales of other colors at least twenty to one.

New Orleans retailers are now settling down to an active winter season, which will culminate with the Mardi Gras festivities.

The Market.

Business last week was exceptionally good, with a large number of weddings and many decorations booked. American Beauty roses are scarce, and have been bringing $7.50 to $9 per dozen. This is a considerable increase in price over that of the preceding week, and many of the retailers are complaining of the advances. On the other hand, the growers claim that there is little profit in producing American Beauty roses even when the price goes high at times. The general opinion is that the American Beauty roses that came in last week at the prices named were really worth the money demanded, for this rose still holds the foremost place among roses.

There are some good local roses being cut at this time and in good varieties, including Crusader, American Legion, Dunlop, Columbia and Premier. The price on these flowers ranges from $4 to $20 per hundred. Some good Francis Scott Key were to be had during the week and these brought $7.50 per dozen.

Chrysanthemums were plentiful, although the better grades found a ready market at from $3 to $6 per dozen. Some extra fine Turners and Louise Pockett brought $7.50 per dozen. The smaller stock could be had at from $10 to $20 per hundred. Among the favorites in chrysanthemums were white and yellow Rager, Richmond, Colonel Appleton, Golden Glow and America. Pompons sold at from $3 to $5 per dozen bunches.

Carnations have been bringing $3 and $4 per hundred, with Laddie selling well at $6 per hundred. Carnations are off crop and the quality is not extra good at this time. There is little demand for carnations, however, due to the presence in the market of large quantities of chrysanthemums. Lily of the valley is still bringing $8 per hundred. Orchids are priced at $12 and $18 per dozen and are extremely hard to get in quantity at those prices. Wedding orders make good their sale, but some of the orders can not be filled.

season varieties are now plentiful. There is a good call for single pompons. Roses have suffered greatly in price lately, and the warm weather has greatly increased daily shipments; quality is of the best. Carnations are arriving in increasing volume and all are of excellent quality. The mum season has affected the sale and price of carnations.

Violets are not up to standard, the warm spell having taken the color out of them. Recent light frosts have had no effect on some of the outdoor stock. Fine valley and Easter lilies are to be obtained in abundance and fine orchids are to be had daily.

Asparagus, smilax, fancy ferns and other greens have a large sale.

Flower Show Meeting.

The final meeting of the executive committee of the fall flower show was held October 31 in the St. Louis public library hall. Chairman Ammann issued a call for all chairmen and members of their committees; fifty-five responded. Gratifying reports were made by the following chairmen of committees: W. A. Rowe, premium committee; August Hummert, guarantee committee; Frank A. Windler, publicity committee; Charles Beyer, ticket committee; J. J. Windler, program committee; W. J. Carter, entertainment; Mrs. F. Bruenig, ladies' reception committee; H. G. Berning, finance committee; L. P. Jensen, private gardeners' committee; L. Baumann, landscape gardeners' committee, and A. Hoffmann, retail display committee. Chairman Hoffmann stated that twenty-two retailers had taken booths and that all would compete in the retail classes.

J. J. Bentzen, chairman of the Florists' Club trustees, reported everything in readiness for the banquet, to be held at the Claridge hotel.

At the close of this meeting J. F. Ammann made a splendid ten minutes' talk, in which he congratulated all the chairmen and members of the committees on their great work. He announced that there would be no more meetings of the executive committee and that all the final details would be handled by the executive council, which is composed of himself, as chairman; H. G. Berning, vice-chairman; W. A. Rowe, treasurer; J. J. Beneke, secretary, and George H. Pring, superintendent of exhibits.

Various Notes.

The monthly meeting of the St. Louis Association of Gardeners was held Thursday evening, November 2, at 8 p. m., at the municipal greenhouses. The meeting was well attended. President Pring presided. The feature discussion of the meeting was on an appropriate subject, "Bulbs and Bulb Planting." Prof. H. C. Irish led the discussion, in which all took part. The fall flower show was also discussed, and all promised their support.

The officers of the Florists' Club held their monthly conference at Vice-president Ruff's home November 2 and planned an interesting program for the coming meeting, which will be held in the Coliseum building.

J. F. Ammann, chairman and manager of the fall flower show, has been a visitor at show headquarters daily, watching developments of the show. Mr. Ammann leaves November 9 for Detroit on important F. T. D. business.

have been made at this place, greatly adding to the appearance of the sales-room.

The many friends of Edward Kalisch, head of Kalisch Bros. Co., extended their sympathy in the loss of his wife, who passed away last week at the family home, on Kingshighway.

Morris Levine, of the M. H. Levine Co., New York, and Edward Westerman, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, were here last week, visiting the trade in the interest of their firms.

Grimm & Gorly put on a special mum sale last week, selling cut mums at 19 cents each. The sale proved popular with the public; many thousand blooms were disposed of.

The bowlers enjoyed a fine bowling night November 1. The Sweet Peas won the odd game from the leading Roses. The Orchids lost the odd game to the Daisies, and the Violets won two from the Carnations. J. J. B.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

Business is slow; the reason for this is probably the fact that the weather has been so summer-like. Outdoor stock is still arriving in fairly good quantities. Mums are arriving in large quantities and they are flooding the market. The better grades of pompons are moving nicely. The disbudded pompon is gaining in popularity. They are good keepers, as a rule.

The demand for roses has slackened. Premier and Columbia, however, have been cleaning up readily. The demand for carnations has suddenly lessened and they are hard to sell. A few violets are arriving, but the quality is not good. The demand for valley has dropped off. Easter lilies are now plentiful and have been moving slowly.

In outdoor stock dahlias still lead in quantity, while calendulas and gladioli are still arriving, but are hard to move.

Various Notes.

The opening of Keith's Palace theater last week developed a demand for stock of all kinds.

A. J. Saywell has sold his store, on Superior avenue, to Martin Janoch.

R. E. Blackshaw, of the Ove Gnat Co., La Porte, Ind., was a recent visitor.

L. Hecock, of Elyria, O., made one of his regular visits last week.

supply. Boxwood has arrived and is specially good and is moving well. Bittersweet and dried flowers are selling well just now. Good Boston and Whitmanii ferns are on the market and sell readily.

Various Notes.

The death of Charles Chism is noted on the obituary page of this issue. Sam Edelmann, of S. Handling Co., New York; T. T. Fryer, of George B. Hart, Rochester, N. Y., and Manual Oppenheim, of Olean, N. Y., were visitors last week.

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

The condition of the market last week was fair. There seemed to be a good quantity of stock, but it moved slowly. The market was overstocked with roses and there was little demand for them. King Chrysanthemum reigns supreme, so this may account for the slow sale of roses. During the whole week there was an abundant supply of the larger varieties of mums, ranging in price from $2.50 to $8.00 per dozen. The latter price was asked for some large Turners. There were more pink and white varieties than yellow. The demand for the smaller varieties of mums far exceeded the supply. Easter lilies were scarce, as were callas. Single violets were plentiful. The supply of orchids easily met the demand. Gardenias were scarce; in fact, there were none reaching the market from local growers. Valley was plentiful and the quality of the stock fair. Sweet peas, pansies, marguerites and myosotis arrived in small quantities.

Various Notes.
Two new flower shops have been opened locally. One is The Maple Leaf Flower Shop, at 7 East Pleasant street. A Mr. Schmeisser, formerly with Lehr Bros., is the manager. The other shop has been opened in the 700 block of North avenue, by Miss Rush, formerly with the Charles E. Smith Co. And it is rumored that a third shop will soon be opened in the Eutaw place district.

The weather man was unusually kind to Strongs, the Florists, waiting until the last bit of putty was on the new greenhouse before sending a deluge of rain. The three 50-foot houses, for which the material arrived four weeks ago, "came entirely too late for erection," said everybody. They are steam and water equipped and all planted with violets, pansies, myosotis and carnations, while sweet peas, mums, cyclamens, stevias and other plants revel in their new, roomy quarters. Quantities of shaggy pompons and large flowers of Chrysolora and Bonnaffon are finding ready sale at good prices. A fine lot of Premier, Crusader, Butterfly and Columbia roses are cut daily, together with a small quantity of Golden Ophelia and Sweetheart. In the downtown store of the firm, the windows are filled with varied-colored finches, parakeets, etc., which prove a traffic-arresting attraction. Dozens of roller canaries render their songs and are readily disposed of, netting a nice profit. Business in this section has been unusually good, not only along funeral lines, but in the constant daily demand for cut flowers, corsages, etc.

Mrs. James Coleman, wife of Coleman the Florist, has gone to Minneapolis to visit and enjoy a well deserved rest. Mr. Coleman is doing double duty now, and it keeps him hustling, but he keeps on smiling just the same. S. F.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums are becoming more abundant and move rapidly; yellow and pink varieties are most in demand. Single blooms close out well every day. Roses are improving almost daily, while carnations are looking fine. There has been a continued shortage of white roses, which are especially in demand for wedding purposes, although a few valley are called for. Funeral work continues heavy and is pretty generally divided, so that all are kept busy.

Various Notes.

William Doel, of Pascoag, reports several large funeral orders the last few weeks. Edward Brooks, Paul Brookner and the Colonial Flower Shoppe had a

It is large and light, with probably the finest show windows in the city. The new store presents a fine appearance, with modern equipment in every way, and will certainly help anyone to "Say It with Flowers." The decorations are in keeping with the flower business, and the store looks what it is intended to be.

The Empire Nurseries, of which George M. Murphy is proprietor, have added a new Buick truck to their equipment.

Dahl's landscape department reports busy times, with business increasing every day. It is fortunate that this department will offset the dullness in the flower department. With the amateurs growing flowers all over the country and flooding the streets, buildings and every available place, florists are having troubles of their own. It would take many a large funeral to clean up the excess, unless the weather man takes matters in hand and answers the protests of the florists against the unusual warmth.

J. P. Russell & Sons are showing a bench of unusually fine mums. Celebration vies with Turner and White and Pink Helen Frick with Harvard. The firm intends to have a flower show all of its own next year, with a house of Celebration by itself.

The seventeenth annual flower show of the Royal Florists' Society, of Owings, S. C., was held November 1, at Owings. This society, starting sixteen years ago with a membership of sixteen, has grown each year until it is attracting attention from all over the state. This year the show was held in the Community building, which was built by members of the Royal Florists' Society. This same society is responsible for the two churches there, and the quantity and quality of the flowers on exhibition are worthy of any professional grower. An unusual feature of the Royal Florists' Society is that it is composed of ladies entirely. No man is a member and only once in the history of the organization has a man been a member. This rather refutes the oft-repeated statement that the ladies cannot hold together.

The Greenville Floral Co., Greenville, S. C., will move from its present store to enlarged quarters across the street January 1, 1923. The name of the company will be changed and announcement will be made shortly of this change. J. S. H.

TORONTO, CAN.

The Market.

Business in the florists' trade is on the increase. There have been a number of large weddings lately, accompanied by large orders for decorations. Flowers are becoming more plentiful. Mums are arriving in quantities and these are of good quality, except in some cases where the foliage might be improved. Prices are fluctuating, but the trend is upward. Several prominent men died during the week and there was a big demand for designs. One florist supplied nearly forty designs for one funeral, and this does not create a record in Toronto.

Winter Fair.

The talk among florists at present is the royal winter fair, to be held in the Coliseum, Exhibition park, November 22 to 29. The florists' representatives on the board are G. M. Geraghty and S. A. McFadden, of the Toronto Retail Florists' Club; P. L. Whytock, of the Ontario Gardeners' and Florists' Association; Percy Hodgetts, of the Toronto Florists' Club.

The Toronto Retail Florists' Club is arranging for an entertaining series of meetings during the coming winter. G. M. Geraghty entertained the executive committee at his apartments, November 3, to discuss plans and appoint committees. He will also entertain the club at its club rooms November 13. The committees appointed are as follows: Sick—J. J. Higgins, chairman; George Gard and L. Lawrie; finance—L. Waters, Charles Cooper, Arthur G. Frost, F. Dean and Mrs. Percy Waters; publicity—G. M. Geraghty, chairman; H. James, J. J. Higgins, S. A. McFadden; lookout—S. A. Frost.

The program at the meeting of November 13 will include a report of the F. T. D. annual meeting, followed by cards and refreshments. It is the plan of the executive committee to hold a progressive euchre contest during the season, and award six valuable prizes to the players with the highest scores at the end of the season. Three of these will be for ladies and three for gentlemen.

Various Notes.

when members in western Ontario met at London on the call of Director W. W.
Gammage and District Representative
F. George Dicks to organize a unit.
W. C. Groves, of Hamilton, was unanimously nominated permanent chairman, and F. George Dicks, secretary.
Ballots will be mailed all members in western Ontario for election. Albert Pochelon, secretary of the F. T. D., attended and gave a vigorous talk.

CORNELL STUDENTS INSPECT.

The students in commercial floriculture, under Professor Nehrling at Cornell University, and Ralph J. Roskelley, of the Bool Floral Co., spent the day inspecting various practical phases of the floricultural business Saturday, October 28. The start from Ithaca was early and we left well equipped with notebooks, smokes, and similar vital necessities. The two cars, carrying fourteen students, arrived in Auburn and visited the range of Shaw & Boehler, finding a young, progressive concern with an unmistakable atmosphere of success about it. Their 20,000 square feet of glass are filled with seasonal crops.

Next we visited the Patrick Floral Store, which has been attractively remodeled within the year. Mr. Gilbert next acted as host at the Melrose Nurseries, and we were favored, among other things, by the sight of his Mme. Cochet rose stock, which dates back to the first years of that variety's prominence. Mr. Gilbert, in a limited experiment, finds it satisfactory to allow the development of three chrysanthemums to one plant in the large double types.

Next, at Syracuse, dinner was followed by inspection of the busy concern, the retail store of W. F. Bultman, where we found them pushing the sale of bulbs. The retail store of the J. P. Quinlan Co., the oldest firm in Syracuse, was also visited.

Mrs. L. C. Smith's conservatories, with their excellent collection of conservatory plants, were visited. By this time the process of loading and unloading ourselves from the cars had been mastered to perfection, and we hustled on to the range of D. M. Edwards, at East Onondaga. They are setting up houses which had been previously used in connection with their home on James street.

At the range of Quinlan & Co.
we eagerly dogged the footsteps of Superintendent De Wire until after dark. Mr. De Wire grafted none of his rose stock. A fine day had ended. The more conservative element of the crowd became suddenly homesick, and "Ithaca, James," was the verdict. Not so with the second car, under the able direction of Professor Nehrling. Part of its load had already gone to parts where they were made welcome; the remainder had to make themselves welcome where they went, and the evening was spent enjoyably in Syracuse. R. B. Farnham.

ber 9 to 12. In accordance with the spirit for shows which pervades the country at this time, the Stuebe Floral Co., making a specialty of mums, feels that it has something to show and will put on display many different varieties of mums. Watertown, Wis., is one of the chief flower centers of that state and a keen interest will be taken in this individual effort, which was announced to the general public through the medium of a 4-inch double-column advertisement in the Watertown Daily Times. There is little doubt that the Stuebe Floral Co. will profit greatly from the show, as it is taking the correct means in letting the people know it deals in flowers for sale.

CARNATION BRANCH-ROT.

My carnations are affected with some disease. I have about 20,000 plants, but only a few of them are badly troubled so far. However, I should like to get the plants back on the road to health before I lose them all. As you will be able to see by examining the specimens I have mailed to you, the leaves are dying and are covered with black spots. This black coloring is also on the stems, while some of it shows itself on the flower petals. The weather has been hot and muggy here, but I have kept the temperature around 40 degrees, firing lightly at night. The plants were benched August 4. After they had begun to grow, I topped them, leaving only two or three shoots to each plant to come along for an early crop. The watering, except for red spider, has been done under the foliage. I water the plants when, in my opinion, the ground shows a need for watering, and then I put enough on to make it come through the bottom of the bench. I have been feeding the plants sheep manure and hydrated lime. L. S.—N. Y.

BEST FLOWERS FOR EVERY OCCASION

Your carnations are troubled with what we know as branch-rot, sometimes referred to as dry-rot. While this disease is not so destructive as the wet form, known as stem-rot, yet it does destroy a plant, once it gets a hold. On account of the attacks being mostly along the stems, it is difficult to combat the disease with sprays. The best plan is to pull up any plants that are badly affected and burn them. If a plant seems healthy, except for a branch well removed from the main stem, the plant may be saved by cutting away the branch well below the affected part. The reason for the dying of the leaves is that the disease destroys the bark around the stem and stops the flow of sap, leaving the branch without nourishment. Be cleanly with your culture, and avoid anything that will produce a foul atmosphere. A little sulphur on your steam pipes will help. A. F. J. B.

Clubs was called at Orlando, Fla., November 3, by Bayard F. Floyd, secretary of the Florida State Horticultural Society. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss plans for the holding of a state flower show. Representing the florists' association were F. W. Fletcher, Orlando, Fla.; W. H. Knoll, Tampa, Fla.; James Donn, Miami, Fla.; W. B. Currey, DeLand, Fla., and T. B. Grace, Jacksonville, Fla.

MONTGOMERY OPENS STORE.

When E. H. Montgomery, of Fairfield, Ia., decided to open a store in connection with his greenhouses, he also decided to do it in a modern way. So, fully a week in advance of the opening, he ran advertisements in the several local newspapers announcing the opening.

And when the store actually opened Wednesday, October 25, more than 1,800 people came to see. By 4 p. m. 1,000 roses had been given away to women visitors and men visitors were presented with hundreds of carnations.

After the opening day, another advertisement was run, thanking the public for its kind attention and promising service. In this way the concern has won for itself a flying start and a legion of friends.

TREATING CUT POINSETTIAS.

Is one tablespoonful of nitrate of soda to a gallon of water or sulphate of ammonia in the same proportion the proper thing to use to get that rich red color on the blooms of poinsettias? What can I do to make them open by December 10 or 15? How can I make the cut flowers remain fresh?

and sizes of spoons and different conceptions of what should be a level, rounding or heaping spoonful, spoons are a poor medium for measuring things, solids especially. In measuring by weight, you cannot go wrong. For ordinary feeding, one pound of nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia to fifty gallons of water is considered about right. These should give your poinsettias a rich green in the foliage and a glowing red in the bracts. We use dried blood, pulverized poultry and sheep manure for this purpose. You will find them safer to use and effective. First apply a mulch of old cattle or stable manure, to prevent the pulverized manure from washing away in watering. When you cut your poinsettias, hold the stems in hot water a few minutes, the hotter the water the better. Then put them in fresh water and set them in a room with about 60 degrees temperature. Many growers make the mistake of putting their cut poinsettias in the cooler. Have you ever noticed, on cool mornings, how the leaves will hang limp, if the temperature was allowed to drop to 50 degrees or lower? The low temperature will affect the cut ones the same as the growing plants.

Buy Another Book Today

Many of the most successful business men in the trade had little schooling—but they practically all are readers—they read The Review each week and they buy books frequently. Such men are self-educated—theirs is knowledge gleaned by reading.

It is the mission of The Review to assist its subscribers in every way to improve their knowledge of the trade and their knowledge in other fields of human interest. As a measure of co-operation The Review has added to its services to subscribers a book purchasing service. This department, of course, specializes on books pertaining to the business of florists, nurserymen and seedsmen, but in addition will secure for subscribers, without charge for its service, any book they want, of any nature.

If you want a book of any given title, The Review will get it for you. Or if you want a book on any certain subject, The Review will send you the titles, with prices, of all the books on that subject.

Look over the list in the appended coupon. Most of these are standard books by well known authors. Order the one which seems, from its title, most nearly to concern your special interests. When you have read it carefully, order another.

Put a cross opposite the books you want. Clip the coupon and send it to us with a check to cover cost. Books will be forwarded, postpaid, without delay.

Buy Another Book Today

Many of the most successful business men in the trade had little schooling—but they practically all are readers—they read The Review each week and they buy books frequently. Such men are self-educated—theirs is knowledge gleaned by reading.

It is the mission of The Review to assist its subscribers in every way to improve their knowledge of the trade and their knowledge in other fields of human interest. As a measure of co-operation The Review has added to its services to subscribers a book purchasing service. This department, of course, specializes on books pertaining to the business of florists, nurserymen and seedsmen, but in addition will secure for subscribers, without charge for its service, any book they want, of any nature.

If you want a book of any given title, The Review will get it for you. Or if you want a book on any certain subject, The Review will send you the titles, with prices, of all the books on that subject.

Look over the list in the appended coupon. Most of these are standard books by well known authors. Order the one which seems, from its title, most nearly to concern your special interests. When you have read it carefully, order another.

Put a cross opposite the books you want. Clip the coupon and send it to us with a check to cover cost. Books will be forwarded, postpaid, without delay.

FLORISTS' REVIEW,
508 S. Dearborn St.,
Chicago, Ill.
Gentlemen:

Please send me, postage prepaid, the books which I have checked below. I am enclosing my check to cover cost of same.

- ☐ "Commercial Floriculture," by Fritz Bahr. A practical manual for the retail grower. Part I devoted to opportunities and responsibilities of the florists' business. Part II has 300 pages of cyclopedic information. 560 pages. Illus.....$ 5.00
- ☐ "Tree Wounds and Diseases," by A. D. Webster. The prevention and treatment of wounds and diseases and tree repair are thoroughly described and every operation outlined clearly so as to be easily understood. Illus..... 2.65
- ☐ "All About Chrysanthemum Growing," by Arthur Herrington and Elmer D. Smith, two books for..... 1.65
- ☐ "Manual of the Trees of North America," by Prof. C. S. Sargent, new edition, 900 pages and 783 illustrations. Every nurseryman and landscape man should have this book 12.50
- ☐ "Cyclopedia of Hardy Fruits," by U. P. Hedrick. A comprehensive treatise on varieties of hardy fruits which will be found indispensable to the grower..... 6.25
- ☐ "Album of Designs," shows 96 pages of flower arrangements in beautifully printed halftones..... 1.25
- ☐ Webster's New International Dictionary. The first book to buy is the Bible, the second a Dictionary. Webster's New International is the best. It is in daily use by hundreds of thousands of successful men and women. 400,000 words, 2700 pages, 6000 illustrations..... 16.00
- ☐ "Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture," in six large volumes. Nothing else printed in the horticultural line to compare with this monumental work. Monthly payments, if desired. Price for the set, express paid 40.00

Cut Flowers

OUR SPECIALTY

H. G. BERNING

1402-4 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

The rose cut has been reduced fifty per cent in the last week. Growers are preparing for Christmas. It is believed that the coming week will see such a scarcity of this stock that it will be at a premium. Home-grown mums are plentiful. They are of good quality. The profusion of California mums earlier has interfered to some extent with the sale of local stock.

Commission men say that if the mum season were not rushed by the bringing of outside stock several weeks before the home-grown blooms are ready to cut, the latter would find a better demand. Two or three weeks of the larger blooms from the west make the first cut of home-grown stock suffer in comparison, no matter how good they may be.

By midseason, when the choice stock is taken from the greenhouses, the public has tired somewhat of chrysanthemums, and they do not bring the prices that they should. Growers would like to see the mum season held back until home-grown stock comes in. They believe that retailers would lose nothing by it, and financial gain would react all along the line. One of the largest growers in Oklahoma, who is also a retailer, refused to buy any outdoor mums this season. When his own were ready for market, they sold readily.

Various Notes.

A meeting of the permanent chairman committee of the Florists' Club was held Friday, November 3, at the Midday Club. A permanent organization was effected. W. L. Rock was elected chairman; John Klaus, vice-chairman, and M. E. Carter, secretary. Mr. Rock expressed the opinion that much good for the club and individual florists could be done by regular meetings of the body. It was agreed to meet at luncheon the first Friday of each month. Subjects that come up for discussion will be presented for settlement at the following meeting of the club, the third Wednesday of the month.

Since selling the Sunset Hill Greenhouse, A. R. Smith is devoting his attention to his retail store, near Fortieth and Main streets, known as Sunset Flowers. The week of October 29 was the best of the season.

Dr. B. W. Murphy, of St. Joseph, Mo., was in the city Saturday, November 4, on his return from a business trip through Oklahoma and Texas.

S. Bryson Ayres is still occupying the store room at Eleventh and McGee streets as a retail flower store. There he sells stock from his flower farms. Saturday, November 4, he sold roses for $1 and $2 a dozen and sweet peas for 75 cents a bunch. He is cutting more than 1,000 sweet peas daily.

Rock's Gardens received a carload of Dutch bulbs the early part of the season. Several varieties have already been sold out. The entire lot is being moved satisfactorily.

Dr. E. R. Millice and Miss Elizabeth Collinson, of Los Angeles, Cal., were married at 8 p. m., November 1, at the home of the bride's uncle, R. M. Eagle, Kansas City, Kan. The groom is a brother of Roy Millice, of the Alpha Floral Co. William Fitzhugh, of that company, decorated the home for the

Mrs. Spickerman visited her old home, which she left forty-one years ago, and she visited her brother while there also. Mrs. Spickerman's son, Francis, has also just returned from Russia, Constantinople and other European points. He served as a radio operator on the relief ship, Saugus, which carried provisions to the starving people of those countries. The young man has seen many interesting places, and has an elaborate collection of pictures. Mrs. Spickerman is now back at her home, and relates many interesting experiences which she enjoyed while on her trip.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

AN account of the demise of Charles J. Chism, former nurseryman of Rochester, N. Y., is to be found on the obituary page of this issue.

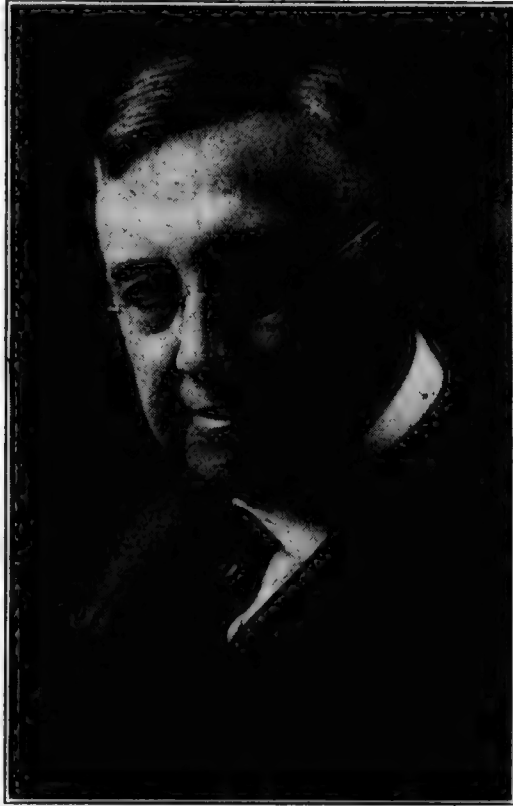

THE forestry division of the states of Minnesota and Pennsylvania have taken to planting trees along the highways. It is reported that Minnesota will plant 30,000 trees along her highways this year, adding to this beginning each year.

A NEW currant has been originated by R. W. Crandall, of the Crandall Nursery, Newton, Kan. This new currant is similar to the Crandall black currant, but it is a clear yellow and is sweet in taste. It is the intention of the firm to put the new currant on the market as soon as a nursery firm can be found to propagate the bush, as the firm does little propagating work. Mr. Crandall is of the opinion that some nurseryman could make a good thing of this bush.

A. M. AUGUSTINE, of the Augustine Nursery Co., Normal, Ill., recently returned from Chicago, where he attended a committee meeting of the Illinois Nurserymen's Association in the Congress hotel. At this meeting plans were formed for an excursion by steamer from Chicago to South Haven, Mich., next June. The object of the trip is to visit the government experiment station at South Haven. Mr. Augustine is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

ONE of the most important real estate deals made recently at Aurora, Mo., was closed Tuesday, October 17, whereby W. O. Gray and F. L. Hudson became owners of the 200-acre farm known as the Earl McClure farm. Preparations have already been made for the spring planting, and the firm will take possession of the property about January 1. These two energetic men are from Clever, Mo., where they have built up a good nursery business in the last five years. It is reported that the firm will employ forty or fifty hands.

It is reported in the state of New York that the conservation commission received orders for in excess of one-half million forest trees for the reforestation of non-agricultural lands, the largest single order coming from the Chateaugay Pulp & Paper Co. for 150,000 Norway spruce. It was also stated that in Lewis county, New York, one man started a reforestation project that is to cover 150 acres of land with 12,000 trees. Camp Idlewild, in Oneida county, planted 32,000 trees in the spring and is planting 12,000 trees this fall. Other organizations of a similar nature to those mentioned above have placed orders for approximately 90,000 trees.

ILLINOIS CONVENTION DATES.

Members of the Illinois Nurserymen's Association are notified that the convention of the association will be held January 11 and 12. The executive committee in charge of the arrangements expects to have the biggest and best meeting ever held by the association. All members intending to have exhibits should get their material lined up immediately, before the ground freezes.

JAMES A. YOUNG.

The "Plan to Plant" Man.

Members of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association long have held in high esteem their secretary, James A. Young, of Aurora, and the remarkable reception by the press and public of the "Plan to Plant Another Tree" campaign, which he has conducted almost single-handed, has made his name one of importance and interest to nurserymen throughout the country. To most of them Mr. Young needs no introduction. There are few men who have a wider knowledge than Mr. Young of the ups and downs and of the vicissitudes and opportunities of the nursery business. Mr. Young is of that class of men who enter into the spirit of their work with their whole heart and soul to win, of that class of men in whom the instinct of business pugnacity is exceedingly strong.

Early Activities.

Mr. Young was born July 30, 1872, near Nashville, Ind. Later he moved to Kansas, where he was educated in the made such rapid progress throughout the entire state of Illinois in creating the desire among the people for more beauty. Mr. Young was instrumental in getting the press throughout the state to take up this slogan and has worked with all his might in his efforts to educate the people into a better understanding of what it means to have homes surrounded with plants and trees. And his efforts are already beginning to bear fruit. He sends a weekly clip sheet to hundreds of newspapers, in which he gives planting instructions and answers questions regarding the kind of trees to plant, the season of the year to plant them and how to care for them after they are established.

Mr. Young's deep sincerity of purpose may be recognized in the following expression of his purpose: "No doubt, I could have made larger sums of money in other lines of endeavor than I have in the nursery business, but I love horticulture. To me the development of plant life is a pleasure, not so much because I love plants, but because I realize the great influence of plant life on character. After all, it is the awakening of life which points the way to God. He, therefore, who does his best for plants does much toward pointing his fellow man to his Creator, which is only another way of expressing life and love."

IOWA NURSERYMEN TO MEET.

The annual meeting of the Iowa Nurserymen's Association will be held in conjunction with the convention of the Iowa State Horticultural Society, Council Bluffs, Ia., November 13 to 18. The meeting of the nurserymen will be held November 14. The meeting will be called to order in the Grand hotel at 6 p. m. by President Earl Ferris, of Hampton, Ia., after which the secretary's and treasurer's reports will be read by R. S. Herrick, Des Moines. A general discussion of how the Iowa Nurserymen's Association can be of service to its members will be taken up. All nurserymen visiting the convention are invited to join this meeting. The election of officers will follow the discussion.

The present officers of the association are as follows: President, Earl Ferris, Hampton, Ia.; vice-president, H. L. Merkel, Des Moines, Ia.; secretary-treasurer, R. S. Herrick, Des Moines, Ia. The membership committee includes the following men: Earl Ferris, H. L. Merkel, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; R. S. Herrick.

The Market.

The local market was glutted last week and stock moved at any price obtainable. It was a week of bargains, rather than one of consistent prices. All the retailers reported business quiet, and as a result the wholesale houses are overloaded with all kinds of stock. Good mums, which should be moving out at fair prices, are a drug on the market, and it is more of a burden than a pleasure to keep them on the move each day. Yellow and white varieties are arriving in large quantities, while pink and lavender are not so plentiful and clear out in better shape.

Pompons are gaining in quantity each day and are always to be had in the wholesale houses any time during course, this condition is brought about by the oversupply of mums, and, no doubt, will continue for some time. Premier, Columbia, Butterfly and Ophelia are arriving in large quantities, with Medina, Angelus, White Killarney and Milady a close second. All the varieties of white roses are particularly fine for this time of year and are moving much faster than the pink and yellow.

Violets are arriving now in small quantities, but, even with a small supply, there is more than enough to take care of the demand, and they are moving out at low prices, considering the quality and color. Orchids are still fairly plentiful, but the demand just about cleans up each day's receipts at a fair price. Lily of the valley is a little more plentiful, but, with a good demand, it is moving out at a good price, and each day finds the market cleaned up on this stock. American Beauties are coming in daily, but the quality is not of the best, due to the warm weather prevailing; this greatly interferes with shipping. The demand also is limited, so that a few find their way into the waste boxes. Most of the local growers of lilies are holding back to escape the losses sustained last year by being on full crop during the mum season. Callas have made their appearance, with a demand such that they clear each day at fair prices.

Various Notes.

The local Growers' Association made an extended tour of the territory surrounding Buffalo last week and reports that the crop of late mums will be much smaller than last year, but that the quality will be the best. Nearly all the growers visited report that their planting for this year is far below that of the last few years, and that they are now growing more with the idea of fine quality rather than heavy production. All the rose growers visited report their stock in better condition at this time than it has been for several seasons in the past and believe they will be able to produce stock of the best quality during the entire season. The Growers' Association has been a great factor in the production of the best in cut flowers and plants in this locality. It is an organization made up entirely of growers with the idea in view of assisting each other to better and larger production, and of passing along any new ideas that may come to them during the growing season.

Arthur Umnitz, proprietor of the West Side Floral Co., Erie, Pa., was a visitor in the city last week. Mr. Umnitz has but recently started in the business, but reports things moving along in good shape and business increasing beyond his expectations.

The Crossley Greenhouses, Mansfield, Pa., are cutting fine Laddie carnations, which find a ready sale on the local market.

J. B. Bruno has moved into his new store room at 210 Niagara street and is now in a position to give better service than at the old store on Georgia avenue.

William Graham, of Bradford, Pa., visited the local wholesale houses last week on his return from a hunting trip through western New York. Mr. Graham reports business as exceptionally good in his city.

Otto Beschel, of the Buffalo McCallum Co., has moved his family to Buffalo and is now comfortably settled in the Humboldt Park section.

William H. Minekime, of Hamburg, has been doing jury duty for the last two weeks. J. B. M.

ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

This section was visited by a fine rain last week. This will put the ground in much better shape for wintering plants. Nurseries all report lots of fall planting work. Chrysanthemums are late and there has been a ready sale for all put on the market. Roses and carnations are moving easily. The big home-coming doings and football game at the university and the resulting entertaining, furnished considerable business last week.

A carload of fine southern smilax has been received from Charles F. Lee, Glenwood, Ala., for covering the ceiling of the armory, and a carload of spruce trees from northern Minnesota is ready for use in the armory annex and to mark the street leading to the armory.

A sunken garden, 60x120, formed of fourteen flower beds of begonias, chrysanthemums and other flowering plants, will be installed in the armory annex by the Minneapolis park department. A fine electric fountain, lent by the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, will also be a feature of this building.

Nursery exhibits of trees, shrubs and perennials are to be installed along the walls of the annex and several miniature home grounds are to be put in. The main armory floor will be laid out as a garden.

Monday, November 13, a rose and chrysanthemum will be christened by Miss Mary Wells and Miss Georgiana Partridge. A banquet is to be held Monday evening. Max Kaiser, Hugh Will and C. F. Kimmey have this in charge. The superintendent of the festival is Louis Boeglin, city horticulturist of Minneapolis. Theodore Wirth is chairman of the general show committee, which is composed of Hugh Will, C. F. Rice, C. N. Ruedlinger, A. Forchas, C. I. Lindskoog, F. W. Topel, F. Nussbaumer, C. F. Kimmey, John Peterson, O. J. Olson and Max Kaiser.

Various Notes.

Flowering bulbs, especially tulips and bicolor narcissi, of poor quality were received by our growers and in many cases have been rejected. Losses run from twenty-five to 100 per cent. Most of these bulbs were shipped on the New Amsterdam and appear to have been heated in transit.

Mrs. Carl Lindskoog, who has been ill for some time, is reported better. L. C.

Monongahela City, Pa.—J. A. Keeney, senior member of the J. A. Keeney Co., fell from a scaffold while installing a boiler, injuring the lining of the bone in his right leg. The injured member has been lanced three times in order to control any infection. It is probable that Mr. Keeney will be laid up until the first of the year. The firm has completed the erection of 12,000 feet of new glass, which increases the range to 25,000 square feet. A new No. 27 Spencer boiler has been installed successfully, which burns coke screenings. The firm is shipping some fine mums and carnations at this time.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

PROVIDING FOR ENLARGEMENT.

Kindly give me instructions regarding the piping of a house, 22x50 feet, with three feet of glass in the side walls. The house runs east and west. The boiler has four openings. The temperature to be maintained is 55 to 60 degrees when the outside temperature is at zero. J. S.—Ind.

In order to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather, it is suggested that you use three 2½-inch overhead flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns in three coils of four pipes each under the benches, or if there are four benches, each of the two middle benches may have a coil of two pipes. If a temperature of 55 degrees in zero weather will suffice, one return may be omitted.

Should there be any likelihood that the present house will be enlarged, or new houses added, it will be advisable to use both of the 4-inch ports for 4-inch flow pipes, and the same arrangement will be desirable for the main returns, but one 4-inch main flow and return is all that will be required for the present house. For various reasons it may be better to use both of the ports in the boiler, and unless additions are planned, it is suggested that a 3-inch flow pipe be used to supply the two 2½-inch flows on the side wall plates and a 2½-inch flow pipe to connect with the one under the ridge.

ENLARGING HEATING SYSTEM.

We have mailed you a sketch of our greenhouse range, together with the proposed addition to the north end. The addition will be 20x40 feet, and the location of the heating plant is shown on the sketch. It is our wish to maintain 60 degrees in zero weather, with an occasional 10 degrees below zero. The buildings are protected by other buildings in the vicinity. We should like to make some changes in the heating system, as we feel that the present installation is not all that it should be. What changes would you advise?

W. G. P.—Pa.

One house is 20x75 feet, with a 6-foot frame against the exposed wall. The other house is 20x105 feet, or with the proposed addition it will have a length of 150 feet. The 2-inch main from the steam boiler supplies a coil of five 1¼-inch returns in the 75-foot house, also two 1½-inch pipes in the frame and five 1¼-inch returns in the longer house. We cannot determine the length of this coil, but judge it to be about ninety feet. This radiation carried by the 2-inch supply pipe amounts to something more than 500 square feet of radiation. A fairly accurate method for determining the amount of radiation that should be carried by a main of a certain size is to take one-tenth of the square root of the number of square feet of radiation to be carried as the diameter in inches of the supply or feed pipe, for a low pressure steam system. Thus a 2-inch supply pipe should carry as a maximum 400 square feet. With more than 500 square feet in the present system, it will be seen that it is more than should be carried by a 2-inch feed.

If the proposed extension is made to the longer house, this will add forty-five feet to the length of the system coil or about 100 square feet of radiation. To correct this difficulty, it is suggested that the present steam main be used only to supply the steam coils in the frame and in the 75-foot house, disconnecting the other coil. To heat the steam coil in what will be the 150-foot house, we should run another 2-inch feed pipe to the north end of this house and there

Healthy Plants

Even, dependable heat is the keystone of successful growing. Your plants must have the temperature best suited to their natural growth. And that heat must be uniform.

Fisher Reducing Valve

will make thrifty use of every ounce of steam. It will deliver exactly the amount of reduced steam pressure you desire. It will maintain even, dependable heat throughout your range, keeping your last bench as warm as your first.

All these things it will do automatically—accurately—without any attention on your part.

The Fisher Reducing Valve is semi-balanced and double-seated. It operates very quickly—is very sensitive—and on account of its construction will not hammer or stick.

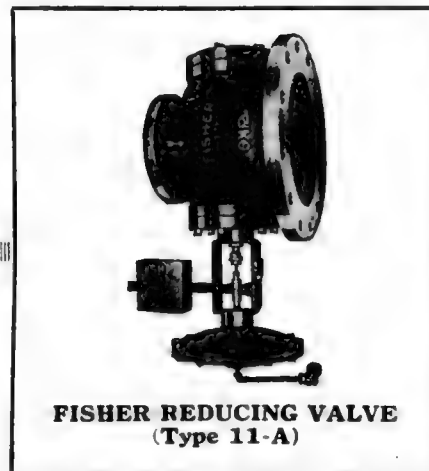

Right now is the time to put this valve to work for you. Write for Bulletin No. 201—TODAY.

connect it with the coil of five 1 1/4-inch returns.

The hot water system has two 3-inch flow pipes. These appear to be carried on the purlin posts in the longer house. One of them is extended into the 75-foot house, where it connects with a coil of five 1½-inch hot water pipes. The other 3-inch flow will, if the house is enlarged, extend to the north end of the 150-foot house and connect with a coil of five 1½-inch hot water returns. From this it will be seen that each of the larger houses contains one steam coil and one hot water coil. This arrangement makes it possible to use only one boiler in mild weather, but otherwise we should prefer to heat one house by means of steam and the other with hot water.

The above arrangement will give ample radiation in each of the houses, and the only objection we can see to it is that a length of 150 feet is rather long for a 1½-inch hot water coil. This can be arranged by leaving the present 105-foot coil as it is and merely extending the main as 2½-inch from the end of the present 3-inch flow to the north end of the house and there connecting it with a new coil either of four 2-inch or five 1½-inch return pipes, extending along the east wall of the 45-foot addition. It will, of course, be necessary to run a 2½-inch main return from the end of this coil to the boiler.

The plan proposed above will require no changes in the present coils, and all that would need to be done is to run a new 2-inch steam main and put in the coils and flow pipes in the new part of the house.

The suggestion which appears in the sketch, to use the steam boiler for heating the 150-foot house, is a good one, but it will require a complete rearrangement of the piping. If this is done, either one 2½-inch flow or two 2-inch flows should be carried to the north end of the house and connected with two coils, each containing five 1½-inch returns.

NUMBER OF PIPES NECESSARY.

Kindly advise me regarding the following items: The size of pipe, their location and number, for a greenhouse 20x40 feet. I intend to use the house for the growing of lettuce and cuttings until February 10. After that date the spring trade. My boiler is a Crawford Cadet No. 318, for hot water; it has a 15-inch grate. C. O.—Mass.

There are no set rules regarding the size, number or arrangement of the heating pipes in a greenhouse. We are not familiar with the boiler mentioned and can only judge of its capacity by the size of the grate. Even for a temperature of 50 degrees it would be preferable to use a heater with a grate eighteen inches in diameter, if soft coal is to be used, and it should be at least sixteen inches in diameter for hard coal. If a temperature of 40 to 45 degrees will answer when it is 10 degrees below zero, the heater mentioned would probably answer with hard coal.

All of the heating pipes may be on the side walls, or if there is a row of posts under the ridge, a third flow pipe and coil might be carried there, or on the sides of the raised beds. With one 2½-inch flow pipe on each side wall plate, there should be either four 1½-inch or three 2-inch return pipes on each wall underneath. If there is also to be a center flow pipe in addition to those on the side walls, use 2-inch pipes for the three flows and use the return pipes in three coils instead of two as suggested above.

Offers You an Opportunity for Immediate Economy

Boiler furnace linings that are cracked and crumbling will waste their cost in coal many times over during the coming winter. Excess air, poor combustion, shutdowns and repairs are at once stopped, and stopped permanently when you put in settings of "Steel Mixture."

More than 9000 plants have proved the saving, service and enduring economy of "Steel Mixture."

"Steel Mixture" is fitted to the measurements of your boiler and set up in our shops, then taken down for shipment. Can be quickly and easily installed, as there are only a few parts to set in place according to our numbered instructions.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Summer weather is now prevailing and consequently the late mums and other late flowers are arriving much earlier than is desirable. Stock is filling up the market and prices are suffering.

Mums are arriving in large numbers, on some days literally swamping the market. Pompons are arriving in larger numbers than was the case last week.

Various Notes.

Alex Ostendarp, of the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange, is now living in his new home at Hyde park. His place is an unusual one and has tasteful landscaping to give a real florist effect.

R. C. Witterstaetter, of Price Hill, is now cutting a lot of large mums and good pompons and carnations.

A get-together meeting of the retail trade was held at Julius Baer's place Thursday, November 2, and was liberally attended, but nothing definite was decided as yet, but was held off for another week, in the hope of getting a larger attendance.

H. W. Sheppard reports a good week in the sale of straw baskets; he also reports having a larger number of wedding orders during the month of October than at any other time in his career.

C. E. Critchell is receiving some excellent mums from Joseph Imholte and some good pompons from Ben Reidel, of Price Hill.

William Gear has been seen moving about the market pretty fast lately; this is a good sign.

C. J. Jones, of the Walnut Hill Floral Bazaar, is getting younger as he gets older, judging from the way he steps around with the younger element always. He reports business brisk on the hill.

John Bruckner, of Bond Hill, is cutting some excellent Rager and Chieftain mums and also has two houses of begonias that he reports as being just about all right. G. H. K.

Toledo, O.—Cecil H. Le Gron, who for the last three years has been with Helen F. Patten, has now joined the force of Otto P. Krueger. Mr. Le Gron will be employed in the retail sales department of the Krueger establishment.

Better Glass Surer Profit

THERE is a reason leading engineers and designers of greenhouses specify American Window Glass Company's Glass.

They know the essential requirements of greenhouse construction and their object is not only to attain strength but to guard against any condition, no matter how slight, that might affect successful operation.

The Greenhouse Glass made by this company is notable for its evenness, strength, careful grading and for the whiteness which assures more light on dark days.

No need to specify or use ordinary glass. Every box of American Window Glass bears the long ellipse and our name, together with the grade marking which guarantees the quality. The largest greenhouses in the country are glazed with the American Window Glass Company's Products.

The Market.

The last two weeks have been ideal, as far as weather conditions are concerned. No frost has been observed at any time during the period. We need a good, stiff frost and a little cold weather to stimulate business. In spite of the business depression through which we have been going, it is agreed that business was a little better during this summer; and the month of October just closed shows a slight gain over October of last year on the books of some of the largest firms.

Roses are coming in large supply and are of unusually good quality for so early in the season. We remarked a number of times last week that the roses showed holiday quality.

Carnations are coming quite freely, but, while the quality is improving, it is not yet up to the standard.

Chrysanthemums are the feature of the market at present. They clear well.

Pot plants are moving remarkably well and are commanding good prices.

Various Notes.

Everyone who grows outdoor stock to any extent is busy digging cannas and gladioli. We have not as yet had enough frost to spoil the show in the public parks.

The largest building campaign ever known in these parts is on at present, and the demand for ornamental shrubbery is great.

The Joy Floral Co. has been making rather extensive repairs and improvements in its store, and is rushing to get everything in shape before the flower show.

The Tennessee State Florists' Association holds its annual meeting in Nashville, November 13 and 14. The show will be held on Broad street in the Imperial motor building. The meeting bids fair to be the best ever held by the association. Abundance of space has been secured for trade exhibits and the flower show, no charge being made for space, but reservations must be in at least a day before the exhibits are to be put in place; apply to Thomas C. Joy. All who desire hotel reservations should make application at once to Hugh McIntyre.

Haury & Sons installed a new heating plant some months ago, and have their greenhouse in fine condition. The store has reflected this improvement decidedly this fall.

J. F. Corbitt & Son have made a number of improvements at their place this summer, and are planning to do more cut flower work this year than

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Reception to Mrs. Mayhew.

All of the members of the store force of Gude Bros. Co. turned out the evening of Friday, November 3, at a reception given by Miss Amelia Gude for Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mayhew, who were married the preceding Monday. Mrs. Mayhew was Miss Nina Penn, who presided over the switchboard at the store for several years. Miss Gude was assisted in entertaining the guests by the bride and by Mrs. William F. Gude and the Misses Louise and Wilhelmina Gude.

The reception was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Gude and, after the usual formalities of congratulating the young couple were concluded, games were engaged in and a buffet supper served. Little Miss Wilhelmina Gude entertained the guests by a number of negro dialect recitations.

Among those present, in addition to those named above, were Granville Gude, Mr. and Mrs. Hardy Pritchard, Miss Catherine Pritchard and Mrs. Pritchard, Sr.; Miss Nellie Brueninger, Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Niblack, Miss Charlotte Haas, Charles Pritchard, John Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hawley, Mr. and Mrs. William Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kennelly, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Randolph, Thomas White, Manuel Pallacios, Marshal Davis, William H. Hammacher, and a number of others.

Toward the close of the evening William F. Gude made a brief speech and, on behalf of her former associates at the store, presented the bride with a handsome linen table set and several other gifts.

here will keep your name and specialty before the whole trade, at a cost of only 62½c per week on a yearly order.

It costs but 75c to fumigate a greenhouse 30x200 ft.

Aside from its deadly certainty, the most satisfactory feature of Hall's Nicotine Fumigator is its remarkably low cost. One cone of this deadly insecticide fumigates 7000 cubic feet. Nine cones will rid a greenhouse (30 by 200 ft.) of plant lice, thrips and similar insects at a cost of only 75 cents. Larger or smaller greenhouses can be fumigated at proportionately low costs.

Simple to use —

Hall's Nicotine Fumigator is a specially prepared fumigating compound saturated with pure Nicotine. It lights quickly, burns evenly and will not go out. No waste — every particle is consumed. And it retains its strength indefinitely.

Ten-pound tins, $8.50; 2½-pound tins, $2.50; 1-pound tins, $1.25. Buy from your dealer. If he is not supplied, send us your order along with his name.

Other Hall Nicotine Insecticides are: Hall's Free Nicotine, Hall's Nicotine Sulphate, Hall's Tobacco Dust.

with their ladies, are to be his guests at a luncheon-meeting at the Northeast Greenhouses, operated by Gude Bros. Co. The event is scheduled for November 15, and the invitations are being sent out now. Mr. Gude says, however, should any florist Rotarian fail to receive an invitation, or if it is delayed, this announcement should be considered as sufficiently personal to induce him to come along anyway. The invitation to the florists is as follows:

The members of the Rotary Club of Washington and their ladies will be the guests of Gude Bros. Co. at a luncheon meeting at the greenhouses in Northeast Washington on Wednesday, November 15. The guests will assemble in the potting room at the plant at 12 o'clock, luncheon to be served soon thereafter. On the completion of the luncheon a tour of the greenhouses will be made.

It would give me a great deal of pleasure to have you join us on this occasion. Won't you try to arrange a visit to Washington and let us give you a real Rotarian welcome?

There are about 165 members of the Washington Rotary Club and preparations are being made for the entertainment of about 300 persons.

Various Notes.

A number of visitors from other cities were in Washington last week and among these were C. B. Knickman, of McHutchison & Co., New York; J. T. Remley, of New Orleans, La.; J. O. Young, of Atlanta, Ga., and John A. Evans, of Richmond, Ind. T. N. S.

ELYRIA, O.

Owing to the unusually warm weather for this season of the year, chrysanthemums are much advanced; consequently, there are plenty of flowers and business is none too brisk. There now is an oversupply.

Harry Heel has worked for the L. C. Hecock Floral Co. for the last four years, but all the time has looked forward to the time when he could work in his own back yard. Some day Mr. Heel's ambitions will be realized, for last week he purchased a small house and will add this to the 80-foot house which he built some time ago.

James McLaughlin, of the Cleveland-McCallum Co., with his family, motored to Elyria last week-end and called at the L. C. Hecock Co. greenhouses.

The Oberlin, O., florists are awake to every opportunity, and yellow chrysanthemums have been quite conspicuous at the football games in Oberlin. Orange and red are the college colors; the large yellow chrysanthemum, with a neat tie of red ribbon, is too much of a temptation to the coeds attending the games. P. W.

Kuhls' Elastic Glazing Composition

It is light gray in color and the only glazing material that can be applied with the hands the same as putty, and will not stick. It retains its elasticity indefinitely and prevents breakage of glass. Withstands heat, cold and dampness and will adhere to wood, iron, stone, etc. Beds perfectly and lasts as long as the glass lasts. If the glass breaks, Elastic Glazing Composition can be cut out without injury to the wood, as it remains flexible.

BUSINESS BRINGERS—REVIEW CLASSIFIED ADS*CALENDULAS*THE BALL CALENDULA.

New crop of seed from other sources cannot be ready until late next August, too late for your early 1923 planting. If you want to be assured of your next season's supply we suggest you buy it at once, direct from the originator.

We have the same lot of seed your first order was filled from. Why take a chance? Your early sown stock should soon be in bloom, convincing you that no orange strain compares with the Ball Calendula.

CAMPANULAS FOR IMMEDIATE SHIPMENT.

Our forcing grade.

HOW TO FORCE THEM.

As soon as received, pot them and carry the plants after that into a frame; they are better off if they do not freeze, they don't appreciate it. Up to February they want anything but a warm house; leave all the foliage on you can; hold the house as near to 32 deg. as possible and also after that, time don't subject them to a high temperature; lift the plants and heel in a coldhouse to be planted out in a solid bed in February, to be slowly forced into bloom for cut-flowers for late April and during May.

Campanula Medium, blue, rose and white;
Campanula Calycanthema, blue, rose, white,
$8.00 per 100, $80.00 per 1000.

GERBERAS

GERBERA HYBRIDS.

Few florists are acquainted with the Berberas. They will grow under glass under ordinary treatment and bloom all winter long. Imagine a Daisy of a rich red or a soft pink, or any other color, borne on long stems and 2 to 3 inches across. Try a few of my field-grown plants at 25c, 35c and 50c each, according to sizes.

GET INTO THE BAND WAGON!

Some of the biggest men in the business are buying Sweet Lavender, Giant Nymph and Sheila. There is not mere hearsay back of these beauties—Mr. Gersdorff, the eminent authority, grades them xxxx; Mr. R. M. Champe, author of the standard work, "The Gladiolus for Profit," lists them in his "High-Merit" list. We have won two silver medals and one bronze medal at the American Gladiolus society shows on our own originations. We have many bona-fide testimonials that ring true with enthusiasm. This space costs too much to go into detail.

SHEILA: Enormous blooms of rich salmon color; fine texture, very early. Planting stock $\frac{1}{2}$ to 1-in. diameter. Nearly all will bloom and this is the size to produce most bulblets, \$2.50 per 12, \$20.00 per 100; 25 at 100 rate.

From New York: "Last Sunday I had the pleasure of seeing for the first time your 'Sheila' in all its glory. The grower, at whose gardens I saw it, told me he considered Leota and Giant Nymph still better. It does not seem that this can be possible. I realize that I have lost one big bet in not growing some of these varieties before." Dated August 16, 1922.

SWEET LAVENDER: As its name implies. Let this man from Maine tell about it. "A season of cold nights and blistering hot days, your Gladiolus Sweet Lavender has delighted me with blooms, so rare, so altogether different to anything else I've met in Gladioli; a masterpiece and one of the real honest to goodness Gladiolus." Sweet Lavender: Is extremely early. Price: Planting stock, $\frac{1}{2}$ to 1-in., \$3.00 per doz.; \$25.00 per 100. 25 at 100 rate.

GIANT NYMPH: A giant among Gladioli, and of a rich pink. Don't want to say much about Giant Nymph because our stock is limited. An Ohio grower writes: "We think it the best new thing out." Planting stock $\frac{1}{2}$ to 1-in. diameter, \$4.50 per 12, \$35.00 per 100. 25 at 100 rate.

POMMERT'S "PURITY."

This is the new commercial white that created a sensation at the Washington, D. C., convention of the S. A. F., was given a first class certificate and was presented to President Harding by the ladies of the S. A. F. with an appropriate speech dedicating it to the memory of his mother.

It is a pure white when cut in bud and opened in water; flower is size and form of America but has more substance making it the best shipper and keeper we have ever grown.

Strong healthy grower in the field and greenhouse; an ideal forcing variety but two weeks later than Lilywhite; an all season kind. You will have to have it eventually—Why not now? The best money-maker of all in the cut flower market. Be sure to get the right one "Pommert's." Our soil produces the best bulbs to be had.
